Death Ends Reunion of School Friends

This rain and blood-soaked intersection at Quadra and North Park St. was where Flying Officer Leonard Mihloff met his death in grinding three-car collision at 1:30 this morning. The 21-year-old officer and three former school friends from Mount View High School had a reunion Friday night. They were on their way home in small car at right when the crash occurred.

Florida Warms Up

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP). — Freezing weather in parts of the southern and southeastern United States persisted today, but rising temperatures in parts of Florida hastened the picking up of frozen fruit before it thaws and spoils.

6 Lost In Greenland

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP). — A U.S. Air Force jet interceptor crashed in Greenland 700 miles north of the Arctic Circle Friday, and a rescue helicopter disappeared an hour later on a mercy mission. In all, six men were missing in a bleak, darkened area of ice and snow.

Jet Dodges Crash

NEW YORK (AP). — The pilot of an Eastern Air Lines passenger jet said today he dodged and avoided collision with a B-47 four-engine bomber by only about 100 feet over Lake Charles, La.

Coal Miners Killed

AACHEN, West Germany (AP). — Nine coal miners died Friday and seven others were injured in two pit accidents. It brought to 15 the number of miners killed in area mines within 36 hours.

Aid for Indians

TORONTO (CP). — The Canadian Committee for World Relief said Friday it has been authorized to allocate $10,000 to help poverty-stricken Indians and metis in the northern Manitoba mining area of Thompson.

Mac Holds Talks

New Test Blast By Soviet

STOCKHOLM (Reuters). — A nuclear explosion in the region of Novaya Zemlya, North Russia, was recorded here today.

Usually reliable sources said the blast was the first in a new Soviet series of nuclear tests.

The last Soviet test, 32nd in the series, took place Nov. 17 in the Semipalatinsk region of Central Asia.

The last blasts in the Novaya Zemlya area were two atmospheric blasts Nov. 4.

The recording of today's explosion was announced by the defence staff's research institute.

Lost Plane Located

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP). — A Brazilian air line announced today its four-engine Constellation missing since early Friday with 50 persons aboard was located today, 30 miles from its destination at the Amazon River port of Manaus. No other details were announced.

There were all kinds of conflicting reports Friday ranging from all were dead to all were safe. The reports all were erroneous.

A city RCAF officer, who had just won his pilot's wings and was engaged to a Winnipeg girl one month ago, was killed in a three car crash in Victoria early this morning.

Flying Officer Leonard Mihloff, 21, of 122 Lowlands met his death at the rain-swept intersection of Quadra and North Park St. about 1:30 a.m.

Five other persons involved in the smash were in such a state of shock that, hours after the accident, police had not been able to find out how it happened.

F/O Mihloff was engaged to Emma Petrovski of Winnipeg. They were to be married next June and she had planned to come to Victoria and spend Christmas with his family.

ATTENDED COLLEGE

The young RCAF officer had won his pilot's wings a week ago. He joined the air force a year ago after studying at Victoria College for two years. F/O Mihloff spent the evening with three of his former schoolmates at Mount View High School. They were on their way home, with F/O Mihloff at the wheel of the small car, when the accident occurred.

Going east on North Park St. their vehicle collided with a car apparently going south on Quadra. This car was driven by David Whitehead, 20, of 240 King George Terrace.

After the impact both cars veered southward and collided with a car driven north on Quadra by David Chewpoy, 19, 670 Sumas.

The first collision threw

The two were Roy Van Pelt, 23, co-vessel Twin Isles, Oak Bay Marina, and Lorne Murray, 21, 2101 Neil Street.

A third passenger, Brian Boag, 21, 4528 Stratford, who had been sitting in the back seat alongside Van Pelt, was not thrown out.

Boag is in "fairly good" condition at Royal-Jubilee Hospital.

Murray was released after

Towboat Missing In River Flood

A 50-foot tug is missing from its moorings and more than 20 homes flooded by the waters of the Courtenay River, which spilled its banks early this morning.

RCMP fear the River Chief, which was tied to a wharf on the river may have sunk during the night. There was no one aboard.

A fishing vessel also broke from its moorings and floated out into the strait when flooding was at its highest during high tide.

An RCAF rescue boat found her north of Royston and towed her to Comox.

Numerous homes and some businesses along the river, which skirts Courtenay reported flooded basements and back yards, while Lewis Park, training site of the British Columbia Lions Football Club, was inundated.

The Island Highway, between 7 and 9:30 a.m., was closed when water as deep as two feet covered more than a half-mile portion of the road.

Centennial Flashback...

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862

DECEMBER 15

The Rosedale is still lying in the same position in Ross Bay, lurching over on her side, and about 50 yards from shore. Her yards and topmasts have been taken down and an anchor has been carried out from her bows to keep her head to seaward in the case of a severe storm. The swell was still too heavy this morning to permit any salvage attempt.

The machinery of the steamer Thames is out of order and she is lying adrift off Clover Point, it was learned today. Many observers feel this is rather a bad berth should any gale come up.

Alfred Gorridge was charged with manslaughter today following an inquest into the death of George Parkinson. The pair were engaged in a bare-knuckle boxing match for a five-gallon container of beer when Gorridge struck Parkinson on the head in the fifth round. He did not get up. Both men were under the influence of alcohol at the time of the fight.

The schooner Godfish arrived today with a cargo of lumber from the Alberni Mills located in Barclay Sound.

'Share Arms Research'

PARIS (CP). — Defence Minister Harkness said today Canada has recommended to the NATO ministerial council greater standardization of military equipment to deal with modern weaponry "so sophisticated."

Harkness told a press conference after the windup of the three-day NATO meeting this afternoon that Canada wants to see definite requirements established for some types of military hardware and production reorganized with all NATO countries co-operating.

"Until now, each country has been unwilling to give up its own research," Harkness said. "Small countries produce unrealistic products at unreasonable cost," Harkness added.

A communique issued at the end of the session today called for an increase in the "effectiveness of conventional forces" in the 15-nation alliance.

The ministers said they found the alliance "sound and vigorous" but agreed adequate and balanced forces, both nuclear and conventional, were necessary to provide the alliance with the widest possible range of response to whatever threats it might face.

The "aim of the Atlantic alliance remains what it has always been — peace, freedom, and security based on the rule of law," the communique said.

"However, the alliance is determined to respond appropriately to any hostile action affecting the security and freedom of countries of the alliance subjected to threats and pressure."

The ministers reaffirmed their determination to "defend and maintain the freedom of West Berlin and its people."

The communique, released after it was approved as a formal statement on the three-day closed-door review of East-West affairs and the state of NATO, said "the recent attempt by the Soviet Union to tilt the balance of force against the West by secretly stationing nuclear missiles in Cuba brought the world to the verge of war."

38 Plunge To Death

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP). — A bridge on the route to Brazil collapsed Friday and plunged at least 38 persons 40 feet to death in a raging river below, federal highway officials reported.

Rescue workers reported recovering 38 bodies.

ON TO OTTAWA?

What Next For Roblin?

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP). — Election results in Manitoba, the fourth province to hold a provincial contest in five weeks, will be the subject of close scrutiny by all federal parties for weeks to come.

Features of the voting Friday which attracted Ottawa interest are:

1. The personal future of Premier Roblin. He has been mentioned in some quarters as a possible successor to Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the federal leadership of the Conservative party, if it falls open.

2. The future of the Liberal party in Western Canada. It gained strength in the Manitoba legislature mainly at the expense of the New Democratic Party.

3. The future of the NDP itself. It lost strength in one of the provinces it regards along with Saskatchewan as its birthplace.

Federal party leaders and strategists are examining riding-by-riding results as well as the over-all position of the parties in the Manitoba house.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker makes a practice of not commenting publicly on provincial election results, as did his predecessors in office. However, it is expected that he will send a personal message of congratulation to Mr. Roblin, one of his close friends and leadership supporters.

The 45-year-old premier has said he has no intention of making the jump from provincial to federal politics and that continued leadership of the Conservative Party.

Widow's Sentiment Too Much for Church

LONDON (AP). — A 75-year-old widow was ordered by a Church of England court today to remove the words "Forever in My Thoughts" from her husband's tombstone.

Crying Mrs. Dorothy Maule Wilkinson said: "I thought the inscription suitable. My husband meant everything to me. The words 'Forever in My Thoughts' are quite true. I can't afford to remove it, as I have only got a pension coming in."

The vicar of St. Mary's Church in suburban Ealing, Rev. D. S. Richardson, told the court:

"In these days of paganism and of burial, it is necessary for the church to take a strong Christian line. We believe that strong expressions of affection or grief are inappropriate."

The church court ordered the words removed from the stone in the churchyard within three months or else the church would remove them and bill Mrs. Wilkinson.

FRIENDSHIP DOLLARS FUND

B.C. Indian Carving Aids Asian Indians

Cadets at the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, have responded to The Times "Friendship Dollars for India" appeal by collecting some $42 between them.

The money was raised by raffling a totem pole specially carved for the fund by Red Loveys, a security guard at the college and a former merchant seaman. The pole was won by Dr.

Alan Bricknell, a lecturer in chemistry at Royal Roads. An expert carver, Mr. Loveys wanted to help The Times appeal because he has visited India and seen the appalling conditions under which many of her people live.

More than 168 cadets and staff bought tickets in the raffle, which took place at their annual Christmas dinner Friday night.

This morning a $5 bill was delivered at The Times office by a Victoria lady signing herself "Waggy." Other donations, large and small, arrived by mail.

All are welcome, for they are urgently needed to assist the life-giving work of the Unitarian Service Committee in India.

The USC carries out relief work among the most destitute Indians, providing milk and food for starving children and medical care for the sick and aged.

Donations should be sent to "Friendship Dollars for India" c/o The Times, 2631 Douglas, or delivered at the Bank of Montreal, Douglas and Yates.

An acknowledgement will be made in The Times and official receipts for income tax purposes will be sent later by USC.

On Friday the total stood at $5,244. A new total will be published in Monday's Times.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

If there is a Santa Claus in town who doesn't need padding it is surely Rebel Mowat, the demon sightseeing driver.

Suitably whiskered and gowned, Rebel appeared among a crowd of 200 youngsters at the Net Loft the other night and one of the company was heard to remark:

"He's no store Santa. He comes from the Arctic—you can tell that by his husky voice."

Rebel asked the usual question "What do you want for Christmas?" and one of the kiddies replied: "A baby brother."

"Sorry," said the Rebel Santa, "I'm afraid that would take too long."

Food Labor was right when he described the Endans as a "fabulous" poodle-dog act at the Chamber of Commerce Christmas party, Friday—but when he referred to their appearance on the Ed Sullivan show, he touched a sensitive nerve with the French performers.

"It takes about 10 minutes for us to do the act properly," one of the girls told us at the Empress Friday. "Sullivan got right down to the end of his show and then sent us on, saying: 'Give us two minutes of your act.'"

"This upset the dogs because, believe it or not, they have been trained. It has also hurt us with booking agents who think we can do one trick. As for Sullivan—never again!"

Mention of an exchange of recorded tapes between this column and a farmer living in the outback of Victoria, Australia, brought a call from Hudson Blake, 1234 Oakmount, founder of the Victoria Tape Club.

Mr. Hudson tells us there is now an organization known as World Tape Pals with headquarters in Dallas, Texas. It has members of all ages in all parts of the world who send each other tapes.

The Victoria club now has more than 50 members.

Flossie, a three-year-old border collie, is happily restored to her owners, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fisher at Glen Lake Post Office today. She had been missing 24 hours and dozens of people, including a patrol firm, joined in the search.

Mrs. Fisher was shopping on Douglas Street Thursday afternoon when Flossie apparently jumped out of the car window and disappeared. Patrol men joined in the search and spotted her on Store Street around midnight.

Flossie was scared and led them a merry chase around the streets before she vanished into the night.

Next day Mrs. Fisher advertised in The Times and a number of well-wishers joined in the hunt while Mrs. Fisher drove all over the city looking for her lost pet.

Around 4 p.m. Friday she spotted Flossie near the Johnson Street Bridge. This time there was no chase. Flossie leapt into her arms—hungry and dirty—and was taken home for a good meal and a juicy bone.

It was so stuffy (in a physical sense) at that preliminary meeting of the new tourist association in the Empress Hotel that Cyril Chapman, the manager, decided to open a window.

Alas, the window was stuck hard and not even Mr. Chapman could move it!

Last summer when Canada's provincial premiers held a conference here and were feted by city council at a luncheon, A.M. M. Mooney was paired with Newfound Premier Joey Smallwood.

One of the items in a fruit salad at the meal was mandarin oranges. Mr. Smallwood, who had never tasted them before, fairly drooled over the fruit.

New Brunswick Premier Louis Robichaud also expressed interest.

So... A.M. Mooney packed up two boxes of the oranges this week and shipped them to the under-privileged premiers on the other Canadian coast.

Mrs. J. D. Jones of Belfair, Washington, is impressed by the honesty of Victoria folk. Seems her Victoria sister bought her a fancy scarf, packed it nicely in a box and addressed it to her.

Then she lost the package somewhere on Government Street. Mrs. Jones got her gift just the same. It was picked up by an unknown Victorian, stamped and forwarded to Belfair.

"I would like to thank the person who did this," writes Mrs. Jones.

Victoria lawyers are warm in their praise for the remarks made by Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton on the recent passing of former city prosecutor James Proudfoot.

"In a few quiet words, Justice Wootton said precisely the right thing," a local lawyer told us. "This was a tribute from a gracious gentleman."

John Wallace raised a laugh at the annual C of C Christmas party Friday when he described Reeve Alf Wurtel as "the biggest prize winner of the day—he won a free admission to his own arena."

We send Christmas greetings to Miss Phonograph Record of 1962, whose measurements are 78-33-45.

room later Friday night were told that he was in a meeting and would not be available for comment until Monday morning.

His assistant, William Budd, said he had no knowledge of a telegram.

Mr. Rathie's wife, sent to the premier at the high school auditorium where he spoke said:

"Accept challenge to run against you in South Okanagan in immediate election. Name date of election tonight as promised in your challenge."

Mr. Rathie, a Liberal, was critical of the provincial government in his campaign for the mayoralty. He was elected Wednesday by a wide margin over the three other candidates.

He said Thursday that he planned to mobilize Vancouver taxpayers to put pressure on their provincial members for an additional $5,000,000 a year from the government, mainly for schools and roads.

Mr. Rathie declared his aims during his two-year term in office will be a better deal from the B.C. government and economies in city administration.

The byelection meeting was a stormy affair, punctuated by frequent exchanges between Mr. Bennett and hecklers, many of them students from the University of B.C.

He accused Mr. Rathie of causing Vancouver to lose thousands of dollars through opposition to city purchase of provincial bonds. He said the mayor-elect—then an alderman—came back from a trip to Europe warning city council to steer clear of investments in government bond issues.

the 65 seats in the Southern Rhodesian legislature decided, the party standing was: Rhodesian Front, 28; United Federal Party, 15; Independents, one.

The Rhodesian Front, led by Winston Field, is pledged to retain "white control" in Southern Rhodesia and has rejected what it calls "forced integration."

The results were seen as a tremendous upset, leading to an entirely new situation in central Africa.

FEW NEGROES, VOTE

The election was the first under a new constitution giving a limited number of Negroes the right to vote, but few of them exercised it.

Whitehead had banned the main Negro Nationalist Party in the colony, the Zimbabwe African People's Union, and the Nationalists' resulting call to Negroes to boycott the election appeared to have been a complete success.

Only 13,000 of the total Negro population of 3,600,000 were eligible to vote. About 90,000 of the 225,000 whites were on the electoral roll.

Whitehead held his own seat by only 288 votes against the Rhodesian Front candidate, a political unknown, as the party rolled up gains in key urban areas.

The all-Negro Northern Rhodesian government announced in Lusaka Friday night will have Nationalist leader Kenneth Kaunda as minister of local government and rival Nationalist Harry Nkumbula as minister of Negro education.

Kaunda's United National Independence Party won 14 seats in the recent general election and Nkumbula's African National Congress seven seats.

The white-United Federal Party led by Federation Premier Sir Roy Welensky won 16 seats.

Traffic was detoured through Comox.

McKelvie Road, connecting Courtenay with the Dove Creek area, which runs alongside Tsolum River, has been flooded since midnight. The road is still closed.

Highways officials said the flood is not as bad as one which occurred seven years ago.

It is believed several days of continuous rains, coupled with melting snow from surrounding mountains, swelled the river through its major tributaries—the Puntledge and Tsolum—which join the Courtenay near the city.

TROUBLE TO NORTH

Highway department officials also reported flooding in the Sayward Valley, about 80 miles north of here. No details are available.

The Alberni-Tofino Highway has also been closed until further notice due to heavy flooding in the Kennedy Lake region.

servatives in his province is a sufficient challenge for him.

However, his re-election to a third term is bound to renew speculation on Mr. Roblin's federal leadership potential. Mr. Diefenbaker has indicated no thought of retiring, and Conservative MPs here are rallying behind him in preparation for next month's national general meeting of the party after a spate of rumors that his leadership was being questioned.

In Liberal party ranks, the Manitoba results were seen as a marked improvement of party fortunes, particularly over the NDP. The Liberals here recognize the NDP as political cousins on the left in common strategy but quite obvious opponents in any election.

MUST BE PATIENT

NDP sources saw the Manitoba result as a lesson that Canadian socialists must continue to be patient in striving for office (elsewhere than in Saskatchewan).

Social Credit sources said their participation in the Manitoba contest was less than an out.

In the three other provincial contests this fall there was not the same all-party campaign activity as prevailed in Manitoba.

Conservative Premier Shaw was re-elected last Monday in a straight contest between Conservatives and Liberals in Prince Edward Island. Last month, Premier Smallwood's Liberals swarmed back into office in Newfoundland in a contest in which the NDP put up candidates in only scattered ridings.

Premier Lesage's Liberals were returned a week earlier in Quebec in an election which involved no real NDP strength, no formal Social Credit party participation, and an embarrassing alignment of federal Conservatives with the Union Nationale provincial party of the political right.

TWO LAST-MINUTE GOALS

'Spurs Score Shutout

LONDON (AP) — Inside-left Jimmy Greaves scored a goal two minutes from the end to lead Tottenham Hotspur to a 2-0 victory over Birmingham today. The triumph kept Spurs in the race for the English League soccer championship.

For 88 minutes, Spurs struggled in vain to find a way through Birmingham's tough defence.

With the last kick of the game, former England international centre-forward Bobby Smith got another Spurs goal.

Everton, slamming in three goals in seven minutes, beat Burnley 3-1 and went into a three-point lead at the head of the standings. Everton has 33 points, Tottenham 30 and Burnley 29—all from 22 games.

A crowd of 36,000 turned out at Birmingham's St. Andrew's Stadium to see the local team hold its own with Tottenham in a game of brilliant soccer. But luck was against Birmingham.

In the 65th minute centre-half Trevor Smith caught the Tottenham defence napping and sent the ball into the net with a spectacular header—but the goal was disallowed for an infringement.

The last few minutes were packed with drama. Greaves streaked through and sent Tottenham's Jimmy McIlroy enhanced into the lead. Birmingham raced back to the attack and centre-forward Jimmy Harris hit the post. Then Smith got Tottenham's second.

Everton's dazzling seven-minute spell sent 45,000 of their fans wild with excitement at Liverpool's Goodison Park stadium.

It happened in the first half. Alex Young, Scottish international centre-forward, headed the ball through for inside-right Denis Stevens to score in the 17th minute. Roy Vernon, Welsh international inside-left, made it 2-0 two minutes later. A header from Young brought Everton's third goal in the 24th minute.

Burnley never looked like pulling up the leeway, although Everton slackened in the second half. All Burnley could manage was a late goal by inside-right Jimmy McIlroy.

At the bottom end of the standings, Fulham and Ipswich Town both won away from home in the desperate struggle to get away from the relegation zone.

Fulham, still without the injured Johnny Haynes, upset Leicester City 3-2 at Leicester. It was Leicester's first home defeat of the season.

put Fulham on the winning trail with a long looping shot which deceived goalkeeper Gordon Banks in the fifth minute. Len Chalmers, Leicester's right back, was carried off with a leg injury in the 26th minute and Leicester played with 10 men from then on.

Ipswich, reigning English champions, edged Blackburn Rovers 1-0 at Blackburn with a second-half goal by centre-forward Ted Phillips.

Leyton Orient now is firmly stuck at the bottom of the First Division standings with 12 points. Fulham has 15 and Ipswich 16.

Leyton lost 0-2 to Arsenal at London's Highbury Stadium.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Premier Duff Roblin led his Progressive Conservative government back to power in Friday's Manitoba general election but the Liberals made slight gains in seats and the popular vote.

The New Democratic Party dropped a seat in its North Winnipeg stronghold, and the only Social Credit member of the last legislature retained his seat.

Party standing:

Prog. Con.	33	36
Liberal	13	11
NDP-CCF	7	10
Social Credit	1	—
Tie	1	—
Deferred	2	—
Total	57	57

The tie is in Kildonan. The Liberals improved their grip in the Winnipeg metropolitan area, gaining a seat from each of the Progressive Conservative and New Democratic parties to add to the St. Boniface seat they retained.

Steve Patrick, middle guard for Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the Canadian Football League champions, made his political debut by winning the Winnipeg suburban seat of Assiniboia for the Liberals from the former member, Progressive Conservative George Johnson. Mark Smerchanski won for the Liberals in the North Winnipeg seat of Burrows, where he defeated veteran socialist John Hawryluk.

One Cabinet Minister Defeated

Liberal Gordon Johnson won in Portage la Prairie over Welfare Minister John Christianson, the only cabinet minister defeated. The main issue in that campaign was a controversial proposed diversion of the Assiniboine River into Lake Manitoba.

The Progressive Conservatives regained the traditionally Conservative, southern Manitoba rural seat of Turtle Mountain from the Liberals, who won it in a byelection in 1960. They also took the rural constituency of Fisher from the NDP in the area between Lakes Winnipeg and Manitoba.

In the suburban Winnipeg riding of Kildonan, Progressive Conservative James T. Mills and A. J. Reid, the NDP candidate seeking re-election, tied with 3,156 votes each. The tie could be broken in several ways before the result is official Dec. 20, but if the tie persisted it would be up to the returning officer to cast the deciding vote.

One factor in deciding the Results Disappoint NDP Leader

A. R. Paulley, leader of the NDP, also was re-elected in the Winnipeg-suburban riding of Radisson, but was disappointed by his party's showing. He had hoped to replace the Liberals as the official opposition.

The only Social Credit candidate elected was J. M. Froese in the rural Rhineland riding, who won the seat in a byelection in 1959.

The Progressive Conservatives and Liberals ran candidates in all 55 seats at stake. Voting in the northern seats of Churchill and Rupertsland will not take place until Jan. 4. The NDP ran 38 candidates.

Standing at dissolution Nov. 9 was: Progressive Conservative 34, Liberal 10, NDP 9, Social Credit 1, vacant 3, total 57. The two northern seats were held by Progressive Conservative members.

Among the prominent candidates was former Liberal-Progressive premier D. L. Campbell, who was re-elected in the Lakeside riding near Portage la Prairie which he has represented since 1922. Former CCF provincial leader Lloyd Stinson, defeated in the Winnipeg City riding of Osborne in 1959, lost to the sitting Progressive Conservative in the city riding of Wellington as he tried a comeback.

John Bracken, nephew and namesake of former Manitoba premier and one-time national Progressive Conservative leader, ran unsuccessfully as NDP candidate in the rural Lac du Bonnet riding.

The election, the first held in December since 1899, drew a considerably lighter vote than the last election in 1959. Of 479,321 eligible voters, the turnout was expected to be about the same as the 290,091 in the 1958 election. With 99 per cent of the polls reported, the total was 293,637.

The weather was comparatively mild for December, with the temperatures in the Winnipeg area above normal in the 20s. There was some snow in the north.

For Mr. Roblin, 45, it was his third election success as Progressive Conservative leader. He formed a minority government in 1958 after the Conservatives spent 43 years playing second fiddle to Liberal-dominated governments. He was the first Conservative to lead the

MP SEEKS TO OUTLAW GOV'T BUSINESS LINKS

OTTAWA (CP)—Stanley Knowles tried Friday to make it illegal for cabinet ministers to hold company directorships.

He was unsuccessful. A bill by the New Democratic Party member for Winnipeg North Centre was "talked out" in the Commons.

Mr. Knowles, an acknowledged expert on parliamentary procedure, said he was only trying to establish in law what already is recognized in practice.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has firmly adopted this practice, he said. No present ministers had such directorships, which might lead to a conflict of interest between public and private obligations.

Senator Wallace McCutcheon, minister without portfolio, had resigned many directorships in August.

Mr. Knowles said former prime ministers Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent had requested all MPs who joined their cabinets to relinquish company directorships "so far as it was possible."

Chamber Won't Give Up Fight for Amalgamation

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce will continue to work for amalgamation despite the recent negative referendum in Saanich, president John Wallace said Friday.

In a brief speech at the Chamber's annual Christmas party in the Empress Hotel, he said the vote hadn't upset the Chamber "one damn little bit."

Speaking in jocular vein, he said Victoria is on the move, and pretty soon "won't even need" the other municipalities.

Mr. Wallace praised Mayor R. B. Wilson and the city council for recent accomplishments, mentioning the "favorable vote this week for a civic square, and the opening of the first downtown parking garage, with another coming up."

He urged the provincial government to find a suitable building for the B.C. Maritime Museum in the south Victoria area.

REFURBISH HALL

Mr. Wallace suggested that Saanich use part of the money earmarked for a new municipal building, and the rest for a salt water swimming pool for the whole community. For Oak

Bay's contribution, he asked for "five or six lawn bowling greens with grandstands from which youngsters could watch."

But he kept hammering at the need for amalgamation. "With all due respect to Joe Casey," we're eventually going to have amalgamation," he said.

FABLE WILL SHRINK

With a broad smile he finished by saying: "My only regret is that when amalgamation comes our head table at these parties will be reduced to almost nothing." (Reeves of the three municipalities and their wives were head table guests.)

As usual with the chamber's Christmas party, formality and business proceedings were dropped in favor of a festive theme, this year revolving around a Hawaiian motif. Featured were Tui Manao and the cast of the Polynesian Pageant, lately of the Seattle World's Fair. Also entertaining were the Florence Clough dancers and Endan's Fabulous Poodles of Paris.

Enough Waste Power To Offset Losses

SPOKANE (AP) — Financial losses of the Bonneville Power Administration in recent years can be traced to unsold power and energy, the BPA's comptroller said Wednesday.

"We have had enough power to go to waste to more than offset our losses," Earl Ostrander told about 100 delegates to a meeting of the Columbia Basin inter-agency committee.

Rates, fixed in 1938 and 1939, were still adequate, he said.

Socred Claims 'Scandal' In Canada Council Loans

OTTAWA (CP)—A Quebec Social Credit MP raised in the Commons Friday what he called "a scandal" in the use of public funds by the Canada Council.

Gilles Gregoire, diminutive but vocal member for Lapointe, said the culture-booster agency has made large low-interest loans to finance companies which in turn have used the money for loans to the public at rates as high as 32 per cent.

Mr. Gregoire said one such Canada Council loan of $300,000 at 3 1/2 per cent was made to Industrial Acceptance Corporation, in which former Liberal prime minister Louis St. Laurent holds a directorship.

IAC then re-lends this money at 30 per cent to the same people who put up the cash in the first place in the form of taxes, he said.

GIVES NAMES

Mr. Gregoire said similar Canada Council loans have been made to other finance companies. He named Union Acceptance and Traders Finance.

The Social Crediter said IAC directors include other former Liberal ministers, besides Mr. St. Laurent who actually founded the Canada Council with $100,000,000 in tax revenues.

Despite prodding by Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver Burrard), Mr. Gregoire declined to name the other former ministers.

Public Texts Seized In Parochial School

WINNIPEG (CP)—A bailiff marched into the St. Emile's Roman Catholic School in St. Vital, Man., Friday and seized 60 text books.

The bailiff, Lewis J. Lavack, carried with him a court order which had been sworn out by the St. Vital (public) school division.

The books had become a focal point in a test case to see whether parochial students were allowed to have free text books belonging to the provincial department of education.

Students attending the parochial school had gained the books by registering for public school and taking the books to the Catholic school for use.

The provincial department of education has denied it had anything to do with the book seizure.

Airliner Hits Homes; Death Toll at Least 10

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—A ninth victim was found today at the scorched, wreckage-littered scene where an airliner missed a runway and plunged into a block of suburban homes last night.

The Civil Aeronautics Board launched an investigation of the flaming crash. Witnesses said the plane dropped out of the foggy sky—as if it were coming in for a landing—and smashed instead into residences hundreds of yards short of a nearby airfield.

Killed were five men and four women, two of them teen-age girls.

Four of the men were aboard the Flying Tiger line Constellation.

The other victims were found dead in the shattered wreckage of homes.

Firemen were still probing the smoking ruins early today, fearing there were more bodies. All the victims were burned and many were mutilated.

SIX HOMES BURN

Six homes and two commercial buildings were set afire as blazing gasoline spewed from the wreckage.

The plane fell in a section of the San Fernando Valley a quarter-mile from its destination, Lockheed air terminal in Burbank. Among its cargo were Christmas toys from Boston. The plane, a prop-driven cargo craft, carried only one passenger—a man who hitched a ride.

The Civil Aeronautics Board launched an immediate inquiry. It was the fourth Flying Tiger line crash this year.

Last spring a transport carrying 107 persons disappeared in the Pacific. Another crashed in the Atlantic later, killing 29 of 75 aboard. In a crash off Cold Bay, Alaska, one man was killed.

Motorists and pedestrians stared in disbelief as the four-engine craft swept across busy Laurel Canyon Boulevard so low they could see the blue flame of its exhausts—as if it were making a routine landing.

Mike Powers, who was walking to his car, said he "couldn't believe it."

Powers said "it had its landing gear and the flaps down. The landing lights were burning. I just couldn't believe it could come down there. Then the left wing dipped and the plane smashed in, nose first."

The plane clipped power

Rehearsal in Point Grey

MONDAY'S BY-ELECTION IN Point Grey may prove to be an important event in the history of British Columbia politics. Mr. Bennett evidently thinks so anyway. He has thrown all the resources of Social Credit, both personal and financial, into this contest. He has promised his lady candidate a seat in the cabinet if she is elected. He has entered the campaign himself with a barrage of vote-getting announcements, including the firm pledge of a $100 home-owners' grant, and staked his own prestige on the outcome.

The Premier's obvious anxiety is understandable. To lose a usually safe seat, the private preserve of Attorney-General Bonner, would be a grave blow to the government and a depressing overture to the next general election.

But the vote in Point Grey is chiefly interesting as a rehearsal and dry-run of Mr. Fulton's intended entry into provincial politics. Significantly enough, he did not choose to run in the by-election as he could easily have done. For all his brave talk, he is taking no chances. His candidate, however, is running as the narrow end of the Conservative wedge. A vote for him, the electors are told, is a vote approving Mr. Fulton's great demerch.

If the Conservative candidate is elected that will be a very good start for Mr. Fulton, but only a start. Defeat, on the other hand, would be highly discouraging. If Mr. Fulton cannot win the historically Conservative riding of Point Grey (even Mr. Bonner being really a Conservative) where can he win?

The Liberals, with a brilliant young candidate, Dr. McGeer, whose family name is famous in provincial politics, profess full confidence in Monday's poll. For them victory would be a kind of breakthrough after years of disappointment and probably would presage success elsewhere.

Mr. Roblin Evens the Score

NO ONE SHOULD BE SUR-prised at the return of the Roblin government which has achieved the only purpose for which Manitoba's snap election was called.

Mr. Roblin wanted a mandate from his people before the Diefenbaker government risks going to the country in a general election with results that could have been damaging to the Conservative cause, provincial as well as federal. Now he has four years in which to carry out his program of high expenditures with attendant high taxes.

Since he first came to office, Mr. Roblin has proved himself an able administrator, though a high spender, and he is obviously giving the largest section of Manitoba voters the type of government they want.

The public will note, of course, the gains made by the Liberals under Mr. Gil Molgat. They have won two more seats and have pushed their popular vote up from 30 per cent in the 1959 election to 38 per cent, while the Conservatives dropped three seats and saw their portion of the popular vote shrink from 47 per cent in 1959 to 44 yesterday. At the same time the NDP has slipped, both in seats and popular vote.

The results in Manitoba tie the score between Liberals and Conservatives in the last four provincial elections at two victories apiece. This provides no conclusive proof of a swing either way in national politics which may, or may not, be subject to the same currents of popularity between the two main parties.

The outcome does, however, have some impact on the Canadian scene. By carrying Manitoba again Mr. Roblin has enhanced his potential candidacy as successor to Mr. Diefenbaker when he finally steps down from the national party leadership.

A Red-Letter Day

IT WAS APPROPRIATE THAT the city's new View Street parking building should be officially opened as the community still hailed a resounding "yes" vote on the Victoria Centennial Square project.

The parking garage has had a long history of frustration and difficulties. Although the plan has now emerged without the pedestrian mall which originally was to accompany it, the new building will prove a valuable adjunct to the downtown business section—and by no means an unsightly one.

Added to existing facilities, and with another city garage planned

Let's Keep Our Attractions

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA Bureau of Economics and Statistics has again reported a population development for the province that has been familiar to Victoria for many years.

The number of people in the province is increasing substantially in spite of the fact that the birth-rate is relatively low, the death rate above average. The increase has occurred to a considerable degree through immigration—either from other provinces or other countries.

As this influx of new settlers continues, the percentage of citizens of British origin is receding. In the last decade it has gone down from 65.8 per cent of the population to 59.4 per cent.

Our method of growth and our change in the proportion of ethnic origins are significant. British Columbians are inclined to believe that something more than climate, scenery and natural resources attracts folks from other parts of the world. It is assumed, probably with some justification, that the province and its cities have a character which draws those who live in other parts of the country and the world.

If this is so it might be wise to make a conscious effort to retain the more appealing of those characteristics which have made the province attractive—and which could be submerged in the changing tides of immigration.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A WALK along the beach at Mt. Douglas Park can be enlightening and fascinating.

There are many types of logs and drift wood that have been washed ashore, some of fantastic shapes; others look as if they were "woolly" where the fibers had been shredded by rubbing against the rocks and pebbles.

On some of the old embedded logs can be seen a bright yellow fungus that apparently has the ability to live where there is a recurrent spray of salt water.

Along the reach of the high tides you can find many kinds of seaweed or algae.

Some of these plants are brilliant in color, ranging from a bright scarlet to the dull green-brown of the kelp.

Pick up a piece of the kelp and see how the holdfast spreads so that it can clutch a rock or some other object as an anchor against the swell and lift of the tides.

Open one of the large balls or capsules at the top of the plant, see how its hollowness gives it buoyancy to keep the long ribbons at the top of the water.

Here and there you can find Eel grass, the only true rooted plant in the sea.

Along the banks are trees that are partly uprooted by the slides of the blue clay. Here one can see and study the root system, particularly of the Douglas Maple with its spreading trunks, and reddish-tipped leaf buds.

FROM HONG KONG

Has China Turned the Corner Away From Catastrophe?

AS the autumn harvest is being brought in, it now appears that China has reaped the best crops since 1958. According to expert estimates, current Chinese production of rice, corn, potatoes and miscellaneous grains, such as millet and sorghum, should reach about 182,000,000 tons.

The good harvest has come at the most critical economic moment of the Communist regime's 13 years of power. Had the crop failed—as it failed in the past three years—millions of China's peasants may well have gone from extremely tight rations to outright starvation in many areas.

Observers' Opinion

In the opinion of many observers, worsening conditions would have significantly affected the Chinese government's political stability. Now, it is felt, China's economy has "turned the corner" away from catastrophe.

Necessary as it was, however, this increase in production has by no means overcome China's serious need for food. With the population growing at the rate of more than 2 per cent a year, it is calculated that an additional 20,000,000 tons of grain would be needed to give the regime a "comfortable" economic margin.

Peking is trying to meet shortages by importing grain from Canada, Australia, France and other countries. The cost of these imports is expected to exceed £200,000,000.

Improved Crops

Many factors contributed to improved crops this year. For one thing, China did not suffer sharply from natural calamities like floods and droughts. But perhaps more important in stimulating a better harvest have been changes made by the Communists in their rural establishment.

The "People's Communes," which were excessive in their domination of Chinese peasants, have had their power curtailed until they exist in name only. To replace them, the Peking government has organized small production teams, comprised of 15 or 20 families. These units hardly differ from the "mutual aid teams" created 10 years ago and later merged into larger-sized co-operatives.

Smaller working groups of this kind offer certain advantages to peasants. Control over farm activities is no longer exercised by Communist party officials, many of whom were unfamiliar with agricultural techniques. For the most part, the present teams are directed by the peasants themselves.

The peasants are also being given a larger share of the crops they produce, and they are permitted to retain surpluses for their own consumption.

Relaxing controls still further, the Communists now allow the peasants to cultivate their own private plots of land. These small gardens are used to raise vegetables and livestock, and they are reported to have contributed to ameliorating the low rations throughout China.

Free Markets

The peasants are also encouraged to sell some of their privately-grown produce in free markets established by the government. To a large extent, this has relieved food shortages in the cities, where greater quantities of vegetables, fruit and dairy products are said to be available.

Merchandise offered in the free markets is, however, sold for high prices and much of it is beyond the reach of urban workers. Yet there appears to be enough wealth in Chinese cities to keep the free market thriving, and evidence indicates that the authorities fear that the dearth of consumer items and excess of money may lead to inflation.

Light Industries

Thus, efforts are also being made to step up light industrial production. Factories manufacturing bicycles, household utensils and other consumer goods are maintaining their normal rhythm.

The lack of raw materials and capital, however, have seriously hit heavy industries. The output of steel, cement, machine tools and electric power has fallen. Shortages of raw cotton have forced China's textile factories to slow down.

While they concentrate on agricultural production, the Chinese leaders cannot afford to revive their heavy industrial efforts. Hence it is believed that China's plans to become a modern major power quickly will suffer some delay; at least until there is enough food to feed the country.

KILROY WILL BE THERE

Time and the Inscrutable Oddness of Man Did the Rest

WHATEVER mystic and totally unfathomable quality it is that can turn words which have no meaning into a comfort for all the world it was captured in that inexplicably evocative bit of graffiti, "Kilroy Was Here." Not a bedouin, nor a Basque, not a Bantu, nor a Butlin camper contemplatively crouched but who has been assured by Kilroy that he has been there, that men may smile and all is right with the world.

Who is Kilroy? Ah, sweet mystery. He parades, in huge capitals, on city walls; squints, minutely, from barrack-room ceiling; giggles, naughtily, on the underside of desk lids; even shocks, irreverently, inside the covers of hymn books. Was there ever such an infiltrator? And where has he not been?

Sudden Shock

But now a sudden shock ripples round the world. Is Kilroy dead? A Mr. James J. Kilroy of Halifax, Massachusetts, has died, aged 60; the same James J. Kilroy who won a contest organized by the American Transit Association after the Second World War to establish the original Kilroy.

He claimed that he started the whole Kilroy movement when he was working in the Quincy shipyards, Massachusetts, during the war as an inspector of tanks and double bottoms. He said he used to chalk, "Kilroy was here," after his inspections to show his superiors how far he had got.

Faithful Adherents

But contest winner or not, J. J. Kilroy's claim was not unquestionably conclusive. The ever-and-everywhere-present Kilroy movement had its most faithful adherents in the early days among the men of the United States Air Force, who took it round the world; and while J. J. Kilroy was championed by Time magazine in 1946, a USAF Sergeant, Francis J. Kilroy, Jun., was named as founder by Newsweek a year earlier.

Newsweek said that when Sergeant F. J. Kilroy could not meet a posting instruction to the Boca Raton, Florida, airfield some time in 1943 his friend Sergeant James Maloney announced on the bulletin board: "Kilroy will be here next week."

Something about the baffling comicality of this announcement planted itself in the minds of the USAF, and as the real Sergeant Kilroy recorded his passing at every station the host of impersonators grew like a religious faith.

Whether the Kilroy who has been everywhere and is still on his rounds was first the physical form of J. J. Kilroy, shipyard worker, Boston city councillor and Massachusetts state representative, or Sergeant F. J. Kilroy, Jun., USAF, perhaps not even they really knew. But time and the inscrutable oddness of man have done the rest.

Exclusive Possession

For a long time Kilroy was the exclusive possession of the American forces. They scrawled his name from Florida to Berlin by every devious route known to navigation. But the world adopted Kilroy as a mascot. He became a symbol of inarticulate rebellion. Authority could paint him over and he would reappear carved. Kilroy, who helped to win the war, like Tommy Handley's Fun and the Daily Mirror's Jane, lived on to remind the governments of peace that the people watched and warned, if only from a lavatory wall.

Nearest Parallel

As a war hero, Kilroy's nearest English parallel was probably Chad, a gnome-like face with a bazooka nose peering over a wall and asking: "Wot? No fish?" Or it might be fags or beer or whatever else Jerry had denied us.

Chad, however, vanished with the ration books. Kilroy was no such fleeting thing. As long as there is a wall on which writing is forbidden, books which must not be defaced and places where trespassers will be prosecuted, Kilroy will be there.

WITH REFERENCE TO THE WHOLE WORLD

Watchdog Against the Gradual Erosion of Freedom

WHEN I tell you that I am about to stand up and scream that I have been misquoted in the newspapers, you will see at once that I am putting myself into some pretty odd company; but the words attributed to me were so remarkably idiotic that I owe it to myself to try to put the record straight. After all, if I am going to have idiocies attributed to me, I want them to be my own.

The occasion was a meeting, at International House on the UBC campus, of people interested in forming an association for the defence of civil liberties. My assignment was to speak about the "Background of Civil Liberties," and this I proceeded to do. In a speech of quite untypical brevity, I pointed out the extent to which personal liberty had been gradually whittled away in the western world in the last hundred years, and instanced the spread of authoritarian governments in this century.

Name It

From the viewpoint of the defender of individual liberty there is nothing, I said, to choose between Tsarism, Stalinism, Salazarism, Francoism, Hitlerism, Horthyism, Colonel Beckism, Titoism, Chiang Kai shekism, Syngman Rheeism, Mao Tse Tungism, Peronism, Hodiaism, Batistaism, Castroism, McCarthyism, and you name it, we'll find it.

The extent to which the citadel has been breached can be gauged by the sad state of affairs in France, once as tenacious of personal liberty as any country that ever existed, during the long struggle over Algerian independence. Everywhere one looks, the freedoms cherished by enlightened nineteenth-century liberalism have been bruised or banished.

Never Recovered

I pointed all this out, and I tried, too, to show how the long wars of them at have served to get us used to the idea of surrendering our precious liberties for a term of years; how we never really get them all back; and how even in peacetime we are told that, because of the Cold War, we cannot expect to have full freedom of speech and action.

If one complains that this is an infringement of liberty, one is told (a) that it is only by surrendering some of our liberties now that we can guard against a hypothetical loss of them at some future date or (b) that things are a damn sight worse in Russia or Cuba or Mississippi.

I tried to illustrate the logical precariousness of the first proposition by recalling the words of a superior officer behind whose chair I used to stand in 1940, watching soldiers being "weighed off." Whatever the charge—and some of them were trivial enough—the pattern was invariable.

"Don't you know there's a war on?" my pocket Napoleon would rasp to the hapless citizen before him. "Yes, sir." "Do you want the Germans to come over here and take away every bit of liberty you've got?" "No, sir." "Very well then, fourteen days to barracks." Without a shadow of a smile.

When I was talking about police states, and the suppression of political freedom I was talking generally and historically with reference to the whole world. My remarks about freedom in Canada were confined to the subject of censorship, about which I have been loquacious enough in the past to excuse myself from re-hashing the arguments all over again.

And I did mention that although everyone has the legal right to belong to any political party, it has frequently been mentioned to me that promotion is slow in some fields for people with the "wrong" politics, while it is quick for those with the "right" ones.

Religious Freedom

I quoted a reliable witness on the subject of religious freedom. A man I know well was seeking a position in higher education in British Columbia, though not in a university, some ten years ago. The head of this institution asked him what church he belonged to, and when he said "None" he was advised that his chances of getting a job were negligible unless he found a church to join. Two were mentioned as being equally advantageous to the aspirant for promotion, which I suppose you could say was freedom of a kind.

Let us hope that things have changed in the last decade, for if freedom of belief means anything at all it means the freedom to hold any belief, or none—and the second part of that is every bit as important as the first.

An organization to act as watchdog against the gradual erosion of freedom and privacy for the individual citizen may seem quite unnecessary to you, but it sounds like a good enough scheme to many people who have suffered under discriminatory legislation of one kind or another, or who have been the victims of the subtler, but no less powerful, pressures that some societies exert against the non-conformist.

Another Country

"But that was in another country," you say, like Marlowe's "Jew of Malta." Perhaps it was—and perhaps it wasn't.

It may be worth reminding yourself that life may be one thing for you, and another for the colored man in a white community, a Jew in a Christian environment, a Jehovah's Witness in Quebec, a Catholic among bigoted Protestants or the other way round, a Doukhobor before a Nelson jury, a homosexual in a ninety per cent heterosexual world, a socialist in Rotary, or a Medicare supporter at the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Medical Association.

Laws may be inviolable, but the interpretation of them has been known to bend under majority pressure. So we can do with a watchdog, but if it is to be of any value it must consist of people of all shades of political and religious opinion, and of all racial origins and backgrounds. That, more or less, is what I said.

From a study tour of Europe, Victoria artist Herbert Siebner writes: "In Florence I visited the Uffizi Galleries, where one may find some famous masterpieces. Looking out of the window, I could see the Ponte Vecchio, the Old Bridge, which served the famous Medici family. At a time when they had many enemies, it provided an escape from their home to the inner city."

Polls and Goals

Far be it from this column to make rude remarks about the city fathers; as a matter of fact, they need encouragement after taking such a momentous plunge into the parking and plaza business. Congratulations rather, are indicated, and good luck too to the owner-electors who gave them the wherewithal to do so yesterday.

SILENUS

Nevertheless there are times when one wonders what goes on in the voting booth, particularly in non-mayor years. How are the aldermen chosen? And why?

To be sure, not many take advantage of their opportunity to bring about changes in the municipal administration. People stay away in droves. This is a fact which should not be forgotten when undertaking an assessment of the motives of the voters who vote. The motives of the voters who do not vote are important, as they are the motives of the majority.

In British Columbia in recent years there has grown up a curious voting mentality; in provincial affairs, no longer does one vote for the candidate or the party of one's choice. One votes for someone else in order to keep another third party out of office.

This is what an academic political scientist would probably call a double crossover inverted negative attitude; and it is by no means impossible that this interesting attitude has slopped over into the municipal field.

Quite a number of people, experienced in municipal politics, were interviewed during the lunch hour yesterday, in the course of a survey of Victoria's voting attitudes. As was said, no rude remarks about the city fathers will ever appear here, but it would do them no harm to learn, in the first flush of their victories at the polls, that 100 per cent of those interviewed allowed as how their ballots were marked in accordance with their views as to which of the slate was the least objectionable.

If things go on like this, it will soon be hard to get anyone elected at all.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Big Boom in Books

LONDON—If the trend continues as it is now it won't be long before there will be ten times as many public libraries in Britain as there are cinemas.

The current figure for libraries is just short of 25,000—one for every 2,000 of population. The number of cinemas has dwindled to 2,641 (from 4,497 in 1955, when commercial television hit the nation).

It's a heartening thing—and a tribute to the British—to observe how television, which has been murder on so many other forms of diversion, has had no effect whatever on reading. In fact the more widespread and the more intrusive television becomes, the more the British turn to reading books.

Back in that year of 1955, when the BBC was joined by the second channel, there were 4,750,000 TV sets. This figure has now jumped to 12,000,000, which in theory is saturation point, since that's the number of households there are in this country.

But look at the figures for books taken out each year from public libraries. In 1955 the total was 302,200,000. Last year this had risen to 441,600,000.

Library authorities, trying to analyze why this is so, say that there is no simple explanation. There are a variety of contributing factors. The increase in books borrowed from the pre-war figure of 247,000,000 a year to the present 441,000,000 is influenced by such things as the shorter working week and more leisure in which to read.

Also there has been a great spread in education—more and better schools and new universities—and a better nation naturally reads more.

Likewise we are now in a higher technical and scientific age and this means a great increase in the reading and study of technical books. Even television itself has a tendency to stimulate reading. People can be prompted to read more about something that first came to their notice on TV.

But the experts feel that a big factor, if not the biggest, in Britain's present reading boom is the really wonderful public library service available free to everybody throughout the country. If good facilities are provided—whether it be anything from motorways to public conveniences—people will use them.

There are 75,000,000 books there in the public libraries for the borrowing and if you don't see what you want there the libraries will undertake to get for you, without charge, any book published in any language throughout the world.

It's quite an organization. But, after all, the British invented the public library system, more than 100 years ago.

In 1850 Parliament passed the Public Libraries Act, authorizing local authorities to levy a rate for the buying of books, which gave this country the world's first free libraries.

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Canada is reaching the point of no return on the question of whether to acquire or not acquire a nuclear punch for her contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe.

That the climax is drawing near was underlined Friday when the RCAF announced that the first CF-104 Super Starfighter squadron would be formed at Zweibrücken, West Germany, on Monday.

This aircraft is regarded by the air force as one of its proudest possessions, ideally suited for its role of strike-reconnaissance. The joy of the RCAF over obtaining the plane, however, is considerably restrained by one big factor: the lack of a government decision to equip the super-sonic aircraft with the effective striking power of tactical nuclear weapons.

PUZZLEMENT

This failure to approve equipping of the planes with nuclear warheads is a source of puzzlement and frustration not only to military minds, but also to those concerned about Canada's living up to the role assigned her by NATO.

The decision to acquire the Starfighter was made in July, 1959, when NATO military experts rearranged the weapons requirements for member nations.

Implicit in Canada's decision at that time, whether it was official or not, was the arming of these planes with nuclear warheads.

Without them, the Starfighter in a strike-reconnaissance role is considered by military experts in Canada as well as by military experts in NATO as a "gun without bullets."

MOVE INEVITABLE

Canada's eventual decision to let the RCAF have its nuclear warheads is considered inevitable by many observers in Ottawa.

The feeling is based largely on one fact—the cost of the aircraft.

The cost runs around $2 million for each plane. Total cost of the 200 Canada is getting is approximately $400 million, including support requirements, such as parts, and 22 training models which are being used at Cold Lake, Alberta, RCAF base for training flight personnel.

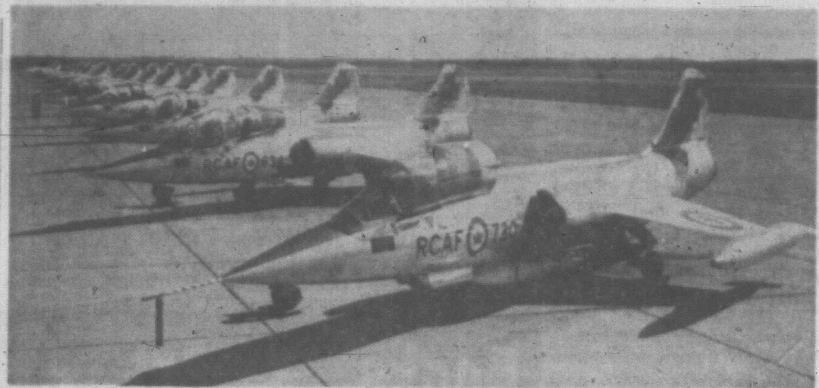

The military experts say the plane is next to useless without the nuclear warheads for which it was designed. Thus observers consider it inconceivable that any Canadian government could pour nearly half a billion dollars into the Starfighter program only to remove its punch.

The Liberal opposition, which is being careful to avoid any clear-cut policy decision of its own on nuclear warheads, is convinced the government is trying to ease the way towards public acceptance of a decision "to acquire."

GREEN VIEW CHANGES

They point to recent statements of External Affairs Minister Green, a long-time opponent of nuclear weapons in any form or for any purpose, to the effect that Canada

RCAF's 'Gun Without Bullets' May Force Nuclear Role in NATO

might have to accept tactical nuclear weapons.

(It is taken for granted by analysts of this situation that if the RCAF gets the nuclear go-ahead for its forces in Europe, then the army, with its nuclear-designed Honest John artillery pieces in Europe, will likewise get the okay; whether Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles and Voodoo interceptors in Canada would also be nuclear-equipped is another question.)

The Liberals were motivated, partly, to call on the government to set up a special committee on defence policy this session by the consideration this would give the government a good excuse to announce a nuclear-acquisition policy. But the government didn't grasp the opportunity, ruling out such a committee.

Just when the government might take the big step and let the air force have its nuclear-tipped rockets for the Starfighter is somewhat unclear at the moment.

It certainly hasn't come out of the just-ending NATO council meeting in Paris, attended by Mr. Green and Defence Minister Harkness.

But now that Canada has been selected as host country for the NATO plenary session next April or May, it would appear logical to expect the decision in two or three months.

For Canada to host this meeting without having met its commitment to NATO would be extremely embarrassing, a fact the government is unquestionably mulling over.

ONLY HOLDOUT

Of the 15 NATO member countries, Canada is the only important one to have avoided any kind of agreement about use of tactical nuclear weapons. Greece and The Netherlands have entered such deals

U.S. Tax Cut Coupled With Spending Clamp

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy said Friday night he will seek an early and significant tax cut and pledged to couple it with a clamp-down on rising federal spending.

Speaking before an audience of business leaders, Kennedy did not place any dollar figure on the amount of reduction he will seek in both personal and corporation income taxes.

Neither did he mention a specific date on which he would like to see his tax proposals take effect. In earlier public statements he had mentioned Jan. 1 as the date he preferred.

But he did argue that action should come at an early date and involve enough money to boost consumer spending, create more jobs and speed the growth of the economy.

with the U.S., with the U.S. having over-riding control of the weapons; so has West Germany.

Canadian government suggestions that for Canada to acquire these weapons would be "joining the nuclear club" are not convincing any of Canada's allies.

For the nuclear club is in fact limited to those countries with an offensive nuclear capability. Canada's acceptance of defensive nuclear weapons, either in the defensive NATO set-up in Europe or in the defensive set-up at home, would in no way expand the nuclear club.

Reds Boost 'Sea Lift' To Cuba

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union appeared determined today to keep Cuba's economic life-lines open despite possible boycotts of the island's ports by foreign shipowners.

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported the Kremlin was organizing a socialist bloc sea-lift to keep goods moving to the island from European and North African ports.

Tass said details were being worked out in talks which began here Friday and which were expected to continue today.

The news agency said East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia all had agreed in a conference at Rostok, East Germany, to provide Cuba with shipping to and from West European and British ports.

"Soviet ships, in particular, will carry all the goods sent to Cuba from ports of northern Africa and Italy," Tass said.

Tass added that the Soviet Union also has agreed to provide cargo ships for Cuba's sugar crop—the island's major export—if foreign shipowners fail to do so.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—An active storm brought rain and gale-force winds to most of the coast Friday night and caused occasional rain in the interior as it moved across that area today. Slightly cooler temperatures can be expected Sunday. In the wake of the storm the outlook is for mostly cloudy weather with widely scattered showers Sunday. Coastal winds are subsiding in the south but near the Charlottes the gusty winds will persist until this evening.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By HUGH MacLENNAN

One of the reasons why so little good fiction is being read these days is the nature of the time we live in. When people are not sure whether they will be alive or dead the next day or week, they find it almost impossible to read novels. At least they find it almost impossible if they are like me. Before the Cuban crisis exploded, I had lined up several novels I wished to read, but they are still waiting on my shelf.

Instead, I not only read, I studied, George Kennan's "Russia and the West," and the more I read of it, the easier I found it to sleep at night. For I had also read somewhere else Kennan's President John F. Kennedy.

George Kennan is probably America's deepest expert on Russia, if not on contemporary diplomatic history. For years he served in the American Embassy in Moscow and he is now American ambassador to Yugoslavia. He has a tough, cool but profoundly civilized mind.

There are few thinkers I can imagine who would scare less easily, or would be more unacceptable to the innumerable politicians and columnists who turn foreign policy into a branch of demagoguery.

Security of Soviet Power Prime Factor

For the Soviets, as Kennan sees them, if they do not have a blueprint for international policy, at least have a general strategy based on an unshakable first principle laid down by Lenin; namely this: no matter what the temptation, no matter how great the humiliation, the bastion of Soviet power must never be exposed to serious risk of annihilation.

From the October Revolution until now, Kennan shows how this principle has been evoked again and again. Had it not been for the long career of Stalin, the character of Khrushchev's Russia would be much more understandable to us than it is. For Stalin was a psychopath, a paranoiac whose major fear was not the failure of communism abroad, but its SUCCESS!

Why so? Because, as Tito and Mao have proved, a successful communist government in another land would become independent of his personal grip. That is why he used to betray German communists to the Nazis.

For this was "a man of incredible criminality, of a criminality effectively without limits... who is said to have observed that there is nothing sweeter in life than to hide the proper moment for revenge, to insert the knife, to turn it around and to go home to a good night's sleep... a man who killed, in the purges of 1936 to 1938, 1,108 out of a total of 1,966 members of the Congress, and of the Central Committee elected at that Congress, 98 out of 139—a clear majority, that is, of the body from which ostensibly he drew his authority."

To make matters even worse for Russia, this creature described by Churchill as "calculus, crafty, and an ill-informed giant," appears to have trusted only one man in his entire life. Want to guess who that man was? He was none other than Adolf Hitler.

Protective Mechanism Thing to Trust

Yet even Stalin drew back from those final acts of desperate self-will which destroyed Hitler's regime. During the war, he proved himself willing, if necessary, to retreat even into the heart of Siberia if by so doing he would keep intact the nucleus of Soviet power.

The chief lesson Kennan seems to be trying to teach the West I believe to be this: that Russia's basic protective mechanism, so strong that it outlasted Stalin's madness and Hitler's wehrmacht, is not a thing to fear but a thing to trust.

Soviet Russia (China may well turn out to be a horse of an entirely different color), may often see the West with distortion; she can be relied upon to pursue her exasperating species of power politics. But she will not resort to outright war with a major power unless she believes that such a war is sure to be forced upon her.

When he turns his experience-saddened eyes westward, Kennan hammers home still another lesson: that from 1914 until very recently, the West has crashed from one unnecessary catastrophe to another because of its frantic impatience to settle problems once and for all in regions where no problems can be settled once and for all.

Hence the war to end wars and make the world safe for democracy; hence the repeated insistence on the unconditional surrender of its enemies, with the result that Hitler sprang from Versailles and that Stalin, after Casablanca, was virtually guaranteed possession of most of eastern Europe.

Kennan concludes one chapter with a statement I would like to see placed on billboards all over North America: "Let us not repeat the mistake of believing that either good or evil is total. Let us beware, in future, of wholly condemning an entire people and wholly exculpating others."

"Let us remember that the great moral issues, on which civilization is going to stand or fall, cut across military and ideological borders, classes and regimes—across, in fact, the make-up of the human individual himself. No other people, as a whole, is entirely our enemy."

"No people at all—not even ourselves—is entirely our friend."

WAR IN THE PACIFIC

A Kaleidoscopic View In Fine Work of Fiction

In discussing techniques of fiction, one normally dismisses the Second Person Point of View as impractical, a method that cannot normally be sustained throughout even a short story, let alone a novel.

In his first novel The Mountain and the Feather, John Ashmead not only successfully defies any such strictures, but gives us a whirling kaleidoscopic view of the Pacific War, including the whole gamut of human experiences and emotions: from love to hate, from cowardice to bravery.

Here we follow the adventures of Ensign Monty Classen, assigned to the Joint Command Intelligence Section, Pearl Harbor, February, 1943; through his many experiences in Hawaii, on various beach assaults, on into the Philippines, and to his ultimate death at two Jima.

LIFELIKE Mr. Ashmead has assembled an excellent cast of characters who spring readily to life so

ART IN REVIEW

By DON HARVEY

Paintings Happy Thought As a Gift Solution

It is almost impossible to make an assessment of a painter without seeing a body of his work. Jury shows are deceptive and often-chancy in terms of recognition or evaluation, because without some previous knowledge of the artist and his forms the selectors have no rationale for individual appraisal.

Of course it is possible to say that such and such is a fine painting, isolated from any association, but to do so is to imply that the painting is an independent totality to be judged solely on its particular merits.

There are many who hold this view which stems from the "aesthetic impact" theory of Clive Bell, and for an exhibition juror this must often needs be his only choice. Of course, the converse is true: many a painter gets into a show through past glories rather than present performance.

But an individual painting though complete in the sense of being finished is usually part of a chain of formative experimentation. Experimentation is used here not in the sense of practise or rehearsal but in the sense of exploration. This is particularly true of many modern painters who work without elaborate planning but with wondrous adventure on the canvas. I can hear a chorus of "I told you so—they don't know what they're up to."

GROUP SHOW Some painters form groups. They do this sometimes for protection and sometimes accidentally, or more naturally with a common purpose in the formation of new ideas. At any rate if they put on their own exhibition they are free from the whims and biases of jurors.

At present there is a group show on at The Point. The Point group exhibition currently consists of Richard Cicimara, Fleming-Jorgensen, Nita Forrest, Molly Privett, Michael Morris and Bill West. Herbert Siebner originally founded this group and many of them are more than indebted to his influence.

Cicimara of course is no exception of Siebner and brings a different and more personal approach to the exhibition. Morris, whilst benefitting greatly from several "tutors" is already well away from any local influence in his work. The exhibition is a Christmas sale show of the group and with an understanding eye to the market (not to mention constrictions of exhibition space) it is made up mostly of small drawings, water-colors, gouaches, etc., at reasonable prices, and there are unqueshinted at and then clarified ideas of the suicidal attack culminating in the Kamikaze, one of which is, of course, the cause of Classen's death.

The second unifying thread is the use of conjured up "excerpts" from Major Begel's Battle of Visaya Gulf, a skilful adaptation of Morrison's Battle of Leyte Gulf.

No wonder, then, that Classen should ruminate both historically and presently: "In the next war will whole nations encircle each other? Like suicide pilots looking for a place to ram?"

This is a fascinating book. It is designed to help both the student and the ordinary reader of the Bible, but even those who have not darkened a church door since their baptism will be attracted, if not by the 26 full color maps, then by the text describing how archeologists have managed to unearth and locate so many places mentioned in both the old and new testaments.

The Bible is many things, and among them it is history. It is also a perennial "best seller." But for the interested layman, to read the Bible without a knowledge of the land in which the events took place is like being in a rain-storm without ever knowing the shape of a cloud.

Both text and maps in the Oxford Bible Atlas are written

Cathedral Organist Vital Factor In Developing Cultural Standards

By AUDREY ST. DENYS JOHNSON

Busiest man of music in Victoria at the moment, is almost certainly Richard Proudman, organist and choirmaster of Christ Church Cathedral.

There is — except for a minimum number of sleeping hours — scarcely a moment of any day or night of the week when he is not engaged in some activity related to the Nativity season at the Cathedral.

Under the imaginative and energetic guidance of this young musician — Mr. Proudman is only 32 years old — and with the co-operation of a Dean and Chapter, the Cathedral is crowning a year rich in musical experience and exploration, with what is in effect, a glorious and record-making festival of Christmas music.

Much lovely music is provided by various churches within and about Victoria, but it is most consonant with the tradition and stature of a cathedral, that it should provide a centre, a source of inspiration and an influence in the performance of the finest in sacred music and dramatic art.

In keeping with such an ideal, Christ Church Cathedral this season, hosts a performance of Handel's "Messiah," Monday night, while the choirboys went forth from the Cathedral this afternoon to provide a program of carols for one of the city's leading fine arts organizations.

On Sunday, Dec. 23, at CATHEDRAL choir boy, John Peter, will sing role of "Amahl" in Menotti's sacred opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors" being repeated at the Cathedral after three years, in response to insistent demand. It opens seven performances Dec. 27.

4 p.m., the stirring Festival of Nine Lessons and Carols will be performed by the boys' and adult choirs and the Cathedral Handbell Ringers. And on the evening of Dec. 27 will come the first of seven performances of the ethereal and moving music-drama, "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

At the heart of all these activities Mr. Proudman functions at full tempo, but without heroics or bluster.

While the "Messiah" is being presented by an outside body — Victoria Choral Society — under its permanent director, Rodney Webster, Mr. Proudman as the society's official accompanist has assisted in preparing the performance, and will carry a massive role at the organ on Monday, particularly in the absence this year, of orchestral accompaniment.

Training of boy soloists, choir rehearsals and musical direction of "Amahl" are a few of the undertakings that make the organist a fleeting figure at home and almost a myth to his non-musically active friends.

The year now drawing to a close has seen the cathedral offer scope to the best of local singers and instrumentalists in recitals of fine sacred music; internationally famous

RECORD EXTRAS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Producer Dino De Laurentiis is claiming title for using the largest number of costumed extras in a single sequence — 28,500. The mobs were used for filming of "Barabba" in Verona, Italy.

RAVES FOR LYNN SEYMOUR; 'ONE OF THE VERY FEW'

LONDON (CP) — Vancouver ballerina Lynn Seymour is praised for a remarkable achievement as the star in a Royal Ballet production Thursday night of Kenneth Macmillan's "The Invitation."

The 23-year-old dancer plays the role of a young girl whose brisk and brutal seduction provided the ballet's main theme.

"Miss Seymour moved in a sublime sincerity, acting out her pathetic role with more nuance and sensitivity than she has revealed before," says The Daily Telegraph. The Manchester Guardian says Miss Seymour is one of the two or three most natural dancers in all the Royal Ballet Company "in the sense that there seems to be a fluent grace in her every movement and that she dances from top to toe."

"She is one of the very few who can really act a role through the movement of a dance."

The Times says Miss Seymour's performance "is as dramatically convincing as anything to be found in contemporary ballet."

organists have been brought to its console; and the memorable pageantry of a Victoria College Baccalaureate service, visit of the Princess Royal and the colorful service of consecration of a Bishop have been celebrated within its walls.

And who is the musical mentor in all this? From whence did he come?

Richard Proudman is an Englishman with an English musician's unrivalled training in the performance of church music.

He holds Master's and Music Bachelor degrees from Cambridge University (King's College); he is an Associate of the Royal College of Music in organ performance and a Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music in piano accompaniment.

After leaving Cambridge for 18 months he taught various musical subjects at the Royal Normal College for the Blind at Shrewsbury in England, then went back to Cambridge for post-graduate studies leading to his Mus. Bac. (Cantab.) degree.

As a boy, during the war, he lived with the Koerner family in Vancouver and attended St. George's School there, before returning to England and Rugby School.

CHOSE CANADA

Happy memories of that period lead him to turn down an interesting senior teaching post at Huddersfield, Yorkshire, in favor of returning to Canada.

The winter of 1955 he spent packing china in a Toronto department store. What he principally remembers about this experience was that he was always cold.

Asked if this means there is little danger of the west losing him to the east, he is equivocal. "At least," he comments, "I am looking forward to going back to Toronto next summer. I'm to be holiday replacement for Dr. Peaker at the great organ of St. Paul's."

Ettore Mazzoleni of the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto, probably did Victoria an even greater service than he realized when he recommended that Richard Proudman should be music master.

The young musician, still in his 20s, spent three years there, and concurrently was choirmaster at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay.

"I feel that this experience gave me a splendid ground-work in the particular aspects of Canadian church music and choirs," he tells you.

He was appointed to the Cathedral post in 1959, but in the six years he has resided in Victoria his musical roles have been many.

IN DEMAND

He became accompanist and assistant chorus conductor of the Victoria Choral Society in 1957 — "it's the longest time I have managed to stay with one job" — and has assisted in training this chorus group in such major works as Mendelssohn's "Elijah," Bach's St. John Passion and Brahms' Requiem.

In addition he is in much demand as an accompanist and has appeared in this important role at Musical Art Society concerts, Oak Bay Beach Hotel Sunday Evening recitals, and John Dunbar's television program. Duo piano recitals with Malcolm Hamilton and "pop" organ recitals at Butchart Gardens have added variety to his local career.

Crowded and swift-paced as his life is, Mr. Proudman can usually be found somewhere in the Cathedral precinct, practising or teaching on one of the two organs or in his southwest tower studio busy with one of his some 30 students, or studying choral scores.

He acknowledges a great debt of gratitude, first to the influence of the matchless chapel choir of King's College, Cambridge, and its great late conductor, Dr. Boris Ord; and second, to his happy fortune in working with a clergy in Victoria who value music's inspirational help and encourage him to enrich the service at the cathedral with the fullest majesty.

Whether he is planning a sacred opera, installing a gallery organ, sponsoring a boys' choir camp or bringing in such world-famous organists as German and Francis Jackson, Mr. Proudman admits that his immediate superior (even though an Oxford man) is the firm and invaluable ally that makes all possible.

He does not like to talk of his work without also paying warm tribute to the loyal enthusiasm of his choir and to two highly talented people; his own assistant, youthful Catherine Shore (who is also choir-master and organist of St. Philip's Church) and Winifred Milburn who has helped him on numerous occasions when a second organist was essential.

"Both musicians have a real sense of what the Cathedral service demands," Mr. Proudman remarks. "I know that the novelty of Cathie's playing of a Voluntary on the little 1861 organ in the West Gallery has been greatly enjoyed by visitors."

His adult choir he describes as "a dedicated group of amateur musicians who have carried through the seemingly endless succession of majestic services with hardly ever a slip and with excellent attendance. They are a fine team and I learn as much from them as they do from me, often more," he says.

A special source of pride is his boys' choir which is developing well and more and more often sings its own anthem at morning service.

Mr. Proudman and his wife, Beryl, who has a keen and critical ear for choral work, live with their four small children at 1624 Hampshire Road.

Looking with an optimistic eye at Victoria, he feels it has the greatest kind of potential for a coming cultural development.

In his own sphere — "one has only to see the keen young organ students and younger choir members that are beginning to come to the Cathedral," he points out.

The tenets of his musical faith are that church standards, his own and others, must and will rise, and that a careful performance of a good, simple piece of music is preferable to attempting a work that demands greater forces than are momentarily available.

In order to live up to those tenets, he drives himself and his associates hard, but always with a high heart and good will.

"I have never thought of myself as a success," the star commented recently. "I don't know why not. I just don't feel that I've made it yet."

The burly Quinn's shoulders hunch together and the dark eyes narrow as he explains further: "I hope all these experiences will add up to the role I eventually want to play. I don't know what that is but I have a vision — a combination of Lear and Quixote."

"Tehin-Tehin," which he will perform at the Plymouth until April, is the second round of what he plans as a regular work regimen, splitting activities between the theatre and cinema.

The script came his way while he was making "Lawrence of Arabia," one of the three Quinn films now in release. The others are "Barabba" and "Requiem for a Heavyweight."

"Going back and forth every 18 months or so is, I feel, a fine re-evaluation of my work," he says. "Not only the being on stage itself, but in adjusting back into some kind of social life. When I'm making films I'm comparatively a hermit."

"Although Quinn, 46, began his screen career 25 years ago, he feels that only with "La Strada" in 1957 did he attain the prestige that enables him "to get to do what I want to do." What happened before was mostly training for Quinn, who holds two Oscars.

"I made about 80 pictures and I can remember the names of maybe 10."

GLYNIS GAME FOR ANYTHING

Prestige, Dollar Complex Cripples Hollywood Actors

By JOAN SWEENEY

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Hollywood actors are concerned with polishing their prestige instead of their performances, according to British actress Glynis Johns.

Fear of lowering their prestige is responsible for the narrow range of their acting accomplishments, the vivacious blonde contended. They will not accept a challenging, but small, role and they think television is beneath them.

"They don't understand there is only one prestige and that's good work," said Miss Johns, who was nominated for an Academy Award for her performance in "The Sun-Downers."

She believes the reason for this preoccupation with prestige is that "Hollywood is too far from Broadway." She said that in England everything is centred around London, and English actors are eager to take a good part, regardless of its size.

"There, acting comes first, while here money comes first," Miss Johns said. She herself has chalked up an impressive list of performances ranging from farce to drama on the stage, screen and television.

The green-eyed actress loves television because it gives her an opportunity, which she would not otherwise have, to do a variety of roles.

She tackles such a part this fall in a "Have Gun, Will Travel" episode. The script has only three characters, and two of them — a very old Chinese lady and her granddaughter — are played by Miss Johns.

She was as excited as a two-year-old Christmas morning about working out the voice patterns and makeup for a cultured old Chinese lady.

Her zest for unusual roles includes a desire to play a heavy in a western.

"I want to be a two-gun Gertie," she said. "I'm not going to be the girl lifted off the stage in all those skirts."

Practically nothing will keep Miss Johns from accepting a role unlike one she has done before. For instance, she was leaving for the airport to return to her home in Switzerland when she was offered the part of a nun in the "Dr. Kildare" television series.

"I'd never played a nun before so naturally I couldn't turn it down," she explained with an engaging grin.

As a result of her performance, she was asked to do a pilot for an hour-long dramatic series based on the nun she had portrayed in the episode. But she turned it down.

"It's too much of a strain to play a highly dramatic character in an hour-long series week after week," she said. Miss Johns would like to do a musical film. As a matter of fact, she was a child prodigy as a dancer. She was about to join the famed Sadler Wells ballet when she tried out for and won a part in an Old Vic production. A second role followed and dancing was relegated to an avocation.

"I need an incentive for dancing," she said. "If I knew I was going to be in a musical I would start practising again."

"Of course," she added with a quizzical look, "the singing will have to be of a special type."

Temperance Movie Has Oscar Potential

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Despite its cheery title "Days of Wine and Roses" is anything but merry entertainment for the holiday season.

It is the screen's strongest temperance tract since "The Wet Parade" (MGM-1932). Yes, even stronger than "The Lost Weekend," which at least has some sober moments and a sprinkling of laughs.

"Wine and Roses" is an unrelenting downward slide of a modern couple ensnared in a purposeless existence. There is hope for one of them at the close, but the other seems unable to climb out of the mire.

"We're a threesome," says Jack Lemmon to his wife, played by Lee Remick, "you, me and booze." That just about sums up the plot.

Then what makes the movie notable? The performances.

OSCAR CANDIDATE AGAIN
"Wine and Roses" may well supply the starring Oscar that has eluded Lemmon these last two years. He won as a supporting actor for "Mister Roberts" in 1955, but ran out of the money as star in "Some Like It Hot" and "The Apartment."

He is overdue. No American actor is more of a delight to watch; none is more versatile. In this film he is again the rising young executive, at odds with business morality, but he abandons any comedy tricks for sheer dramatics.

His descent into alcoholism is horrendous. He has the screaming DT's in a violent ward. He writhes strapped to a table in a drying room. But the most memorable scene in the film — and in recent times — is when he wrecks a hothouse full of flowers in search of a secreted bottle.

Not far behind Lemmon in the acting honors is Lee Remick, an accomplished, naturalistic actress who uses no tricks of personality. She is perfectly believable as the non-drinking girl who gets married and decides it is easier to drink along with her imbibing husband.

She is not given as many startling scenes and her motivations are poorly defined; but her degradation is starkly effective nonetheless.

What keeps "Wine and Roses" from achieving greatness is a lack of definition and over-all intent. Is it merely a tract? Then it succeeds. But if its creators were aiming at a commentary on modern morals, they accomplish this only fitfully.

DOUBLE CELEBRATION
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Former Vienna choir boy Peter Weick celebrates both his 31st feature film and his first film for Walt Disney as choir director Max Heller in "Almost Angels," a film featuring the world-famous choir.

He is overdue. No American actor is more of a delight to watch; none is more versatile. In this film he is again the rising young executive, at odds with business morality, but he abandons any comedy tricks for sheer dramatics.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Takeover Bids Feature

By PETER DUNN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A handful of highlights helped ease disappointment over another dismal performance by Canadian stock markets this week.

Foremost among the attention-getters was Gunnar Mining, which reacted to a surprise bid for control by racing through unprecedented daily volume en route to its best price of the year.

A group headed by Teck-Hughes Gold Mines offered $11 each for 1,300,000 Gunnar shares. J. S. LaBine, Gunnar president, fired off telegrams to shareholders advising them to defer action on the bid.

Gunnar traded more than 700,000 shares on the week, climbing to a year's peak of $11.25. It closed at $11, ahead $1.95. Teck-Hughes touched a 1962 high of $1.62 before easing to $1.64, up eight cents.

OFFER INCREASED

Stedman Brothers, Canada-wide retail store chain, saw brisk action following news that a takeover offer, first announced anonymously last week, had been increased.

The bidder was revealed as Gamble-Skogmo Inc., United States retail chain with outlets in Western Canada. Its initial offer, $17.50 each for 630,000 Stedman shares, was boosted to $20 each and extended to cover all shares outstanding.

G. H. Stedman, president, advised shareholders to reject the first bid, but said he found the new terms acceptable.

The stock traded as high as $20.12—best this year—closing at $19.87, ahead $2.37.

In general, industrials drifted lower, with papers pacing the decline. Abitibi and Consolidated Paper both dropped more than $1.

OTHERS MIXED

Most other groups were mixed, with price swings confined to narrow ranges. Base metals moved lower on average, with such key issues as International Nickel, Hudson Bay Mining and Falconbridge dropping as much as $1.50.

In the oils, Canada Southern climbed to a year's high of $5.60 on speculation over the results of drilling on company property in northern British Columbia. It lost all the gain, however, closing at $4.85, down 20 cents on the week.

HELIPORT now under construction tops New York City's Pan Am building, left, the world's largest office structure, scheduled for completion next March. Connected with Grand Central Terminal, its 2,400,000 feet of floor space will accommodate 25,000 office workers in a 60-story, 808-foot-high oblong-based tower. The 18 escalators and 63 elevators are engineered to handle its city-size number of occupants, plus a quarter-million sightseers daily. They'll come by train, subway, on foot, and in the cars which will fill the building's 400-car garage. Copters, such as one shown, right, will give service to New York's three airports and to the New York World's Fair during '64 and '65.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Bitter Proxy Fight for Gunnar

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

The battle for control of Gunnar Mining Ltd., the 30-year-old gold mining company founded by brothers Charles and Gilbert LaBine which became Canada's pioneer uranium producer, is shaping up as one of the hottest and most exciting proxy fights seen in Canada for many a year.

The company, headed by Gilbert LaBine's son Joseph, is being besieged by Norman Kevel's Teck-Hughes Gold Mines Ltd. group with the assistance of Charles LaBine who is still a director of Gunnar.

Victoria shareholders of Gunnar Friday received telegrams from the company urging them not to act on the Teck-Hughes offer to purchase 1,300,000 shares at $11. A follow-up letter from the company will also recommend that shareholders take no action until they have a chance to study the proposed $16 million acquisition of McNamara Corp., big Canadian construction firm.

Charles LaBine is soliciting proxies to be voted against the McNamara deal and in a letter to shareholders has questioned the wisdom of paying $8 million in cash plus 800,000 Gunnar treasury shares for the company.

"Why, when now at last we have adequate money in Gunnar to be a major force in developing Canadian natural resources, should we become, if effect, merely bankers for a construction company?" he asks.

The Teck-Hughes offer, which joined the investment community Wednesday night, was made through Guaranty Trust Company and expires next Friday, but it may be extended if the full number of shares has not been tendered at that time. If more than 1,300,000 shares are tendered Teck-Hughes retains the option of buying the excess or buying on a pro rata basis.

However, Gunnar president Joseph LaBine has countered by intimating to shareholders that the Teck-Hughes offer may be no more than a dodge to gain temporary voting control to wreck the McNamara deal.

He warned that the trust company acting for Teck-Hughes "is not obliged to purchase any shares of Gunnar unless 1,300,000 shares and the proxies representing those shares are deposited by the closing date."

"You may find that the proxies will be voted against approval of the purchase of McNamara Corp. even though Guaranty Trust decides not to purchase any shares because less than 1,300,000 have been deposited."

The Gunnar chief also warned that the purchase offer calls for payment "as soon as practicable" after the closing date.

"We have no information," he said, "as to when it may be practicable for the purchase price to be paid."

ford and the major oil companies said they didn't know what their dealers were charging.

Dividend payments by Canadian companies for 1962 are the highest in history for the fourth consecutive year, according to a report from J. R. Timmins and Co.

The total of $914,000,000 is 10 per cent above the previous record of $825,000,000 in 1961, 18 per cent ahead of the $770,000,000 in 1960 and 192 per cent above the pre-war peak of $313,000,000 in 1938.

All four groups—industrials, mines, utilities and institutions—report record payments to shareholders with International Nickel leading the list as Canada's largest single dividend payer. Inco's payments this year of $53,800,000 represents 31 per cent of total mining dividends. Bell Telephone is second with $52,600,000 or 38 per cent of the utilities' dividends.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Weather, Strikes Hit Yule Buying

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy reaffirmed this week that he would ask Congress for a quick U.S. income tax cut but there was evidence that clear sailing through Congress is doubtful.

Taxes and weather were the most talked about influences on business.

ECM Has Little Effect on Most Canadian Firms

TORONTO (CP)—A survey by the Canadian office of the National Industrial Conference Board shows that more than 80 per cent of Canadian companies have been entirely unaffected by development of the European Common Market.

The NICB is an independent and non-profit institution for business and industrial fact finding through scientific research.

The survey said that most of the remaining 20 per cent report the effect has been favorable.

Canada Develops New Aerial Drone

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's limited, Montreal, has been awarded two government contracts totalling $1,700,000 for design and development of a battlefield surveillance drone for the Canadian Army, it was disclosed Friday.

The short-range drone, controlled from the ground, would take photographs of enemy positions to determine targets.

Authorities said they hope the drone, another step in battlefield automation, will be adopted by Britain and the United States.

New Bank Building Looks Like Home

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Bank of Nova Scotia is building a $100,000 branch here that looks exactly like an expensive house. It's complete with reinforced concrete, post and beam construction, shake roof, wood siding, planter boxes and even picture windows and drapes.

Inside, it's all bank of course. But the business proposition is to be met by exposed wood beams and warm colors.

Proponents of a tax cut retroactive to next Jan. 1 cautioned that precipitate action wouldn't be looked upon with favor and some said the economy was good enough to get along without tampering with taxes.

WILL SEEK CUT

President Kennedy told his conference Wednesday he would ask Congress for an early, substantial income tax reduction when it convenes in January.

Statements of cautious optimism about the outlook for next year came from several quarters. Ladd Plimley, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, predicted 1963 will be "a good but not a boom year." He said a tax cut "could go a long way toward restoring more satisfactory economic growth."

Henry Ford II, in his traditional year-end statement, said the country needs a sharp advance in investment spending and a broad tax cut "to give the economy enough momentum to carry it past rough spots without stalling."

Automobile production this week spurred to another weekly record for this year. The output of an estimated 175,000 passenger cars was second only to the December, 1955, pace. Last week poor weather held production to 169,159.

The automakers, who have been building their cars with steel pulled out of big stockpiles amassed early this year in anticipation of a strike that never came, have begun buying as much of the metal as they use.

Steel output last week was an estimated 1,838,000 tons, off one per cent from the previous week.

Tug Company Takes Over Barge Firm

VANCOUVER (CP)—All assets of Vancouver Barge Transportation Ltd., have been acquired by Vancouver Tug Boat Co. Ltd., it was announced Friday.

Vancouver Barge provides general cargo services to Victoria, Nanaimo, Courtenay, Powell River, Westview, Blubber Bay and Vananda. It will continue to operate under its old name, but its fleet of four tugs and 12 barges will be repainted in Vancouver Tug colors.

Vancouver Tug, one of the largest operations on the coast, specializes in transportation of chips, hog fuel, pulp and newspaper, and limonite.

Dig a root of rhubarb for forcing in greenhouse or basement. It should be left out in frost if possible for a couple of nights for best results.

Special 'Prep' Needed When Painting Metals

Wash Light Bulbs

Clean light bulbs give better light. Wash the bulbs but don't dunk them. The bases of the bulbs are cemented to the glass and too much moisture may loosen the cement. Make sure the bulbs are dried well before using them.

By MR. FIX

Sometime in your painting chores around the house there will come a moment when you will have to paint a metal surface.

Since rust and corrosion will quickly deteriorate untreated metal it is especially important to do the job correctly.

Simply continuing with the paint brush using the same kind of paint you are using on the wall is not good enough. But, with proper undercoating, you can make the finished surface the same as the surface around the metal using the very same paint.

REMOVE JOB

Remove old paint with emery cloth and steel wool. Clean up rust the same way. Wipe the clean surface with some solvent so that no grease or oil is present.

Then prime the area. Red lead for many years was the traditional paint for this job. It still is so far as many people are concerned. But primers containing zinc chromate are becoming popular because they dry more quickly than red lead.

When the primer is dry, put on the finish coat. For outdoors this can be any good house paint.

Much of this work has been

Test Points For Rug Pile

To judge the depth and density of a rug pile, you should study the "profile" of the rug to see how high the pile is. And you should bend the sample in half to see the "grain"—which is the extent the fibres part to reveal the backing.

Both observations will give you a good comparison between rugs which may otherwise seem the same.

To test for the resiliency which makes a good carpet recover height of its pile quickly after it has been walked on, press down on the pile with your hand.

If the rug fails to regain its pile height as you let go, the rug is probably made of one of the cheaper materials, such as viscose, or of a natural fibre of low quality.

eliminated by the one-step rust preventive paints, primer and finish coat combined in one product. With this sort of paint it may be necessary that only the loose, flaking rust be removed. The paint should penetrate the small amount left on the surface of the metal and check it from spreading.

When it comes to painting galvanized metal another problem is encountered. Paint will not adhere to a new galvanized surface. Better to wait six months or so while the metal weathers. Since the zinc coating is there to protect the surface from rusting anyway, it isn't likely that you will run into trouble while you wait.

If you are in a hurry though, there are special primers for this purpose. Or you can etch the surface, artificially weathering it by wiping it with vinegar. Rinse quickly with clear water and clean with a solvent.

Indoors, if you paint radiators, take the same preliminary steps you would for metal surfaces outdoors. Paint when the radiators are cool.

HOUSING HINTS

Q. What assistance is available for the purchase of older houses?

A. There are a number of ways to finance the purchase of existing houses. First, a loan may be obtained from a lending institution such as a life insurance or trust and loan company. In 1961 these companies invested more than 300 million dollars in mortgages on existing residential properties.

Mortgage loans made by lending institutions on their account—that is, not under the National Housing Act—are known as conventional loans. Private mortgage loans are also available from real estate companies, private corporations, trustees of estates and individuals.

Q. Why do many people choose to build a house rather than buy a ready-built one?

A. There are several reasons why a prospective homeowner might choose to build. He might, for example, have difficulty in finding a ready-built house that fits his needs and tastes. Perhaps there are some special features he would like to have incorporated in his new home and by building he can have the house tailored exactly to his needs.

In addition, the location of available houses for sale might not be satisfactory for his family or he may already own a choice lot in a desirable neighborhood. All of these are valid reasons for building rather than buying a house.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Hours of Darkness Chief Factor In Flowering Most House Plants

By JACK BEASTALL

It hardly seems possible that the number of hours of daylight in Southern California, Mexico, Peru or China could be of importance to indoor gardeners and their pot plants.

In fact, many of us rarely consider the length of day or night as being any different from that in our own hometown unless we have visited areas a few thousand miles to the north or the south.

Travelling north in summer, the days become longer and the nights shorter until we reach the land where the sun barely dips beyond the horizon before rising again for the next day and daylight is continuous.

The same journey in winter would take us into shorter days, longer nights, and eventually to the place where midday is nothing more than a glow in the southern sky.

Going in the opposite direction, to the south, the days and nights become more equal in length as we approach the equator, and they remain that way summer and winter in the tropics.

This difference in the length of daylight and its effects on plants has been subjected to much study in the past and eventually led to the classifying of plants according to the length of the days at the time of flowering.

For a period all horticultural publications devoted much space to long-day plants, those which flower during summer in the north temperate zone, and short-day plants that flower in spring or fall in the same region.

During the study the feasibility of flowering a plant out of season by extending or decreasing the hours of daylight became apparent and suitable electric lights and light-proof shading cloth were soon being produced.

Commercial flower growers were quick to recognize the possibilities, but the results were not consistent with those of the laboratory, and the research teams were soon deep in a mire of questions for which they had no answers.

Out of this came the discovery that hours of total darkness are more important than the hours of daylight, and then this classification changed to long-night (winter flowering) and short-night (summer flowering).

Light Check Flowers

The sensitivity of plants to light is shown in the experience of a firm producing carnations in a large range of greenhouses where plants in the 30-foot end sections of several benches were consistently late in coming into flower.

The cause of this delay was eventually traced to the lights in an adjoining boiler room being turned on for about 15 minutes at midnight while the engineer attended to the fires, thus breaking the hours of continuous darkness.

Some local gardeners have had similar experiences when a new and more powerful street light has been installed at an intersection adjoining the garden, or a well-lighted shopping plaza erected on lots the other side of the street. The extended hours of light have upset the flowering times of susceptible plants.

In laboratory tests a break of one minute in the period of total darkness by turning on a light at midnight resulted in a week to ten days delay in flowering for some plants.

Not Green Thumb

Already you will have guessed at the relationship between the hours of daylight in the parts of the world from which we obtain our indoor plants and the hours of light they receive in the average home.

It explains why so many indoor plants have never been known to flower for their owner, and why the plants in a neighbor's greenhouse bloom regularly. It is not the result of a green thumb, but of uninterrupted darkness.

Poinsettias need hours of light and darkness comparable with those of Southern California at this time of year, which is almost the same as local conditions, that is, sunset around four in the afternoon and sunrise about eight in the morning.

To flower these plants with success in the home it is necessary to keep them in a dark room, or even a lightproof cupboard, from sunset to sunrise.

When these plants fail to produce the large colored leaves that surround the tiny flowers it is usually due to their period of total darkness being reduced from 16 hours to around eight or nine hours through being in a room where artificial lighting is used until nearly midnight. The same applies to the Christmas flowering cactus which often has its flowering time delayed until February in a well lighted home.

Experimenting with light and darkness on plants can be a fascinating experience, and the indoor gardener who follows it will eventually be in the enviable position of being able to flower most indoor plants.

You are invited to submit questions on insurance and similar matters for inclusion in this column. The origin of such queries is kept entirely confidential.

Q. I often take my utility trailer out into the country and return with a load of wood. Should part of the load spill in front of an oncoming car, thereby causing an accident, does my automobile insurance policy cover me?

A. YES. Utility trailers, whether owned by you or not, are automatically included under the liability insurance of your private car. The risk of loading and unloading is not excluded, and therefore, is also covered.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Late blooming chrysanthemums in pots must be kept damp enough, yet have sufficient warm air circulating around the plants to prevent mildew. Pick off yellow leaves.

Freezies are forming buds now, and will stand a little warmer temperature and weekly feeding. Thrust twiggy stakes around the pot edges to support the leaves.

If gloxinia corms are on hand they can be repotted into fresh soil to start them growing in a warm place for flowering in May.

Geranium cuttings which have rooted may be put into three-inch pots if space is available. Otherwise keep them in rooting pot in a cool place with as little water as possible but good light until late January.

Run the pronged cultivator across the bulb beds, carefully watching for daffodil tips which are beginning to come through. The cultivator will disturb weed seedlings and break the crust made by heavy rains.

Planting of shrubs and trees can continue in soil which is not too wet and sticky.

Check nurseries for plant gifts for family and friends.

All garden produce in storage, whether it is fruit, vegetables, corms, tubers or bulbs, should be checked frequently. Mild weather and dampness can do much damage if spoiled produce is not promptly removed.

The more solid heads of winter cabbage should be the first ones cut for use, since they are most easily split by frost.

Kale can be used at any time by cutting two or three medium size leaves from each plant to keep more young growth coming. Frost has no damaging effect on kale. In fact improves the flavor, but be sure there are no air spaces around the stems at soil level. Press soil with foot to keep it close and firm.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. My indoor azaleas were doing fine and I thought they would be blooming for Christmas, but now I find the buds have all dried up and a lot of new shoots have grown. How can I get flowers on them? P.D., Cobble Hill, B.C.

A. Watch for the next lot of buds to form, and then nip off all new growths which appear at the base of the buds. Your plants will probably bloom very well later if you keep them well watered.

Q. When is the earliest that I could sow lettuce seed? T.J., Saanich.

A. Lettuce seed will germinate in a temperature around 45 deg. F., so that if you have a slightly heated greenhouse you can start a few seed at any time. (Or start them in a cool room.) The seedlings can then be transplanted to a raised coldframe as described earlier in this column and with care will give you nice little heads by about mid-March. Use either All-Year-Round variety, or one of the winter lettuce May King (which is the same as May Queen), or Standard Park.

Good Time at 'Frisco Launched Gorge Soccer Plan

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Hampton Park, 10 o'clock Saturday morning, is a sight to behold.

Three games going at the same time... In another area, a team works out, sans goal posts... And remaining space, if any, is gratefully accepted by young fads of seven and eight, learning fundamental movements of soccer...

Every piece of ground is utilized, and therein lies a success story.

The story of the Royal Gorge Soccer Association.

Success is such that association president Don Wakelyn worries about the future.

"We're all right now," he says, "but this thing is growing faster than we anticipated. We may run into trouble... (with manpower)... in a few years from now."

"This thing" is a soccer association catering to some 250 youngsters. It's a thing that draws kind words of praise from the likes of Wally Milligan, manager of Victoria United; District League president Ed Viggers; and Jamie Costain and Len Isaacson of the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile League.

It all started because the Gorge team from the District League's first division accepted an invitation to play in San Francisco.

"They all had such a good time in San Francisco, the boys felt they owed something to soccer," said Wakelyn. When the team returned, some of the players approached George Kulai to see what, if anything, could be done about it.

Actually, it was a plan that had been kicking around for several years but one that could never be carried because of the lack of personnel.

"Well, we found our help... drafted a constitution... and then approached the juvenile league to see if they could give up a park, one for which we could be wholly responsible."

The park was Hampton. The first team sponsored by the Royal Gorge Association was entered in the juvenile league's seventh division two years ago.

Players from the senior Gorge side shelled out to sponsor the first team. Each man paid $5 towards strip and equipment.

This year, the Gorge group sponsored a total of seven teams, from divisions four to seven, in addition to a four-team Little League.

Last year, 15 men directly associated with the senior team (including executives as well as players) helped, in one way or another, to guide minor team.

"We've had a number of parents come out to help," says Wakelyn, "but there's at least one senior player with each juvenile team."

"Basically, however, we're interested in full participation. Championships are fine, but the most important thing is that every boy who registers gets a chance to play."

Wakelyn, a long-time booster of minor soccer, feels it would be "comparatively simpler" for each of the District League's other first division teams to inaugurate similar plans.

Actually, Victoria West comes close to matching Gorge's program. Working hand in hand with the Evening Optimists service club, West's personnel guide about five teams in the juvenile league.

The list of workers is long, but Wakelyn, head coach Kulai and secretary Ian Holroyd are the spark-plugs that make the Royal Gorge Association a growing thing.

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

NEW YORK—Athletes cherish their own achievements. It is rare when one demands himself to celebrate another's greatness. But Jimmy Brown invites chivalry in the football players on the other teams. They consider his reputation a trophy that belongs to their whole generation.

It is as though the diminishment of his honorably famous skills were a rebuke to every one of them personally. They want him to endure as long as he can as if part of them would be defaced by his decline.

In sleet and gusty snow the Giants beat Cleveland, 17-13, last Sunday in a meaningless game. They had already won the championship of the Eastern Division, but spite made this game important for the Giants and also a curiously savage affection. They dislike Paul Brown, who coaches the Browns, but they enjoy opposing Jimmy Brown.

The Cleveland coach is the last dictator of the sport, contemptuous of players, still sending in every play with an obsolete strategy. The game has gone past him. The popularity of the automatic call has ruined his method of total control over his team during a game. The other quarter-back, after sizing up the defence at the line of scrimmage, now has the coach-granted privilege of cancelling the play decided on in the huddle. But Brown's guy fuctions as a dummy sentenced to utter a ventriloquist's repartee.

You'd Think He Played With Giants

The embarrassment of Paul Brown elates the Giants. They angrily dispute the contention of the statistics which define Jimmy Brown's failure. Generally, the league's leading rusher, he has been fourth or fifth this year and Sunday only made 55 yards, which must be estimated as an inept day if you measure him against his spectacular past.

Afterwards, in the Giants dressing room, discussion among the players, who had toiled to stop him, indicated he might have been on their team. Their tributes were not given reluctantly. They intended to make it clear that they didn't believe his greatness is being slowly razed by the vandal of time.

It seemed to delight them that in the third-quarter five of them had their hands on him and he dragged Rosy Grier over the final line with him as he slithered and pushed his way to a touchdown across four congested yards. It was a concert in line-tearing and they appreciated the style of it, although it was performed by Brown. Their pride is immense and justifiable because they form the greatest defensive group in all the seasons of their sport.

"He's still playing Jimmy Brown football," explained Sam Huff, the linebacker.

It was as though I had asked him if the snow had changed or the sun was different.

"You know who says Jimmy Brown is going back?" asked Huff. "The guys who don't tackle him say he's going back. Anyone who tackles him can't see any difference."

Actors talk this way about John Barrymore's Hamlet. Musicians have a similar reverence when Toscanini's name is mentioned. Once pugs spoke this way about Joe Louis and baseball players were humble about Joe DiMaggio.

"I love to watch him," said Frank Gifford, "but I wish he didn't scare me so much."

Immense and placid, Grier laughed when I asked him if he thought Brown was beyond his peak.

"Nothing to it," said Grier. "I can't see it. You hit him and then you holler for help."

"You got to gang-tackle him," said Jim Katcavage.

One Man Can't Handle Jim Brown

"Jimmy Brown going downhill?" asked Dick Modzelewski, astonished and amused. "I know Jim Taylor's leading the league in rushing. But how many times have you seen one guy tackle Jimmy Brown? I've handled Taylor myself. But never Jimmy Brown."

No one mentioned Brown had been laid up with an injured wrist and a torn muscle in his leg earlier in the season. Sore or sound, it is as if he played against them alone without the help of ten other men.

"He's a gentleman," said Andy Robustelli, the end and defensive coach. "What a challenge it is to play against him. His worst is the best around."

The Giant coach, Alie Sherman, handled him in the pro bowl last year. During the first two days of practise Brown walked through the plays.

"He was studying the guards and tackles he hadn't worked with before," Sherman said. "He has scope and vision. He just isn't a physical creature."

They have a football Hall of Fame now for those who do it for money. Jimmy Brown already belongs in the opinions of those who every Sunday try to keep him out of it. This is the true fame.

Packers Seem Set To Meet Giants

NEW YORK (CP)—Green Bay Packers expect to wrap up the Western Conference title Sunday by beating Los Angeles Rams and then move on to another National Football League championship game with New York Giants.

Only a combination of a packer upset by the last-place Rams and a victory for the Detroit Lions over Chicago Bears at Chicago could upset the Packers' timetable. If the Packers lose and the Lions win they would finish the regular season in a tie and would play it off Dec. 23 at Detroit.

A glance at the respective records would indicate just how unlikely that is. Green Bay has 12 wins and a loss while Los Angeles has managed but one win and a tie in 13 games. The Lions have a solid 11-2 record in their favor against Chicago, whose record is 8-5.

And since the Packers easily defeated the Rams 41-10 at Milwaukee Dec. 2, the Lions' hopes are faint indeed. Detroit edged the Bears 11-3 in a fine defensive effort Oct. 28.

WIND UP SEASON

New York (11-2), already crowned eastern champs, winds up at home Sunday against Dallas (5-7-1). Pittsburgh (8-5), assured of a place in the play-off bowl at Miami Jan. 6, plays at Washington (3-6-2) and Minnesota (2-10-1) will be at Baltimore (6-7). Philadelphia (3-9-1) and St. Louis (3-9-1), tied for last in the east, will fight for the cellar at St. Louis.

Packers Get Zang

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Terry Zang, Drake University quarterback, said Friday he has signed a contract with Green Bay Packers of the National Football League.

Bobo Fights Drew

ROME (AP)—Carl Bobo Olson of San Francisco and Giulio Rinaldi of Italy fought to a 10-round draw Friday night in a light-heavyweight match at the Sports Palace.

THIS IS A QUIET PERIOD FOR GORGE YOUNGSTERS

Finally able to get booting space, members of Royal Gorge Soccer Association's Division VII teams, along with Little Leaguers' prepare for Saturday games at Hampton Park. They have room to run now, in contrast to hectic period around 10 a.m., when players on teams in several other divisions also assemble at park for brief workouts before moving to other pitches for league matches. For operation of Royal Gorge association, which teaches soccer fundamentals to 250 boys, see story above. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Too Much Texas Money For Bombers, Vikings

SHELBY, N.C.—The National and Canadian Football Leagues discovered today how serious the American Football League is about "improving the breed."

Both senior circuits bowed out of the bidding for Bobby Bell, All-America tackle from the University of Minnesota. The husky Negro, regarded as a gem by pro football scouts, sold his services to the fledgling AFL.

In Shelby for a special home coming, Bell announced he had signed with Dallas Texans (Dallas Lamar Hunt). "My contract runs over six years and is as much as I wanted," Bell said.

Bell was sought by Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Grey Cup

BOBBY BELL
... six-year pact

champions, and Minnesota Vikings, also-rans in the NFL. It was strictly no contest. Bell: "The bidding went on for six hours. Winnipeg dropped out early and the Vikings simply couldn't fight Lamar Hunt's money. He topped everything the Vikings offered."

Hunt, a Texas oilman, is reputed to be worth $40,000,000. The lengthy auction set a record of sorts. Rarely if ever have teams spent that much time or offered high sums of money for linemen, generally the lowest paid in professional football ranks.

Winnipeg's bid was based on need. The CFL champions are getting thin at key line spots, face the prospect of losing stalwarts Herb Gray and Steven Patrick.

College Clubs Establish Gate Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite a decline in the number of colleges playing the sport, football attendance in the United States pushed over 21,000,000 for the first time in 1962 as 610 college and university teams attracted larger crowds for the ninth consecutive year.

Although six fewer teams played, the number of fans increased to 21,227,162, up 2.66 per cent from 1961.

The 1962 totals represent an increase of 27.2 per cent over 1953, when attendance for 518 schools was about 16,000,000.

Pilots Buck the Odds When Lifting Goalies

By Canadian Press

A National Hockey League coach is gambling against the odds when he substitutes a forward for his goaltender in the final seconds of a game in an effort to gain a tie. The strategy has worked about once out of every 10 times it's both today and Sunday so the opportunity might crop up. Tonight the Rangers visit Montreal, Chicago is at Detroit and Boston plays at Toronto.

The Canadiens might be without centre Henri Richard, who has a fractured big toe on his right foot. Club officials hope the toe can be strapped so Richard can play. He suffered the injury Thursday night in Montreal during a 1-1 tie against Boston.

Sunday's schedule has Canadiens at Boston, Toronto at Chicago and Detroit at New York.

LEADS VICTIMS
Boston has also been the victim of its own strategy more than any other club. The opposition has scored three goals into an empty Bruin net, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers each have been scored against once with their own goalkeeper on the bench.

Montreal Canadiens have neither gained nor lost by the last-minute strategy. Whether any of the clubs will be able to try it during the weekend is anyone's guess but all six teams see action

Referee Joe Zupatas and judge Joe Santoro voted for the Montrealer, while judge John Norton gave the award to McNeeley. The Associated Press scored it 99-94 for Cleroux.

Cleroux weighed 205. McNeeley, of Boston, was 201. Fighting with the style of a lumberjack, Cleroux knocked, or wrestled, McNeeley to the canvas three times in the second, fourth and eighth rounds.

Swedes Murder 'Rocking Chair' Saskatoon Squad

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Saskatoon Quakers suffered their second straight drubbing at the hands of Sweden's world championship national team Friday night by a lopsided 13-3 margin in an exhibition hockey game here.

The Canadians could not get any semblance of an attack going until after the big, fast-skating Swedes had piled up a 5-0 margin and obviously eased up.

Thursday night, the Quakers started off their 17-game European exhibition tour by dropping a 7-0 decision to the same Swedish combination. The Canadians seemed to be weary from the long trip from home.

But Friday night they just didn't have a thing. After getting 16 straight goals past the Canadian nets in the two games without a reply, veteran forward George Senick finally broke the scoring ice with the first of his three goals.

Senick, 33, a construction foreman who had some professional experience before he was reinstated as an amateur, scored once late in the second period and added a pair in the third period.

Ulf Sterner, a veteran of international competition, was the victim in both games. Ronald Petterson beat him twice Friday night while the other Swedes goals went to Nils Nilsson, Per Olov Hardin, Bertil Karlsson, Hans Mild, Bert-Ola Nordlander, Carl Oberg and Gert Blome.

The Swedes again showed the excellent positional play and sharp passing they used to bankrupt the Canadians in the opener.

SOS to Trail: Send Defencemen

By that time they will have two experienced defencemen to pull the team together.

Gordon Jukes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced that Harry Smith and Don Fletcher of Trail Smoke Eaters would be flown from Canada to Europe Sunday.

Coach Bobby Kromm of the Allan Cup champion Trail Smoke Eaters said Friday night in Vancouver that he had received a telephone call from Stockholm asking him for two defencemen.

The Smokies themselves are preparing to represent Canada at the world championships in Stockholm starting next March 5.

Both Fletcher and Smith were members of the Smokies when they won the Allan Cup in 1959-60 and the world championship in 1961.

The exhibition games are being played under European rules which frown on heavy bodychecking, particularly into the boards.

CURLING CUES

By MATT BALDWIN

Three-time Canadian champion

I cannot help feeling that this issue of professionalism is a bum rap. Our game can do very nicely without it.

I know that I'm not going to win any prizes by putting in my two-bits worth, but I just have to get a few things off my chest.

I am convinced that largely it is a tempest in a teapot, and that it will blow itself out in good time. And it is apparent that I'm not alone in my thinking out here in the west, which is where it was that the sport really grew out of short pants to begin with.

It seems obvious that the west will present a united front against the adoption of rules that very well could strangle the game. It's my hope that the eastern precincts will seriously consider every facet of the issue before rushing headlong into something that they could come to regret. Other sports have had this experience you know.

Curling has weathered the bad times before this, and I am sure that it is none the worse for it. Cluttering the game up with rules is essentially a knock in itself, and ironically the gentlemen who are trying to jam this controversial code of ethics down everybody's throat are the same who have on many an occasion taken pride in the fact that their sport requires little policing.

I can see that I am not going to be able to save anything I want to in this article. So today I will just generalize a bit, and in four subsequent articles, we'll examine things a little more closely.

Curling Will Never Harbor a Pro

By now, you must all be sufficiently acquainted with what is afoot. The proposed code briefly would regard as a professional:

1. Anyone who accepts more than a reasonable amount of expense money for a curling event such as that TV series last winter entitled "All-Star Curling."
2. Anyone who participates in a bonspiel in which the prize is more than $150 a person or more than $600 for the rink.
3. Anyone who receives compensation for instructions, either orally or in writing.

What I hope to convey to you is that curling will never harbor a professional, in the accepted sense of the term.

It just isn't possible to live off the game, especially in the case of the competing rinks. Even in the richest bonspiels, only the big winners have a chance of coming out ahead. Taking into account the entry fee, travelling and sundry other expenses, even the runner-up takes it on the chin.

And what of all the other rinks that go to make up such a bonspiel? They are fully aware of the extent to which the odds are stacked against them, and you can take my word for it, they are really not in it for any financial rewards they may reap.

That's why in the long run, it's best to leave sleeping dogs lie. But more about this later.

Full Tourney Sate For Holiday Bowlers

Bowlers still able to throw a ball after having one over the Yule holiday have a full slate of "tournaments" awaiting them.

Aurora Lanes will run a turkey shoot Dec. 17-24 for mixed doubles teams. Bowlers can compete any time alleys are available.

Gibson's offers tenpinners a mixed and men's doubles competition, running Dec. 22-Jan. 2. First prize in the mixed is $100; in the straight doubles, $75.

At Capital Lanes, fivepinners will hold a mixed team competition (two women, two men) from Dec. 27-30. Each team will roll three games over each of the four nights. Points will be awarded on the Petersen system.

Roy Harris and Emil Liska led all bowlers this week. Harris fired a 653 tenpin series, including a mammoth 253 single. Liska rolled a 901 fivepin set; checked in with a 316 single.

Fivepinners will roll off this weekend for berths on city teams competing in an all-star tournament at University of B.C. lanes Jan. 19.

Seventy-eight teams will participate.

PLAY BALL SLIGHTLY FORWARD FOR SAND SHOTS

In any normal sand shot, as illustrated, play the ball a bit forward of centre. Remember, you're not contacting the ball in this shot. Instead, you're hitting into the sand an inch or two behind the ball. That moves your clubhead's target back a bit toward the right foot where most short irons are played.

For short distance shots from a sand trap, I usually hit as far as three inches behind the ball. For longer distances, I may reduce this margin of sand to as little as one-half inch.

At least one pro, however, likes to hit into the sand about one inch behind the ball on all sand shots. He feels it is too tough to change his target on different shots. He controls the distance of the shot by controlling the length of his backswing and the power he puts into the shot.

Bobby Cox, a University of Northern Division, six points ahead of Edmonton.

The Flyers were three players short for the game after suspensions to forwards Chuck Holmes and Warren Hynes and defenceman Lou Maroon, who refused to report to Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League following a trade.

Fielder, before 4,065 Seattle fans, assisted on the tying goal by Jim Powers late in the first period.

The veteran of 12 WHL seasons holds the league records for assists and total points—now 374.

Bob Sabourin scored in overtime to give the Totems the win and a five-point lead in the league's Northern Division.

Orval Tessier scored for Buckaroos in the second period and Powers tied it up late in the same period.

Chiefs Extend Streak; Tie Navy for Top Spot

Esquimalt Chiefs won the battle of the titans in the Esquimalt and District Amateur Hockey League Friday night.

Undeclared in seven starts, the Chiefs walloped Navy, previously boasting a clean slate, 4-1 before 1,200 at the Sports Centre.

The result left the clubs embraced in a tie for first place with 14 points each. Army and University bring up the "second division" with three points and one point, respectively.

Esquimalt rattled to a 4-0 lead before Navy solved aged Ron Griffiths.

Navy lost goalkeeper Pat Cain midway through the second period. He struck his head on the crossbar and again on the ice trying to stop a shot.

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES

Milestone Near For Archbishop

Archbishop Harold Sexton of British Columbia will celebrate the 50th anniversary of his ordination as a priest next Friday (the Feast of St. Thomas).

He was ordained on Dec. 21, 1912, in St. Peter's Cathedral, Adelaide, Australia, by the Lord Bishop of Adelaide, Dr. A. W. Thomas.

He served curacies at St. Paul's, Port Adelaide and All Saints, Hindmarsh, before enlisting as a chaplain in the British expeditionary forces overseas.

In 1920 he was appointed vicar of St. Martin's, Melbourne, but returned to England in 1924 to become curate at St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, London.

In 1928 he was appointed vicar of All Saints, Upper Norwood, and in 1935 was elected bishop coadjutor of British Columbia. He became archbishop and metropolitan of the province in 1952.

"As we join in congratulating our archbishop on this happy occasion, we also think with gratitude of all the many souls he must have encountered and influenced for good during such a long and distinguished ministry," writes Dean Brian Whitlow of Christ Church Cathedral.

Christmas music will be sung in many churches throughout the city this Sunday.

At Metropolitan United Church, the sanctuary choir directed by Eric Boothroyd will offer a special program. Soloists will be Mrs. Harold Robinson and Mrs. Grace Hanning.

A Christmas pageant in costume will be presented by children of the Sunday school, with poems, readings and music by the Junior Choir, in St. Peter's Church, Lake Hill, Sunday at 7 p.m.

The pageant is being offered as a prayer for peace on earth and good will to all men.

The Church of Our Lord will hold its annual candlelight and carol service and festival of lessons Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Original Christmas compositions will be played at the organ by J. Ingram Smith and John Bray will be guest soloist.

"As part of Victoria's centennial celebrations, we cordially invite all Victorians to this outstanding service," says Bishop Denys Ranklor.

In Centennial United Sunday morning, the choir will present some of the great Nativity carols from many countries, including Sweden, Germany, Poland, France.

In the evening, Dr. S. J. Parsons will speak on the Incarnation theme as portrayed by such artists as Plochhorst, Correggio, Raphael, Murillo and Lerolle.

Children of the Sunday school at First United Church will present gifts at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services. Christmas music will be presented by the choir with Allan Husband as soloist.

At St. Matthias' Church Sunday morning, Archbishop Sexton will confirm 34 members who will make their first communion at 12:15 p.m.

Newman Alumni Association of Victoria is sponsoring a communion breakfast in the Dominion Hotel Sunday at 10:15 a.m., when Ald. Michael Griffin will be guest speaker.

Breakfast will follow holy mass and communion in St. Andrew's Cathedral.

Scholar Rewriting St. Thomas Aquinas

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Thomas McDonough, a Roman Catholic priest with a flair for writing books on leaders of the Protestant Reformation, has turned his talents toward helping rewrite the works of his church's favorite philosopher, St. Thomas Aquinas.

A Dominican priest, Father McDonough is busy raising money to support teams of other priestly scholars compiling a new edition of the works of the 13th-century Dominican saint, recognized as one of the great scholastic philosophers.

Pope Leo XIII directed in 1879 that St. Thomas' teachings be taken as the basis of Roman Catholic theology and instructed the Order of St. Dominic to compile another edition of the philosopher's works.

Research and writing teams of Dominicans have been busy at the task since then so far have produced 16 volumes of an estimated 40.

The Canadian research team will publish the Aquinian commentary on the Book of Job this year, and a team in Rome will publish a treatise on truth.

New Dulles Airport Lounge Sidles Up to Waiting Plane

CHANTILLY, Va.—If the class will come to order, the question for today is: What is 50 feet long, stands 17 feet off the ground, looks like a broken piece of aluminum tunnel and whistles like a horse when it moves?

Sutton

The answer is the mobile lounge, a giant gizmo now at large here in the gentle Virginia farm country. The mobile lounge is meeting all planes at Washington's new Dulles Airport, sending its telescoping gangplank into the doorway of the aircraft. Passengers need only step from the aisle of the airplane into this huge air-conditioned rig to be transported at 15 miles an hour to the terminal building. No one need touch a tootsie to the crust of the outside world. No steps, no stairs, no slush, no slop. This mobile lounge has removed The Last Mile from air travel, at least in Washington.

Dulles Airport, which the U.S. government built and paid for, is a huge glass box covered by a big swooping hammock of a roof. Passengers who are deposited by bus or taxi need only walk the width of the terminal, a distance of about 150 feet. After they have checked in, they may take a seat in the lounge, a spacious salon with red carpet, black leather seats and huge glass windows.

They may smoke, listen to the music and look at Virginia. A few moments before plane time the doors close and the whole lounge pulls away from the terminal siding and rolls out on the runway to the waiting plane.

Most of the operators of the mobile lounges, who call themselves bustronauts, have had experience driving heavy rolling stock. Riding out from the terminal the other day I watched Bustronaut Robert Caniford turn on the motor, then buzz the control tower.

"Lounge 24 to ground control," he said into the radio. "Request permission to cross runways T one and T two."

After a short pause the squawk box crackled. "Lounge 24," said the tower, "you are cleared to cross T one and T two." Caniford, who used to drive a tractor-trailer between Winchester, Va., and New York, threw the quarter-of-a-million dollar lounge into gear and cautiously rolled out to meet a plane coming in from Dallas.

Caniford's main problem was to nuzzle the lounge as close as possible to the plane without stoving a hole in it. When you dent a $5,000,000 jet the insurance company gets very excited.

Bustronauts get a nine-week course in hole-stoving prevention, practising on a mock-up of the doorways of Convair 880s, DC-8s, Boeing 707s, Electras and Viscounts. Gangplanks move vertically by electricity and laterally by hand. After bustronauts solo they receive a bright shoulder patch that identifies them as a Mobile Lounge Operator. So what's your line?

Twenty rollaway waiting rooms will be servicing Dulles Airport by March, each of them costing $232,733. Passengers pay nothing for the ride, but the airline is charged six dollars a trip.

Still, it cuts down on jet expenses, as it costs an estimated $25 a minute to taxi a jet. It also eliminates the cost of building "fingers," those long Cardiac Causeways that lead out to the jets in many airports here and abroad.

Some airline officials have argued that the lounges add another 15 minutes to the scheduling. It is true that times of departure at Dulles are given as the time the mobile lounge leaves the terminal. If you miss the lounge, you've missed the plane. But, as one delighted lady said to nobody in particular, as she watched a lounge roll out to her plane, "Why, I think it's the most divine thing I ever saw. Mah-vless!"

The rolling rooms are just one of the marvels which the U.S. aviation agency has put into this new jet airport. It has also found itself in the road-building business, having constructed a 14.3 mile highway that connects Washington and the airport.

Only airport traffic may use the parkway, and once you're on it there are no exits until you arrive at the terminal building. The road itself cost $18 million, and the limousine charges $250 for the overland odyssey. The airport is 27 miles from the White House, a trip now takes about 40 minutes. The time will be shortened when connecting roads are built.

With its enormous 10,000-acre expanse, twice the size of New York's Idlewild, Dulles can afford buffer states between its operating areas and its nearest neighbors. It has also insulated the countryside against noise with a million and a half seedling trees planted to cushion the cacophony.

But the great contribution at Dulles is the rolling waiting room that has eliminated the "finger" system and rendered forced marches obsolete. The trouble with most airports is that they give the passenger a "finger" and then he has to walk a whole mile.

Grand Opera Tour Set For New Year

Swissair have announced the itinerary for their ninth grand opera tour of Europe, with departures Feb. 22 and March 10.

The 17-day tour, which is based on the off-season fares, is designed for opera buffs with little time and big dreams. Seven operatic capitals are visited on the tour, and guaranteed good seats for 11 nights at the opera have been booked in advance. Days will be left free for local sightseeing and individual pursuits.

The price of $798 covers close to 10,000 miles of air travel, first-class hotels, two meals daily (one daily in London to allow for restaurant-hopping); one good seat at performances listed for each city visited, transfers, tips, taxes and porter fees.

Before leaving New York by Swissair DV-3 jet, the group will attend a performance at the famed Metropolitan Opera House.

HONOLULU—A blend of verdant valleys, dotted here and there by cascading waterfalls are also in store for the adventurous.

Budget vacationers can take heart at the various means of spending the least for the best of all possible vacations. One of the world's most attractive and well-stocked supermarkets is located near the Waikiki terminal building. It's fun just to go browsing in this food mecca where you can find everything from frozen foods, gourmet Oriental cuisine to fresh exotic fruits.

Another ideal spot for window wandering is Honolulu's new International Airport. Airy, pink concrete buildings surrounded by spacious gardens are a popular destination area for tourists as well as residents. Resembling a small city, the new airport contains quality shops and a variety of restaurants.

Here you can revert to rustic living in a tent, fish from the rocks and explore the natural wonders of the area. Horseback riding and hiking along trails leading through

Vacation Fun In Germany

In the Federal Republic of Germany, some 300 resorts are waiting for those who love winter fun in the sun. They range from internationally acclaimed centres to rather unassuming hide-aways for guests preferring more casual vacations. The same is true for accommodations: excellent hotels with all modern facilities are as much available as are simple yet pleasant country inns and mountain huts.

Germany offers all the installations winter sports enthusiasts can possibly ask for, from more than 200 ski and chair lifts, hoists, aerial ropeways and glass gondola suspension railways to 200-odd ski jumps, some 160 localities for tobogganing, many with curling, almost 30 with ice hockey and nine with bobsleigh facilities.

Besides all that, the country's spas, most of them operated around the clock of the year, are increasingly busy helping an international clientele to cure ailments or to prevent them by treatment under efficient doctors' care.

The Advent Story

BEHOLD, there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem, saying, "we have seen His star and are come to worship Him." And, lo, the star, which they saw in the east went before them, till it came and stood over where the young Child lay.

-Mat. 2:1, 9

The Advent story is the story of the first Christmas. To lend expression and emphasis to this eternal theme in the current holiday season we are presenting a four-part series of color-by-number cutouts depicting significant Advent scenes.

Today's scene, No. 3 in the series by artist Jane Neiburg, depicts the Wise Men following the star. Basic elements are provided at right.

To begin, paste this diagram to cardboard. Next, add colors; then cut out individual components.

These are the color indicators: 1-Tan; 2-Yellow; 3-Green; 4-Red; 5-Blue; 6-Purple; 7-Blue-green.

Upon completion of preliminary details, adult and junior readers are challenged to effect attractive three-dimensional displays: Shadow box settings (see rough example above), tabletop tableaux, wall boxes; mantel embellishments, silhouette plaques (see below)—any number of possibilities are conceivable. In any case, readers are invited to use their imagination and artistic abilities to the fullest.

Next Week: THE NATIVITY SCENE

SO YOU THINK YOU'RE SMART, EH?

If you think you're smart, answer each of these holiday brain-teasers within one minute, then see if you're right.

1. If a customer tips a clerk 25¢ for cutting a wrapping ribbon in two lengths, how much should he receive for cutting it into four lengths?

2. If you bought a potted Christmas tree one foot and one-half of itself high, how high would it be?

Peeking at answers below is unfair to yourself, of course.

ARE YOU GOOD AT FAILURES?

A school has 2, 3 or 4 classes in physics with 20 to 30 students in each class. If 10 per cent of these students failed, what is the greatest number who could have failed?

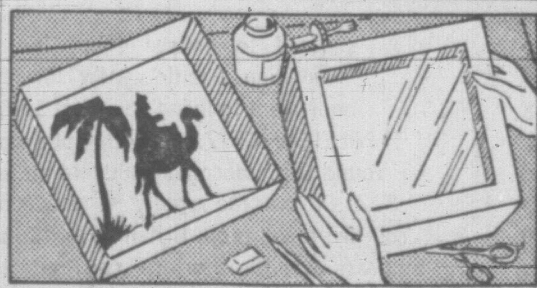

ANSWERS: The greatest number is 2.

KISSING KIN

Twelve sisters, meeting each other at a reunion dinner after many years, each kissed all of the others.

How many kisses were there in all?

ANSWERS: There were sixty-six kisses.

MATTER OF YEARS

If a centennial marks one hundred years, how do we designate one and fifty years? Two hundred years?

Answer in one minute if you can.

No fair peeking below.

ANSWERS: Centennial and sesquicentennial.

FACE VALUES

Seated in his private barber's chair on two separate occasions, Santa noticed the clock on the wall to read the times indicated above. Santa observed this clock, however, in the mirror before him. The clock itself was on an opposite wall. Can you tell the time Santa was in the shop on each occasion?

ANSWERS: At 4:30 on one day, and at 1:30 on the other.

FIVE-SECOND COUNT

Answer within five seconds: What is the difference between twice twenty-two and twice two and twenty?

ANSWERS: One. (22 x 2 = 44; 2 x 2 = 4; 44 - 4 = 40)

HOW DID SHE KNOW MAYNARD?

When Maynard met Emma, he said: "We shall see each other tomorrow night at nine at the masquerade party. I'm going dressed as Santa Claus, but I'll bet you cannot find me, because I know at least four of my pals are going as Santa."

"That's a bet," Emma replied. "I'll be seeing you."

Next night, Emma went to the masquerade party before the appointed hour. Four Santas were already present, but Emma had no trouble picking out Maynard. Why?

ANSWERS: Maynard said he would be wearing a Santa suit, and he was the only one who was not wearing a Santa suit.

WILL YOU WIN OR LOSE BETS?

Suppose you had $24 and bet half on the toss of a coin. Win or lose, you bet half of what you had then on a second toss; again, half of what you have on a third toss and after this half of what you have on a fourth toss. You win twice and lose twice. Would you have a profit, loss or break even?

ANSWERS: You would have a loss of $12.

VENUS-PROBE

'Veiled Lady' Secrets Bared?

By FRANK CAREY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Mariner II has given man his first close look at another planet.
For 43 minutes Friday it scanned Venus, flashing back over 36,000,000 miles the information which may unravel the secrets of the "veiled lady of the universe."
Scientists are digging into the mass of data—more information about the earth's closest planetary neighbor than has been recorded in all the history of star-gazing.

The historic fly-by came at 3 p.m. EST after a 109-day, 182,000,000-mile over - all journey that began at Cape Canaveral, Fla. Mariner came to within 21,100 miles of the planet.
Special monitoring devices began to probe the cloud-covered surface at 1:55 p.m. and were switched off at 2:37 p.m.
Then the craft was speeding toward the sun.
Mariner is expected to send periodic information about space from as far out as 72,000,000 miles from the earth, twice the distance it was from earth Friday.

WILL ORBIT SUN
The space craft's final destination will be an orbit around the sun, each lap taking 400 days, never coming closer than 46,000,000 miles from the earth.
It will take days and possibly weeks for scientists to analyze and evaluate just what was found out by the electronic "eyes" of the 447-pound, gold-and-silver plated space messenger that rocketed from the earth Aug. 27.
But they hope, and expect, to get at least some clues to help resolve such vital questions as these:

1. Is Venus a vast, arid desert swept by dust storms . . . or a sea of water or oil . . . or a jungle teeming with some forms of life?
2. Is it surrounded by dangerous radiation belts, such as the earth has, thus demanding special precautions in any attempts to land men there?
3. How strong is her magnetic field, and how is her cloud-shrouded environment affected, if at all, by gaseous "solar winds" that carry particles from the sun at speeds up to 450 miles a second?
4. Are there breaks in the dense clouds which surround her?
5. What is the planet's atmosphere like?
6. What is the temperature on the surface?

'THEFT BY THE BUSHEL'

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)—Thieves who stole 8,000 bushels of grain in this district 300 miles north-west, of Edmonton were caught Friday night.

Latest theft reported to RCMP was 1,600 bushels of oats taken overnight from a farm 20 miles southeast of Dawson Creek. RCMP said this brought to 8,000 bushels the amount of grain reported stolen in the last several months.

The grain was taken from unoccupied farms or granaries not near other buildings. More than 15 farms have reported losses.

Magazine Tax Upheld By Court

MONTREAL (CP) — Chief Justice W. B. Scott of Quebec Superior Court ruled Friday that Parliament had the authority in 1956 to enact an excise tax on gross advertising revenues of Canadian editions of foreign magazines.

The ruling resulted from a test case involving Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Limited, held liable for payment of the tax on its Canadian advertising. This amount is about $850,000.

The tax was introduced in 1956 under the former Liberal administration and came into effect Jan. 1, 1957. It was repealed 18 months later—June 26, 1958—by the Progressive Conservative government.

The federal revenue department claimed Reader's Digest was liable for the tax in the period it was in force.

Lawyers for the company argued that the tax contravened the sections of British North America Act's dealing with the tax powers of provincial legislatures.

The revenue department's counsel argued the excise tax was constitutional because the LNA Act reserved to Parliament the right of raising money by "any mode or system of taxation."

Fulton Egged To Tackle Gagliardi

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A Liberal member of the British Columbia legislature says Works Minister Fulton, who is leaving the federal field to enter provincial politics, should run against Highways Minister Philip Gagliardi.

The former justice minister represents Kamloops federally while Mr. Gagliardi is the city's member in the legislature.

The federal riding is, however, much larger and incorporates most of five provincial constituencies.

Alan MacFarlane, member for Oak Bay, said in an interview Friday that if Mr. Fulton plans to lead a crusade against Social Credit Premier Bennett, "he should be willing to lay everything on the line and run against Mr. Gagliardi in his own constituency."

If he fails to meet this test in his own hometown, Mr. MacFarlane said, it's unlikely the people of B.C. will take much notice of his homecoming.

ACCIDENT VICTIM COMPENSATED

$200 a Month for Life

EDMONTON (CP)—Sharon Clausen, 20, of Edmonton has been awarded damages of $200 a month for life and payment of medical expenses as a result of a truck accident three years ago near Creston, B.C., which left her paralyzed from the waist down.
Mr. Justice Peter Gieschuk of the Alberta Supreme Court said the woman probably will have to spend most of her life in hospital. The judge took into consideration medical evidence which gave Miss Clausen a life expectancy of 50 years.
Miss Clausen and Susan Kohnen of Medicine Hat were hitch-hiking to Vancouver when they received a ride in a truck from Marcel Ayotte of Trail, B.C.
Ayotte's truck, owned by Toledo Scale Company of Canada, missed a curve and rolled 120 feet down an embankment. Miss Kohnen was killed.
The judgment was against Ayotte and Toledo Scale Company.

'Devil in Brown Suit' Dogged Alcoholic

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Do you have to take a drink before asking the boss for a raise?

If you do, you are in the first stages of alcoholism, in the experience of Major George Wright of the Salvation Army's Harbor Light at 550 Yates.

"The average alcoholic is a nice fellow when sober. He is usually a sensitive type who drinks because, in some obscure way, he lacks faith in himself.

"We have found that the majority of alcoholics come from the so-called better class of society. They are often men of talent and ability."

Major and Mrs. Wright have specialized in the rehabilitation of alcoholics in Ontario and B.C. for many years and they believe the only lasting cure is a spiritual one.

"You have to convince a man that drunkenness is a sin—a progressive disease that will destroy him in the end. When he knows that he goes on his knees to God and prays for help . . .

Only Eating Place

"If we did not assist such people we would be turning our backs on Christ's teachings."

Many alcoholics only eat when they go to the Salvation Army's Harbor Light, and with that in mind, Major and Mrs. Wright are now arranging a Christmas Day dinner for 4 p.m.

But the dinner is not just for alcoholics. All lonely people are welcome, for the Salvation Army aims to help every person in need.

"Any stranger in town is welcome to join us," Major Wright said, "and anyone who wants to contribute cash or food to the meal will have our blessing. There is never enough for all the work we have to do."

The Harbor Light feeds an average of 30 men a day all the year round. At the moment it has 47 in residence and a number of out-patients. Two of the residents told me, simply and frankly, they would be in jail today if it were not for the Harbor Light.

"I had come so low I would steal to get money for drink," a logger told me. "I blew all my money on booze—everything else was secondary. It is hard for me now to realize now how low I had come."

"The Sally Ann is the most Christian outfit in the world. It helps everyone."

An educated man with a Scottish brogue said he had been rehabilitated by Harbor Light but suffers occasional lapses.

"When that happens there is nothing for me to do but return here. I am useless to anyone else once I start drinking. And the hell of it is only one drink—half a glass of beer even—can send an alcoholic back to his old ways."

"It is a crime to offer him drink."

The Scotsman told me he was in an advanced stage of delirium tremens until a few months ago.

Followed By 'Bear'

"Everywhere I went I was followed by a huge brown bear. It scared the wits out of me. When I woke up at night I would see the bear at the foot of the bed . . ."

"Funny thing that," the logger interrupted. "I was followed by a man in a brown suit and I got to dread the sight of him. No, he wasn't real. I proved that, but he seemed to dog my footsteps everywhere, and there was something sinister and horrible about him."

"Sometimes I wondered if he were the Devil in disguise . . ."

Ghastly Mixtures

Several reformed alcoholics at the Harbor Light told me they had been reduced to drinking anything that would give them a "kick"—rubbing alcohol, hair tonics, canned heat, lemon and vanilla extract.

From them Major Wright has built up a "museum" of bottles which he displays in his office as a warning to persons in the earlier stages of alcoholism.

"It is only when a man runs out of money to buy even cheap wine that he turns to these ghastly drinks—and the effects are far worse."

They can cause blindness and upset the stomach so much that a man is incapable of eating. At that stage he is in grave need of help."

Anger Spurious

It's largely a matter of approach, the major says. Sometimes he "kicks" them out of their anger. Occasionally he threatens to call the police—but never does.

"A drunken man's anger is usually spurious. He's really angry with himself but picks on something else to get mad about."

Sergeant Joe Matteson, who is Major Wright's chief assistant, said he was addicted to bay rum (at 37 cents a bottle) and vanilla extract, until 22 months ago.

Thermopylae Club Elects New Crew

Members of the Thermopylae Club, dedicated to perpetuating memories of the days of sailing ships, elected officers for 1963 this week.

They are: Skipper, Emerson Smith; 1st mate, Lt.-Cmdr. N. A. Beketov; 2nd mate, J. B. White; purser, C. Tapping; supercargo, W. G. Henning; bos'n, W. King; writer, C. Bassett; cook, F. W. Jones; head stewardess, Mrs. N. Elliston.

"We don't want them, but if we catch drivers who have been drinking, we will pull them in," Chief Bert Pearson of Saanich said.

"And that goes for pedestrians found wandering on the streets inebriated, too," he warned.

RIDICULOUS
Oak Bay Chief Robert Smith said it seemed ridiculous to have to warn people not to do what they know is dangerous.

"But we are asking the public to co-operate with the law enforcement agencies over the holiday period," he said.

Driving at night during wet weather at this time of year is dangerous enough, without adding to the risk by drinking, he said.

He said pedestrians who ventured forth inebriated on nights like these were risking death.

Chief John Smart of Esquimalt said his force operated a year-long crackdown on drinking drivers. But he did offer a word of advice for Yule drivers:

"Try coffee."

Carol Fest Set

Close to 200 cadets, staff members and special guests of HMCS Venture will attend the naval officer cadet establishment's annual Christmas Carol Service to be held in Venture's Chapel By The Sea at 8 p.m. Sunday, starting at 8 p.m.

Guest soloist will be Allan Husband, and the program will also include the reading of several lessons by cadets and staff members.

MONDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Gyro Club: 12 noon, Empress Hotel. Annual Christmas party.

Douglas Rotary Club: 6 p.m., Tally Ho, Children's Christmas party.

WARNING to potential alcoholics is this assortment of the liquids, men drink when they are desperate for "kicks." They have been collected by Major George Wright from alcoholics who seek help from Salvation Army's Harbor Light Corps at 550 Yates. (Times photo by Halkett.)

Action Expected Early Next Year

Suggestions that sections of Saanich should unite with Oak Bay municipality have created a "terrific reaction," the president of Association said today.

Interest is expected to grow and reach a climax by the annual meeting of the organization, which will be called early in the new year.

"There seems to be a terrific reaction to the idea of this part of the municipality breaking away from Saanich," said association president Mrs. Margot Bowden.

"They realize that if we're not paying all the taxes in Saanich, we're paying most of them," she remarked.

UP TO RATEPAYERS

But just what steps might be taken in connection with joining Oak Bay, Mrs. Bowden was not prepared to say.

"It's up to the ratepayers. I'm only the president," she said. She pointed out that discussion between interested ratepayers could stimulate action.

"You've got to give Victorians a little time to simmer a thing up. They take a lot of moving," she joked.

The area suggested for secession covers about 1,000 acres immediately north of the Oak Bay boundary, and would be enclosed by a line drawn roughly north from the existing northwesterly corner of Oak Bay on Gordon Head Road near Ruby Road.

FOUR DISTRICTS
The districts of Cadboro Bay, Ten Mile Point, Queenswood and part of Gordon Head would be included.

Although these citizens seem favorable to the idea, having voted pro-amalgamation with Victoria in last week's defeated plebiscite, the rest of Saanich may not be.

As pointed out by Mrs. Bowden, the Cadboro Bay district is a high-revenue area in terms of property taxes, and the municipality may be reluctant to let it go.

ACTION NEEDED NOW

B.C. Totem Land 'In Name Only'

Unless something is done quickly, B.C. will become the "land of the totems" in name only.

This is the opinion of three experts on native culture who today agreed with Vancouver architect William Henry Birmingham, that the last remaining large collection of totem poles is in danger of disappearing within the next two or three years.

Mr. Birmingham, on a visit to the city Friday, called for immediate government action to restore about 70 Tsimshian poles still standing in five native villages along the scenic Skeena River, situated about 550 miles northwest of Victoria.

B.C. anthropologist Wilson Duff said he visited the Skeena valley two years ago and returned there again this summer to take out two totem poles which are to be copied in Victoria.

"I was shocked by the change that had taken place," he said. "Some of the totems I had seen two years ago were smashed to bits."

Dr. A. N. Beattie, president of the Indian Arts and Welfare Society, stressed the need for "public action" to restore the totems.

He said they are worth preserving as a tourist attraction, noting they were all situated within easy reach from the Skeena highway.

Dr. Douglas Leechman, former anthropologist for the National Museum in Ottawa, suggested the government experiment in casting the totems in concrete.

He said the totems could be taken down and plastic casts made for them. Cement would then be poured into the casts to make exact replicas of the totems. These would then be erected and painted like the originals.

Socred Balloon Primary Target

By FRANK RUTTER
Times' Legislative Reporter

The occupant of the 52nd seat in the provincial legislature will be chosen Monday by the people of Vancouver Point Grey.

The byelection there has been inflated beyond its significance in affecting the representation inside the House into a sort of meteorological test balloon for the next general election.

The opposition parties, of which there are now three, emphatically chorus that Point Grey will forecast which way the political winds are blowing—any way as long as it is away from Social Credit.

The Social Credit government, although it shows some signs of fear and trembling, is looking for a victory to hold the seat and prick the opposition balloon.

There are 5,682 eligible voters in Point Grey, and those who go to the polls will elect one of these four candidates:

Social Credit's Mrs. Eva Burns-Miller, 62, recent widow, called by her opponents "The Invisible Candidate" because she hasn't shown up to some of the all-party public meetings;

The Conservatives' Reg Atherton, former alderman, campaigning as "The First of Fulton's Men," and cashing in heavily, his colleagues claim, on the return of Works Minister David Fulton as B.C. party leader;

Liberal Dr. Pat McGeer, nephew of the famous Gerry, a neurologist at the University of B.C., a real "personality" boy and initial favorite to win;

The New Democratic Party's Antony Holland, 42, social worker, star of amateur drama, running an intense campaign on a low budget.

The Liberals and Tories regard each other as the only possible winners. First public opinion polls showed them one-two in that order.

The Liberals, according to Mr. McGeer, aren't spending much money in the campaign; the NDP is spending between $1,500 and $2,000. Social Credit is reported spending $60,000, though party officials won't say. Nobody's estimated what the Tories are paying for their bid, but Mr. Fulton is their chief weapon.

Point Grey in the last election went heavily Social Credit, giving all three of its seats to that party. In recent years the only non-Socred winner has been Liberal Arthur Laing. Before Social Credit, it was a Coalitionist riding electing Tories. One of its most famous members was R. L. Maitland, attorney-general in the Coalition government. An earlier member was Liberal Dr. George Weir, education minister in the 1930s.

But never before, in the eyes of today's politicians, has a member for Point Grey been so important—as an indicator of future elections.

Odds and Ends: Premier Bennett pored over civil service pay rates for a week before announcing a raise this week; he has several "combinations" to choose from and hasn't yet decided which it will be . . .

One of the executives of Merrill Lynch, one of the "syndicate" appointed to finance the Peace, is a backroom boy in the campaign of far-right U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater for president . . .

The student vote in Point Grey may not be as big a factor as expected—only 1,800 registered where 4,000 were predicted . . . Agriculture Minister Frank Richter is one man shying away from the island milk price row: he says the new Milk Board ruling has nothing to do with him.

ARTHUR MAYSE

One doesn't associate romance with wood trucks, but next time one of Ideal Fuel Company's big diesels tumbles past, cast a glance at the hood.

There, neatly lettered on either side, you'll see "E. Lovely Baby", or "E. Stubborn Baby", or any of 24 variations on the theme.

The names differ, but it's always baby, and each name is preceded by Mohan Singh's lucky "E".

Mohan Singh Johal came from India to Victoria with his parents as a seven-year-old. He started his fuel company in 1933—not the best year to launch a business—and lugged along without too much success until 1942.

Then one day at Gordon River camp of Western Forest Industries near Cowichan Lake, he took a girl called Ethel for a truck ride.

A logger happened along at lunchtime. He gave Ethel the eye, then asked Mohan Singh, "What's her name?"

Informed, he scrawled in the dust on the truck hood, "E. Lovely Baby."

"And that did it," says Mohan Singh, middle-aged now, with burly shoulders and crisp grey hair. "The same night, I painted the name on my truck to stay. From then on, my luck improved."

When a truck is traded in, the old name is transferred to the new rig. In 20 years, the fleet has never been without its "E. Lovely Baby".

From Cecil Ridout, a list of rules for a ship chandler's clerical staff in Sydney, Australia, 110 years ago. I offer it as an antidote to anyone fed up with the complexities of modern life and yearning for the good old days:

1. Godliness, Cleanliness and Punctuality are the necessities of a good business.

2. On the recommendation of the Governor of this Colony, this firm has reduced the hours of work, and the clerical staff will now only have to be present between the hours of 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. on weekdays. The Sabbath is for worship, but should any man-of-war or other vessel require victualing, the clerical staff will work on the Sabbath.

3. Daily prayer will be held each morning in the main office. The clerical staff will be present.

4. Clothing must be of a sober nature. The clerical staff will not sport themselves in raincoat of bright colors, nor will they wear hose unless in good repair.

5. The new increased weekly wages are as hereunder detailed: Junior boys (to 11 years, 1/4; boys (to 14 years), 2/1; juniors, 4/8; junior clerks, 8/7; clerks, 10/9; senior clerks (after 15 years with the owners), 21/.

At the foot of the list is the following notation: "The owners hereby recognize the generosity of the new labour laws, but will expect a great rise in output of work to compensate for these near Utopian conditions."

Commissioned and senior non-commissioned officers of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will take orders from junior NCOs and privates at the annual all-ranks Christmas dinner next Friday noon.

Majors, captains, lieutenants, warrant officers and sergeants will act as waiters for the 500 junior ranks.

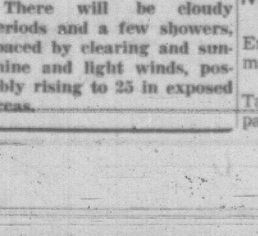

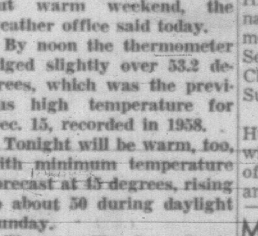

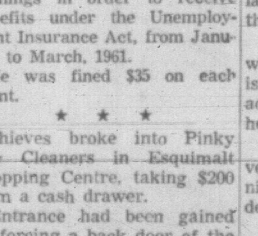

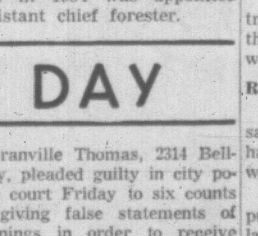

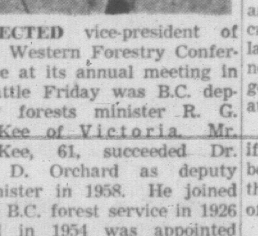

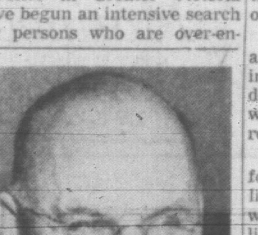

The provincial government has no plans for a special building to house the B.C. Maritime Museum, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said Friday.

He said the museum was one of several organizations being considered as possible occupants of the old courthouse in Bastion Square.

The three Optimist clubs in the Greater Victoria area have again opened Christmas tree lots this year to raise funds for their youth activities.

Their Christmas tree lots are at Al's Esso Service, Shelbourne at Hillside; Shop-Easy store, Oak Bay Avenue at Hampshire; Cambridge Market, Estevan at Musgrave; Saunders and Hitchman, Cadboro Bay Road; Jimmy Little's, 2017 Quadra, and Foodland Market, 312 Cook.

Cruise Ship Stops Certain

Stops at Victoria for northbound ships of Alaska Cruise Lines Ltd. are definitely scheduled for next April, C. B. West, president of the line, said in Vancouver Friday.

It will be the first time the company has included Victoria on its cruise itinerary.

The one-week cruises will originate at Vancouver, April 6, 13, 20 and 27, with stops to pick up passengers at Seattle and Victoria on the same day.

Ship assigned to the early season cruises is the 120-passenger Yukon Star. She will use the CPE's Belleville Street wharf.

POLICE 'DEATH' ON TIPPLERS

Police in Greater Victoria have begun an intensive search for persons who are overthusiastic in their celebration of the coming festive season.

They stopped 350 cars at a roadblock Friday night, looking for impaired drivers but did not find any. While they were at it they checked the roadworthiness of the cars.

Numerous warning tickets for faulty headlights, horns, licence plate lights, brakes, windshield wipers and brake lights were issued.

The roadblock was on north Douglas.

The search for drinking drivers will continue through the holiday season, Chief John Blackstock said today.

And he warned the police will be on the lookout for pedestrians who have been drinking.

Saanich and Oak Bay police are also taking part in the crackdown. Drivers who violate speed regulations and ignore traffic signals are also going to come in for special attention by police.

"We don't want them, but if we catch drivers who have been drinking, we will pull them in," Chief Bert Pearson of Saanich said.

"And that goes for pedestrians found wandering on the streets inebriated, too," he warned.

Be practical about the wardrobe you take. Don't be shy about asking your hostess to fill you in on the weekend program so that you can take along the proper clothes and sports equipment. And unless you know there will be a formal evening, just take simple winter dresses for after sundown.

A poinsettia cake can be made from a round single or double layer cake, purchased from the nearby bakery. Use a red-pink icing to cover the top of the cake. Prepare a small amount of green icing, and have small yellow gumdrops for trimming. Cut the cake into wedge-shaped pieces about 3 inches wide at the outside. Arrange the wedges on a large serving plate or tray, so that the wide sides face the centre, and the points face out like petals of a flower. Fit some of the extra pieces into the centre area, adjusting their shapes or sizes, if necessary, with a sharp knife. Make several green leaves on the surface with green icing, and place yellow gumdrops in centre to resemble flower's stamens. Garnish the plate with sprigs of evergreen.

Make a list of what you must pack and tape it to the inside of your suitcase. This way you'll remember everything and won't have to borrow small items.

A modest gift will be happily received. Flowers please everyone, and there's no problem about packing them or totting them along with your luggage. Florists' Telegraph Delivery will wire an arrangement anywhere to arrive when you do. Don't bring any other surprises, such as your pet, unless you've been expressly asked to do so.

Keep your cosmetics in a plastic bag so that they won't be strewn about your room. When you make up, tidy up powder spills, and don't walk around with your hair rollers showing. If you must set your hair after an outing, cover it with a turban or zany kerchief.

Know your own limitations. Your hostess would prefer you to back out of the fun and games for a while than to spoil an evening because you're tired and crochety.

When you leave, pack carefully. Leave nothing behind you but a good impression. Finally, remember that right after you arrive at home, your thanks should be on its way.

If you are a thoughtful, attractive person to have around, you'll always head the return visit list.

Party Dresses High On Santa's List

By Nona Damaske

When lights twinkle on the tree and mysterious parcels appear out of nowhere, the little people of the family take over.

Tiny girls, in true feminine manner, love to dress up for the holidays.

A fluffy party dress, a bow in her hair and strap slippers will turn your little tomboy into the perfect little lady.

This year there is a feminine trill to tiny fashions. Dainty frills of lace or touches of embroidery, velvet bows and applique, make small dresses as festive as the season itself.

You will notice in any display of children's party clothes that poinsettia red is the leading color—children seem drawn to bright shades and at this time of year colors are at their gayest. Pink and blue for those who are two... not pale, but a deep vibrant pink and a rich lively blue.

TINY ROSEBUDS

Just imagine your two-year-old cherub in a short pink nylon dress with a completely frilled skirt scattered with embroidered rosebuds. For the blonde who looks so adorable in blue there is a blue nylon full-skirted dress with puff sleeves and back bustle panel of dainty white lace in overlapping rows.

For the more sophisticated little lady there is a stunning brocade taffeta with a high round neck completely circled with natural brown mink. A rib tickler back-buttoned jacket comes with this dress and when it is worn the mink trim peeks out over the jacket neckline.

For the very feminine miss who wants to be just right for every occasion I found the right ensemble for sipping chocolate in front of the fire just before bedtime... a sky blue heavy nylon turtleneck and penguin. Three-quarter-length set is styled just like mother's with a trim of matching lace.

BABY DOLLS

There are pink, blue, aqua or pistachio baby dolls for the darling darling. For the hostess with the mostest at little girl holiday parties there are poinsettia red velvet sabre slims which are worn with a white knit popover trimmed in red.

An adorable gift for your fashion-conscious daughter would be an animal or doll pyjama or nightie bag. They come in the shape of a poodle, full-skirted doll and a pussy cat face... round as a moon with perky ears and shiny nylon whiskers.

To rate raves, keep the milk and cookie set happy with a pretty frock for the holiday parties.

The little lady of the house and her friend Raggedy Andy smile with anticipation as Christmas draws near. Our little miss is very pleased with her perky polished cotton dress and popover which says "keep off the grass," but she is also looking forward to a "pretty party dress" for Christmas day.

Party Snacks

For a delicious and inexpensive party snack, spread crackers with canned cod livers. The delicate jelly-like, pink meat is of spreading consistency as taken from the can. It may be sliced, or mashed and seasoned as desired. Decorate the snacks with bits of ripe olive, parsley, or whatever trifle suits your fancy.

Royal Canadian Navy to the rescue! For the fourth successive year the welfare committee of HMCS Fraser has promoted the Christmas spirit by donating hampers to families in need. This year's quota is 10 and LS R. J. Peterson, left, emphasizes, "Each family will receive a full Christmas dinner with all the trimmings—and plenty of it!" Joining him in checking off lists are, left to right, P1 C. Poole and his two daughters, Susan and Lorna, and LS W. Tretchel. The two little girls have a special interest in the project because money for the hampers was found by the children of the ship's company foregoing their annual party. Not only will the "navy types" supply the hampers, they'll also act as Santa's messengers and deliver them.

Joining scores of citizens who are rallying to ensure that Victoria's needy families will share the warmth of Christmas are some of the city's prettiest ambassadors, members of Victoria Girls' Drill Corps. Quartet seen shopping for turkeys to go in hampers they will prepare are, left to right, the Misses Edna Wilson, Marlene Cummins, Suzanne Buttrey and Pat Burgess. Butcher, Mr. R. Cross, assures them that this turkey they've chosen is truly "the king of birds!"

Outwardly, it looks just like any other file, but the stack of cards that increases each year in the Christmas Bureau family file at Spencerhouse, represents hundreds of men, women and children to whom the destined hamper means difference between a happy Christmas and "just another day."

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

Heart of all the busy activity of Christmas Bureau helpers throughout the city is centred around people in need who, for this small span, become much more than statistics to hundreds of citizens. Here, two young brothers who appear on the bureau's list of names, "window-shop" with a childlike trust that Santa will be good to them this year.

"Strong hands to weak, old hands to young, around the Christmas board, touch hands."
"The false forget, the foe forgive, for every guest will go and every fire burn low and cabin empty stand."
"Forget, forgive, for who may say that Christmas Day may ever come to host or guest again?"
"Touch—hands!"
Ten days from now and it will be Christmas. Already its spirit is abroad, urging hundreds to stretch out their hands in greeting to others. Taking time out from the hectic whirl of shopping, cooking and parties, they give their support to the Christmas Bureau.
Working together, they extend a helping hand to the families that fill the bureau's files.
They touch hands for a while with people like the deserted mother of four children who dreams of being reunited with her youngsters for the holiday. When her husband left her, she worked as a domestic with a two-year-old baby in tow. This resulted in her oldest daughter playing truant from school and the baby becoming ill. Forced to stop working, the mother had to place her children in foster homes and is now dependent on social assistance.
There's the mother who is a victim of multiple sclerosis. She has three children, aged two, five and eight, and her husband has been unemployed for a year. Hospital bills have added to their problems.
There's the old couple whose small pensions are drained by the demands brought about by the wife's physical handicaps. When told that they would not be forgotten the husband broke down and wondered, why anything "so wonderful" could happen to us.
Tense notes in the bureau's files reveal untold stories of human defeat. But, in answer, are the applications from church, service and school groups who clamor to give a helping hand.
Individuals, too, take their part. One local doctor drops in every year at the Christmas Bureau's office at Spencerhouse to leave a cheque that will help wish a "Merry Christmas" to four Victoria families.
And, for all those who help, Christmas Day dawns the brighter for they are warmed by the knowledge they have done their part.

Even end-of-term examinations are unable to stem Victoria College students' urge to do their part for the bureau. For the second year Victoria College Alma Mater will provide three hampers containing food, toys and money. Busy packing committee includes, left to right, Miss Bonnie Rogers, Miss Yvonne Clearie, Mr. Charles Boas, Mr. Jack May, the Misses Dorothy Pettersen and Cathy Hatch.

Christmas is an all-year affair for members of the Cosmopolitan International Victoria Service Club as they collect and repair toys for the city's needy. Tempo is at full peak these days as the club is joined by many volunteers in the packing of the delight-filled parcels. Admiring some of the hundreds of toys yet to be packed are club secretary, Mr. C. F. Dunget and volunteers, Mrs. G. Howland and Mrs. H. V. Thompson.

Santa's reindeers take to wheels when the bureau's hampers are delivered by members of the Quartermasters' Club, who have been on the North Pole run for the past six years. Seen preparing for a "rooftop ride" are, left to right, Mr. John Thomson, Mr. John Piper and Mr. Stu Powers. Joining them for the first time this year will be another car club, the Golden Knights.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Are You Ready? Only Seven Buying Days to Go

By Penny Saver

Yikes! Only seven more Penny Saver days till Christmas. When my friend Mary called last night and invited me over to a tree decorating party it suddenly hit me that the time remaining was all too short for the number of things that had yet to be done.

I have been drifting along, picking up a few presents as I go, but not following the list I promised myself but never made, so here am I in a flap.

After Mary called I went and inspected the state of Santa's bag. It was not good.

There is a jumble of toys piled high in the corner of my bedroom, but there is little or nothing for anyone who surpasses the ripe old school age of six.

This situation called for some quick thumbing through of notes made while out shopping. In case there is a reader in the same predicament I will give you a small list of my findings.

First of all, there is a selection of novelty book marks which are inexpensive, but are a nice reminder to someone that they are not forgotten.

A fish or a maple leaf carved out of walnut and attached to a leather strap are attractive and only 99 cents.

Felt book marks with a grey mouse on the end are 69 cents.

Egg cozies made of gay colors and shaped like elephants, Santas or pussy cats always brighten the breakfast table on a dreary morning and they are only 49 cents.

Tiny jewelry kits with six little pockets lined with bright velvet and silk on the outside are priced at $1.25 and $2.

A small ceramic flower dish, with a ceramic frog to match, would be appreciated by almost anyone. The prices for these start at $1.99.

And for the man on your list, who claims that he is usually forgotten and often he is right, there are hand-woven bow ties in brown, rust or green shades for $2.49.

I hope there is no one in Penny's state of confusion, but, if so, phone 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"You can't miss it! ... It's a bright red convertible parked near the end of the pier—under a big, blue oil slick!"

CHRISTMAS BALLS

One-cup butter, ¼ cup icing sugar, 2 cups flour, sifted, 1 cup ground almonds (2 ounces), 1 teaspoon vanilla, 12 candied cherries, halved.

Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add other ingredients, except cherries, and mix well. Take a heaping teaspoonful of dough and start to form into a ball, put ¼ cherry in middle and roll to make a perfect ball. Bake 35 minutes on greased cookie sheet in moderately slow oven (325 degrees F). While hot, roll in icing sugar. Makes 5 dozen.

Some folk like to mix seafood in a dip, while others prefer to serve it as the dipper. Two popular seafood dippers are small shrimp and nuggets of cooked lobster meat, speared on picks.

BE SMART—

Fur fabrics are the rage among accessory aficionados these days. Fur and suede make a terrific combination, and rank high on the fashion agenda. Grey suede gloves are cuffed with the luxe of matching Persian lamb. And a natural-colored suede belt is clasped with the spark of a dark mink bow.

Group Learns Short Cuts In Decorating

A basket of wires, florist's tape, pieces of driftwood, styrofoam, cones, baubles and evergreens were "tools" used by Shirley McAree to demonstrate ways of making Christmas decorations at a recent meeting of Victoria Home Economics and Dietetic Association.

Meeting was held at the Cardiff Place home of the president, Mrs. A. B. Young.

Mrs. McAree showed members how to make an exotic centerpiece from gold sprayed driftwood and fall candles. Frail bamboo poinsettias were combined with golden baubles at the base.

Following the demonstration gifts were exchanged and refreshments served by the convener, Miss Arlie Gale.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Mosley, 962 Page Avenue, Glen Lake, B.C., announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Judy May, to Mr. David Clark Zelmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Zelmer of Anker, Sask. The wedding will take place on Saturday, December 29 at 6:30 p.m., in Gordon United Church. Rev. Laura Butler will officiate. (Photo by Jus-Rite Portrait Studio, Roy Strable, photographer.)

DEAR ABBY...

I'm With You!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and am treated like a baby, Abby. My mother says I have to be home by 12 o'clock when I go out on a date, no matter what. If I go to a school dance, and the band plays until 12, I have to leave the dance at 11:30 to be sure I am home on time. Last Saturday night we went to a movie and, Abby, I had to ask my date to leave before the movie ended because of that midnight rule. Please help me make my mother understand how embarrassing her rule is. I have never yet been late coming home.

EMBARRASSED: DEAR EMBARRASSED: You shouldn't have to leave a dance or a movie before it is over, but if you continue to respect your mother's "rules," she's bound to ease up a bit. I hope so. You seem like a responsible girl.

DEAR ABBY: We almost came to blows over something I wish you would settle for me once and for all. I have always called my brother's wife—my sister-in-law. Now they tell me that she is not my sister-in-law—she is nothing to me. They say the only sisters-in-law I have are the sisters of my husband! I am going mad trying to figure this out.

DEAR EVA: Technically, the relatives gained by marriage are "in-laws." Your brother's wife is indeed your sister-in-law.

DEAR ABBY: I think I have the solution for decreasing the divorce rate. Marriage licences should cost $350 and divorces $2. That way people would think plenty before rushing into marriage.

DEAR SUBSCRIBER: Perhaps if a marriage license were more expensive people would not be so inclined to rush into what should be a lifelong partnership. But why should a divorce be cheap? Perhaps if divorce were even more expensive, folks would try harder to make a go of the marriage.

DEAR ABBY: Am I crazy or are there other people like me? I positively go out of my mind when I HEAR someone eating an apple. I can't describe what it does to me, but I feel that I want to jump out of my skin! How can I overcome it? Please don't tell me to see a psychiatrist.

ROSE: DEAR ROSE: An apple a day is supposed to keep the doctor away, so I am not about to send you to one. However, there is no need to torture yourself. When someone starts to crunch an apple—exit.

DEAR ABBY: I think the jerk who invented Mischief Night (Halloween) must have hated his parents. I am the mother of three frustrated children who are not allowed out on Halloween. I fail to see the humor in poor old Mrs. G. down the street with a bad back having to crawl around mopping up squashed pumpkins. Or Mrs. P. across the street, who is pregnant, having to spend hours unrolling toilet paper from her trees and bushes and scoop up smelly garbage from her overturned garbage pail. The children of this nation should thank God that they are living in a country where there are more comforts, more food and more fun than anywhere in the world. I know, for I was raised in a war-torn country.

MAMMA: What's on your mind? For a personal reply send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A recent letter from a reader says, "Will you please devote one of your future columns to the care of the hands and wrists? They are almost the most tell-tale age sign of the entire body. Creams and lotions do keep the skin supple but how can one prevent the 'wasting away' of surface flesh? Veins protrude on the backs of the hands and knuckles stick out. Nothing, it seems, can keep them plump and youthful looking."

"I am a constant reader of your column. I practice faithfully all of your advice about exercise, diet, etc. As a result, at 57 I have the appearance of a woman of 42—until I take off my gloves!"

"Please help. I am not a housewife, do very little housework. I do drive a car and go to work with vim, vigor and vitality every day and have a nice social life."

It is true that the hands often look much older than the figure and even the face. The use of a good hand lotion several times a day, always after washing, is a big help. While this does not have any influence on the veins or surface flesh, it does, nevertheless, make hands look much more youthful. Dry skin, added to the other conditions this reader mentions, would make hands look even older.

The habit of wearing gloves whenever out in cold or dry weather is a help. The use of rubber gloves when the hands must be in soapy water during household work is essential. Also, do not put your hands in very hot water except when absolutely necessary.

I am sorry that I cannot be of more help with the large veins and the diminishing fatty deposits. The veins are inherited and also some people start out with fatter hands than others. I have seen women of 80 who had plump hands even when they were not overweight.

Hand exercises are a great help. In keeping the hands flexible and graceful.

If any of my readers would like to have my "Exercises to Keep the Hands Flexible, Graceful and Young," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 12. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Making and Serving of Fruit-Laden Plum Pudding Reaches Down the Ages

Victoria Daily Times 23
SAT., DEC. 15, 1962

By MARGE GILROY
"Sugar and spice and everything nice, that's what little girls are made of."

There is more to this than a jingle since plum puddings, of a sort, have been on the go almost as long as little girls, and little girls have been licking plum pudding bowls just as long.

Of all the great dishes that have been served on Christmas Day, the plum pudding is one of the oldest gastronom-ical customs that survived the advent of the kitchenette and is still a ritual of every modern Christmas.

But the plum pudding is only the grand finale to a great and noble feast that is also steeped with history.
A typical bill of fare in 18th century England included good drink and any of the following entrees: Boar's head, beef, mutton, veal, goose, capon, peacock and turkey.

Mustard was always served as a provoker of noble thirst and the meal ended with pudding, sauce, apples and nuts.

Most Christmas customs in North America have been transplanted from Europe.
The Christmas tree comes from Germany, our Santa Claus from Holland, the Christmas stocking from Belgium or France, while "Merry Christmas" is the old English greeting shouted from window to street on Christmas morning.

The one custom that had its origin on this side of the Atlantic is the turkey.

The boar's head, roasted swan and peacock, complete with feathers, began to be replaced after European invaders discovered the turkey in a domestic state in Mexico in 1542.

By the end of the 18th century, it is reported, nearly 1,000 turkeys were being sent into London in one day. By this time the goose, long the bird that was served in the average home, was slowly, although never completely, replaced by the turkey.

It seems that kitchen space has had much to do with the modern bill of fare. As kitchens began to diminish in size and the kitchenette came into its own, the dinner likewise diminished.

Tangerines, dates, chocolates, almonds and raisins, now a part of every Christmas, have long been on the bill of fare.

Another modern custom, exchanging of cookies at Christmas time, is a survival of the Roman Empire when confections were given to Roman senators.

As for mince pies and puddings, the pies seem to be the older, or at least reference to them dates back to early Christian times. Pies were originally made in the shape of a cradle with strips of pastry across the top to resemble the manger.

Plum pudding was known as plum porridge until about 1670, at which time new ingredients were added and it took the shape of a pudding.

Raisins, spices, breadcrumbs, wine and fruit juice seems to have been the main ingredients of the porridge. But more important than the ingredients was the ritual that went with the making.

Every member of the family took a hand at the stirring and with each stir they made a wish.
A silver coin, a ring and a thumb were stirred in and when the pudding was eaten were eagerly looked for in the individual portions.

The coin brought good fortune;
the ring marriage, and the thumb a life of single blessedness.

So, this Christmas when you add that sprig of holly to the top of the pudding, flaming in brandy, remember how little girls come to be made of sugar and spice and everything nice.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Parties for the Young Set

Santa has a busy schedule for today. Part of his duties will see him distributing gifts to 145 children of members of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club when he attends their party in the clubhouse. To add to the excitement 50 young dancing pupils of Bebe Eversfield will present a complete Christmas concert. Icecream and candy canes will be featured on the refreshment menu. Party has been arranged by Mr. Eric Dowell, entertainment chairman for the club; Mrs. Dowell, Mrs. Jack Stone, Mrs. Jack Woodward, Mrs. Ray Jefferson and Mrs. O. Mothersill.

One of his evening visits will be to the annual Christmas party of the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps to be held at the Navy League headquarters on Robert Street. Cadets and their partners will be joined by Lieut. W. Ross, RCSC, commanding officer; Mrs. Ross, other corps officers and their wives. Special guests will be Mrs. G. A. Dufour, president of the Victoria Branch of the Navy League of Canada; other Navy League officials and their wives and husbands. Also invited are representatives from city cadet corps and youth groups. The band of the naval technical apprentices of HMCS Naden will play for dancing.

White Christmas

Hon. W. N. Chant and Mrs. Chant are looking forward with anticipation to a "white Christmas." They leave next Friday to travel to Camrose, Alta., where they will spend the holiday with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Chant. The Chants expect to be back in their home on Beach Drive in time to welcome in the New Year.

Hawaiian Holiday

Saanich police's head, Chief W. A. Pearson and Mrs. Pearson will fly to Honolulu on Tuesday for a month's holiday in Honolulu. They will be accompanied by their daughter, Miss Joanne Pearson. While in the Hawaiian Islands they will be the guests of their son-in-law and daughter CPO John Patrick, USN, and Mrs. Patrick. Rounding out the family circle will be the Patrick's two young daughters, Lesli and Lesa.

Honored at Shower

Miss Susan McElmoyle was honored recently at a shower in the home of Mrs. L. E. Pope, York Place. Co-hostesses were Miss Judy Pope and Miss Joan Moffat. A turquoise and white color theme used on the refreshment table was repeated on a basket containing gifts. Corsages were presented to the bride-elect and to her mother, Mrs. W. A. McElmoyle, and her grandmother, Mrs. E. Finlay. Other guests included Mrs. A. W. Pope, Mrs. W. H. Fleming, Mrs. W. McElmoyle Jr., Mrs. J. Spriggs, Mrs. K. C. Moffat, Miss M. McElmoyle and Miss B. Watkins.

Leave Wednesday

Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett will leave Victoria on Wednesday. After spending a day in Vancouver, they will leave for the interior of the province on Friday where they will spend the holiday season in their home in Kelowna.

Here for Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. G. Arnold Fry and their three children, Deborah, Douglas and Judith, will arrive in Victoria next Saturday to visit Mrs. Fry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hammond, in their home on Weald Road. The visitors will remain in Victoria for 10 days before returning to their home in Edmonton, Alta.

In San Francisco

Mr. Herbert F. E. Ford was among those who visited San Francisco, Calif., recently and signed the visitors' book at British Columbia House.

Staff Party

About 300 members of the Bapco Employees' Association and their guests will attend the annual staff Christmas party, to be held at the Club Sirocco this evening. Receiving guests will be Mr. Owen Williams, president, and Mr. W. Allen Pendray, com-

Mrs. Gerald C. Main recalls the days of her own childhood as she supervises the stirring of the most important pudding of the year by her oldest son, Ross. You can almost feel him concentrating as he makes his special wish for Santa's ears only! His younger brother, Grant, takes a delectable lick of the spoon, and their sister, Marsha, practises feminine patience as she waits for her turn at the traditional stirring.

St. Margaret's Graduating Class To Help India's Needy Children

Girls of the graduating class of St. Margaret's School have answered the call for help sent out by the starving children of India. The students will hold a silver tea in the school residence on Fort St. next Tuesday and proceeds will be donated to the Times' "Friendship Dollars for India" fund.

Affair will be held from 3:30 to 5 p.m. and is being convened by Miss Sandra Moore, form captain, and Miss Sylvia McKeever, prefect.

A brilliantly decorated Christmas tree will set the holiday theme and the head table will be decorated with arrangements of holly and poinsettias, flanked by red candles in silver candelabra.

Presiding at the refreshment table will be Mrs. E. A. McGowan, Mrs. H. P. McKeever, Mrs. S. W. Paynter, Miss R. Jones, Mrs. L. Ramsay and Miss D. Thompson.

The school's head mistress, Mrs. D. W. Cobbett will be among the special guests.

CLUB WOMEN'S NEWS

Festival Proceeds—At a recent meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Family and Children's Service Mrs. A. E. Cooper reported that more than $800 had been realized from the Festival of Christmas Decorations. Greetings and thanks from the president, Mrs. Mary Webb, who was in hospital, were read by vice-president, Mrs. W. F. Hibbert.

"AN EYE FOR AN EYE"

Is an old saying that comes from a code of justice developed over 5,000 years ago, at a time when the value of an eye was equal to the value of life itself. Prescription Optical realizes that we still depend on our eyes, as on no other senses, every waking moment. When glasses are prescribed for any member of your family, or when the glasses you are wearing need attention, call at either of our two offices, located for your convenience.

Impaired Charge Follows Mishap

DUNCAN—Louis Williams, Duncan, driver of the vehicle which struck and seriously injured 11-year-old Eric Lundgren on the Trans-Canada Highway Wednesday, appeared in magistrate's court Friday on a charge of impaired driving. Accused was remanded without plea for one week as RCMP advised the court that investigations are continuing and a more serious charge might be laid. Bail was set at $1,000.

DUNCAN—Cowichan district seems well on the road to getting its projected $3,600,000 hospital, as a result of agreement being reached recently between Cowichan Hospital board and the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service. Deputy Minister of Health Donald Cox said at a dinner meeting Friday that the pre-operating budget will be put before the provincial cabinet for final approval in the "very near future."

DUNCAN—A three-quarter-ton flatdeck truck stolen from Butler Bros., Duncan, last weekend was recovered by RCMP on Osborne Bay Road, five miles northeast of Duncan. The truck is believed to have been used in a liquor store robbery at Lake Cowichan, where $331 worth of spirits and beer was taken and an attempt made to take away the safe. The safe fell off the truck on the road to Honeymoon Bay and was abandoned. Butler Bros. officials stated that the truck was not damaged except for a flat tire.

DUNCAN—Death of Paul Luckovich of Shawnigan Lake in a rear-end collision near Mill Bay Nov. 16 was blamed on the driver of the other car involved in an inquest jury Friday night after a 1½-hour deliberation. Held to blame was Pte. Helmut Horst Mame, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Work Point Barracks. The jury maintained the death of Luckovich was caused by "lack of attention on the part of the driver which could be partially attributed to three glasses of beer consumed prior to the accident."

DUNCAN—Mrs. Linda Ryan, 18, Duncan, mother of three small children, recently charged with possession of stolen goods, was given a one-year suspended sentence by Magistrate D. K. McAdam Friday. She and her children will be placed in the custody of her mother in North Vancouver under the supervision of the probation service there. Magistrate McAdam told Mrs. Ryan that her "stupid and immature conduct" had caused much trouble, but the court was showing leniency in view of her age and her small children.

NANAIMO—Mayor Pete Maffeo, accompanied by two scarlet-coated RCMP, will perform a lamp-lighting ceremony tonight outside the Vancouver Island Gas Co.'s offices on Bastion Street. The ceremony, linking the two cities of Nanaimo and Harrogate, England, will be identical with one performed by Mayor Norman Morrell in Harrogate, where the lamps were formerly used.

DUNCAN—In an effort to curb motor accidents during the holiday season, the Junior Chamber of Commerce has arranged to put on display in the downtown area a wrecked car as a grim reminder of what can happen to careless drivers.

GANGES—Marshall Sharp was re-elected president of the Gulf Island Camera Club at the club's annual meeting here. Other officers are V. A. Bishop, vice-president and program convener, and Mrs. J. de Macedo, secretary-treasurer.

Driver of a car involved in collision with a power pole and a truck on Wallace Drive Wednesday evening escaped injury. His car was a total wreck. Istvan Nemeth, 1224 Richardson, apparently was pulling over to allow a truck driven by Arthur Howe, 854 Bardsey, to pass, when his wheel ran on the soft shoulder of the road. His car shot across the road, hitting a power pole. The truck then ran into the rear of the car. Damage to the truck was about $1,900, police said.

Bid Made to Boost 'Relay' Voice Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—Scientists try new tests today in hopes the latest U.S. communications satellite—weak-voiced but in near-perfect orbit—will soak up enough energy from the sun to run its radio relay equipment. The Relay satellite, carrying a Canadian-designed electronic heart, was lofted into orbit Thursday night by a Thor-Delta rocket fired from Cape Canaveral, Fla. But low battery power in the 172-pound satellite cast doubt on whether it would be successful in speeding the day when space vehicles will provide an instant world-wide communications system. The satellite was sent aloft to relay radio, telegraph, voice and television signals, and extend the space communications knowledge gathered through operations of the now-stilled Telstar satellite. Tests planned Thursday were called off because of the power problem. Telemetry indicated that the battery voltage was too low to turn on one of the two transponders and conduct communications tests, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said. Transponders are automatic relay devices.

Big Babies More Prone To Disease

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mothers who want big bouncing babies could be wrong, says a Halifax pediatrician. Bigger children may age faster and be more prone to degenerative diseases than the smaller children of past generations, Dr. William A. Cochran said in an interview here. "If we're going to prevent heart disease and obesity we should start with our children, not wait until they're 40 or 50 and their eating patterns are set," he said. Studies show that children from the ages of nine to 15 are 15 per cent heavier than children of the same age were 50 years ago. And of all children today, 10 to 12 per cent are overweight. "I recommend for children skim milk in preference to ordinary milk, less eggs and butter and animal fats," Dr. Cochran, associate professor of pediatrics at Dalhousie University, said he gives his own children skimmed milk—and very little ice cream.

CHOKERMAN SURVIVES PLUNGE

PORT ALBERNI—Chokerman Mike Montagna, 23, escaped serious injury when he slipped over the edge of a rock bluff and slid and rolled down a 100-foot slope at the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., Sproat Lake Division. Montagna suffered a broken nose and wrist and facial abrasions. The accident occurred when he left the job and went for a drink of water

CASH DOWN THE DRAIN HALTED HIS SMOKING

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP)—Every time Terry Mellor lit a cigarette, wife Josephine tossed a 2s 6d coin—worth 35 cents—down the nearest sewer or storm drain. If he took out a cigar, she tossed away double the amount. Friday after six months of financial warfare, 27-year-old Terry said he was quitting smoking. Josephine, 21, had plopped a total of £17 17s 6d down the drains. "It was worth every penny," she said. "Smoking is unhealthy and a waste of money. The money we'll save now will go into buying furniture for our new home."

'No Special RCMP Probes Of Student Activities'

By DON HANRIGHT
OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Fleming said in the Commons Friday the RCMP is "not interested in political activity" among university students and faculty members. Mr. Fleming said he did not see that expression. He repeated that there are no special RCMP activities relating to students or academic circles. The RCMP's job was law enforcement. He added: "The security investigations will obviously involve the police keeping their eyes open as to anything which might go on which relates to the enforcement of the law or the subversion of our institutions by unlawful methods." Mr. Berger said universities ought to be places where young men and women and faculty members may speak their minds, talk about politics and ideas "and do so freely without members of a national police force" asking questions. He suggested there is a danger that in the zeal to defend freedom it might be destroyed. David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said the government should say what it con-

FOUR-WEEK TRIAL

Lawyer Not Guilty Of Fraud Charges

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lawyer John Percy Mackrow was freed Friday on all counts in the Hycrest real estate fraud trial. Mr. Justice David R. Verchere ruled there was no evidence linking the 39-year-old barrister with the alleged property frauds. He directed the jury of 11 men and a woman to return a not guilty verdict on each of the eight charges against Mackrow. At the same time, the assize court panel followed the judge's direction and brought in not guilty verdicts against three other accused on two charges in the 10-count indictment. They are Arthur Bennett, 33; Robert Steele, 47, of Victoria, and a corporate accused, Hycrest Investments Ltd. The acquittals came Friday afternoon when Mr. Justice Verchere gave his decision on dismissal motions that took 2½ days to argue.

TRIAL RESUMED

Then the trial resumed on the remaining charges against Bennett, Steele and the company. The hearing, originally scheduled to last a week, completed its fourth week Friday. Nicholas Mussallem, Mackrow's counsel, contended during argument that the crown's evidence against Mackrow was entirely circumstantial. Bennett, Steele and Hycrest were acquitted on charges involving the alleged fraud of a city fisherman and his wife. Alf and Katherine Jakobsen of 7755 Cambie, had claimed they were defrauded of $9,000 in a transaction involving the sale of a west-end apartment block. But the judge said evidence presented on those allegations was not sufficient to prove guilt.

Bomb Threat To TV Tower

OUR OWN GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY!

That's how Ian and I like to think of it—as our good neighbor policy. It's an interesting and valuable extra that Wawanesa has included in their Comprehensive Personal Liability policy without charge. Say your son knocks a home run through your neighbor's window. Legally, you're not obligated to pay the repairs, but of course you'd like to. The Voluntary Property Damage clause in the policy covers you... pays for damage up to $250. And this extra coverage doesn't cost you a thing. It's just one of the many nice extra benefits you enjoy with Wawanesa. If you'd like to talk to us about any of them, call us or drop in next time you're by.

Flier Killed, Five Injured In 3-Car Crash

WIRE BRIEFS

RCAF Officer Victim Engaged Month Ago

By DESMOND BILL

Florida Warms Up

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Freezing weather in parts of the southern and southeastern United States persisted today, but rising temperatures in parts of Florida hastened the picking up of frozen fruit before it thaws and spoils.

6 Lost In Greenland

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — A U.S. Air Force jet interceptor crashed in Greenland 700 miles north of the Arctic Circle Friday, and a rescue helicopter disappeared an hour later on a mercy mission. In all, six men were missing in a bleak, darkened area of ice and snow.

Jet Dodges Crash

NEW YORK (AP) — The pilot of an Eastern Air Lines passenger jet said today he dodged and avoided collision with a B-47 four-engine bomber by only about 100 feet over Lake Charles, La.

RAMBOUILLET, France (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan and President de Gaulle today began world-ranging talks at the Chateau de Rambouillet here.

New Test Blast By Soviet

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — A nuclear explosion in the region of Novaya Zemlya, North Russia, was recorded here today.

Usually reliable sources said the blast was the first in a new Soviet series of nuclear tests.

The last Soviet test, 32nd in the series, took place Nov. 17 in the Semipalatinsk region of Central Asia.

The last blasts in the Novaya Zemlya area were two atmospheric blasts Nov. 4.

The recording of today's explosion was announced by the defence staff's research institute.

Lost Plane Located

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — A Brazilian air line announced today its four-engine Constellation missing since early Friday with 30 persons aboard was located today, 30 miles from its destination at the Amazon River port of Manaus. No other details were announced.

There were all kinds of conflicting reports Friday ranging from all were dead to all were safe. The reports all were erroneous.

A city RCAF officer, who had just won his pilot's wings and was engaged to a Winnipeg girl one month ago, was killed in a three car crash in Victoria early this morning.

Flying Officer Leonard Mihloff, 21, of 122 Lowlands met his death at the rain-swept intersection of Quadra and North Park St. about 1:30 a.m.

Five other persons involved in the smash were in such a state of shock that, hours after the accident, police had not been able to find out how it happened.

F/O Mihloff was engaged to Enna Petrovski of Winnipeg. They were to be married next June and she had planned to come to Victoria and spend Christmas with his family.

The young RCAF officer had won his pilot's wings a week ago. He joined the air force a year ago after studying at Victoria College for two years.

F/O Mihloff spent the evening with three of his former schoolmates at Mount View High School. They were on their way home, with F/O Mihloff at the wheel of the small car, when the accident occurred.

Going east on North Park St. their vehicle collided with a car apparently going south on Quadra. This car was driven by David Whitehead, 20, of 240 King George Terrace.

After the impact both cars veered southward and collided with a car driven north on Quadra by David Chappoy, 19, 670 Sunco.

The first collision threw

The two are Roy Van Pelt, 23, 60 vessel Twiss Isles, Oak Bay Marina, and Lorne Murray, 21, 2161 Neil Street.

A third passenger, Brian Boag, 21, 4528 Stratford, who had been sitting in the back seat, alongside Van Pelt, was not thrown out.

Boag is in "fairly good" condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Towboat Missing In River Flood

A 50-foot tug is missing from its moorings and more than 20 homes flooded by the waters of the Courtenay River, which spilled its banks early this morning.

RCPM fear the River Chief, which was tied to a wharf on the river may have sunk during the night. There was no one aboard.

A fishing vessel also broke from its moorings and floated out into the strait when flooding was at its highest during high tide.

An RCAF rescue boat found

her north of Royston and towed her to Comox.

Numerous homes and some businesses along the river, which skirts Courtenay reported flooded basements and back yards, while Lewis Park, training site of the British Columbia Lions Football Club, was inundated.

The Island Highway, between 7 and 9:30 a.m., was closed when water as deep as two feet covered more than a half-mile portion of the road.

Centennial Flashback ...

DECEMBER 15

The Rosedale is still lying in the same position in Ross Bay, lurching over on her side, and about 30 yards from shore. Her yards and topmasts have been taken down and an anchor has been carried out from her bows to keep her head to seaward in the case of a severe storm. The swell was still too heavy this morning to permit any salvage attempt.

The machinery of the steamer Thames is out of order and she is lying adrift off Clover Point, it was learned today. Many observers feel this is rather a bad berth should any gale come up.

Alfred Gorridge was charged with manslaughter today following an inquest into the death of George Parkinson. The pair were engaged in a bare-knuckle boxing match for a five-gallon container of beer when Gorridge struck Parkinson on the head in the fifth round. He did not get up. Both men were under the influence of alcohol at the time of the fight.

The schooner Codfish arrived today with a cargo of lumber from the Alberni Mills located in Barclay Sound.

Death Ends Reunion of School Friends

This rain and blood-soaked intersection at Quadra and North Park St. was where Flying Officer Leonard Mihloff met his death in grinding three-car collision at 1:30 this morning. The

'Share Arms Research'

PARIS (CP) — Defence Minister Harkness said today Canada has recommended to the NATO ministerial council greater standardization of military equipment to deal with modern weaponry "so-phistication."

Harkness told a press conference after the windup of the three-day NATO meeting this afternoon that Canada wants to see definite requirements established for some types of military hardware and production reorganized with all NATO countries co-operating.

"Until now, each country has been unwilling to give up its own research," Harkness said. "Small countries produce unrealistic products at unreasonable cost," Harkness added.

A communique issued at the end of the session today called for an increase in the "effectiveness of conventional forces" in the 15-nation alliance.

The ministers said they found the alliance "sound and vigorous" but agreed adequate and balanced forces, both nuclear and conventional, were necessary to provide the alliance with the widest possible range of response to whatever threats it might face.

The "aim of the Atlantic alliance remains what it has always been — peace, freedom, and security based on the rule of law," the communique said.

"However, the alliance is determined to respond appropriately to any hostile action affecting the security and freedom of countries of the alliance subjected to threats and pressure."

The ministers reaffirmed their determination to "defend and maintain the freedom of West Berlin and its people."

The communique, released after it was approved as a formal statement on the three-day closed-door review of East-West affairs and the state of NATO, said "the recent attempt by the Soviet Union to tilt the balance of force against the West by secretly stationing nuclear missiles in Cuba brought the world to the verge of war."

38 Plunge To Death

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — A bridge on the route to Brazil collapsed Friday and plunged at least 38 persons 40 feet to death in a raging river below, federal highway officials reported.

Rescue workers reported recovering 38 bodies.

Racists Score Upset In Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters) — The white supremacist Rhodesian Front today was reported to have won a sweeping victory in Friday's general election in Southern Rhodesia.

Final official results were not yet known, but observers here said the Rhodesian Front had won a clear majority over Premier Sir Edgar Whitehead's United Federal Party which campaigned on promises of a "non-racial" society and preservation of the federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

The federation, made up of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, appears to be doomed.

The two major Negro nationalist parties in Northern Rhodesia announced Friday they had agreed to form a coalition and give the self-governing colony its first Negro government.

Nyasaland's Negro leader, Dr. Hastings Banda, has vowed to take his country out of the white-dominated federation.

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Election results in Manitoba, the fourth province to hold a provincial contest in five weeks, will be the subject of close scrutiny by all federal parties for weeks to come.

Features of the voting Friday which attracted Ottawa interest are:

1. The personal future of Premier Roblin. He has been mentioned in some quarters as a possible successor to Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the federal leadership of the Conservative party, if it falls open.

2. The future of the Liberal party in Western Canada. It gained strength in the Manitoba legislature mainly at the expense of the New Democratic Party.

3. The future of the NDP in the jump from provincial to federal politics and that continued leadership of the Conservative Party.

Federal party leaders and strategists are examining riding-by-riding results as well as the over-all position of the parties in the Manitoba house.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker makes a practice of not commenting publicly on provincial election results, as did his predecessors in office. However, it is expected that he will send a personal message of congratulation to Mr. Roblin, one of his close friends and leadership supporters.

The 45-year-old premier has said he has no intention of making the jump from provincial to federal politics and that continued leadership of the Conservative Party.

New Mayor Puts Bennett On the Spot

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett Friday night said he would call a provincial election if mayor-elect William Rathie of Vancouver would run against him in his South Okanagan constituency.

Mr. Rathie, who listened to the premier's challenge on radio, immediately replied by telegram accepting the invitation.

The premier was speaking at a Vancouver Point Grey by-election meeting, winding up the campaign of Social Credit candidate Mrs. Eve Burns-Miller. The election is Monday.

Asked later about his challenge and Mr. Rathie's reply, the premier said:

"The election will come in due course. He (Rathie) is only playing politics."

Widow's Sentiment Too Much for Church

LONDON (AP) — A 75-year-old widow was ordered by a Church of England court today to remove the words "Forever in My Thoughts" from her husband's tombstone.

Crying Mrs. Dorothy Maule Wilkison said: "I thought the inscription suitable. My husband meant everything to me. The words 'Forever in My Thoughts' are quite true. I can't afford to remove it, as I have only got a pension coming in."

The vicar of St. Mary's Church in suburban Ealing, Rev. D. S. Richardson, told the court:

"In these days of paganization of burial, it is necessary for the church to take a strong Christian line. We believe that strong expressions of affection or grief are inappropriate."

The church court ordered the words removed from the stone in three months or else the church would remove them and bill Mrs. Wilkison.

FRIENDSHIP DOLLARS FUND

B.C. Indian Carving Aids Asian Indians

Cadets at the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, have responded to The Times "Friendship Dollars for India" appeal by collecting some $42 between them.

The money was raised by raffling a totem pole specially carved for the fund by Red Loveys, a security guard at the college and a former merchant seaman.

The pole was won by Dr.

Alan Bricknell, a lecturer in chemistry at Royal Roads. An expert carver, Mr. Loveys wanted to help The Times appeal because he has visited India and seen the appalling conditions under which many of her people live.

More than 168 cadets and staff bought tickets in the raffle, which took place at their annual Christmas dinner Friday night.

This morning a $5 bill was delivered at The Times office by a Victoria lady signing herself "Waggy." Other donations, large and small, arrived by mail.

All are welcome for they are urgently needed to assist the life-giving work of the Unitarian Service Committee in India.

The USC carries out relief work among the most destitute Indians, providing milk and food for starving children and medical care for the sick and aged.

Donations should be sent to "Friendship Dollars for India" c/o The Times, 2631 Douglas, or delivered at the Bank of Montreal, Douglas and Yates.

An acknowledgement will be made in The Times and official receipts for income tax purposes will be sent later by USC.

On Friday the total stood at $6,244. A new total will be published in Monday's Times.

'Devil in Brown Suit' Dogged Alcoholic

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Do you have to take a drink before asking the boss for a raise?

If you do, you are in the first stages of alcoholism, in the experience of Major George Wright of the Salvation Army's Harbor Light at 550 Yates.

The average alcoholic is a nice fellow when sober. He is usually a sensitive type who drinks because, in some obscure way, he lacks faith in himself.

"We have found that the majority of alcoholics come from the so-called better class of society. They are often men of talent and ability."

Major and Mrs. Wright have specialized in the rehabilitation of alcoholics in Ontario and B.C. for many years and they believe the only lasting cure is a spiritual one.

Only Eating Place

"If we did not assist such people we would be turning our backs on Christ's teachings."

Many alcoholics only eat when they go to the Salvation Army's Harbor Light, and with that in mind, Major and Mrs. Wright are now arranging a Christmas Day dinner for 4 p.m.

But the dinner is not just for alcoholics. All lonely people are welcome, for the Salvation Army aims to help every person in need.

"Any stranger in town is welcome to join us," Major Wright said, "and anyone who wants to contribute cash or food to the meal will have our blessing. There is never enough for all the work we have to do."

The Harbor Light feeds an average of 30 men a day all the year round. At the moment it has 47 in residence and a number of out-patients.

Two of the residents told me, simply and frankly, they would be in jail today if it were not for the Harbor Light.

"I had come so low I would steal to get money for drink," a logger told me. "I blew all my money on booze—everything else was secondary. It is hard for me now to realize now how low I had come."

"The Sally Ann is the most Christian outfit in the world. It helps everyone."

An educated man with a Scottish brogue said he had been rehabilitated by Harbor Light but suffers occasional lapses.

"When that happens there is nothing for me to do but return here. I am useless to anyone else once I start drinking. And the hell of it is only one drink—half a glass of beer even—can send an alcoholic back to his old ways."

"It is a crime to offer him drink."

The Scotsman told me he was in an advanced stage of delirium tremens until a few months ago.

Followed By 'Bear'

"Everywhere I went I was followed by a huge brown bear. It scared the wits out of me. When I woke up at night I would see the bear at the foot of the bed."

"Funny thing that," the logger interrupted. "I was followed by a man in a brown suit and I got to dread the sight of him. No, he wasn't real. I proved that, but he seemed to dog my footsteps everywhere, and there was something sinister and horrible about him."

"Sometimes I wondered if he were the Devil in disguise."

Ghastly Mixtures

Several reformed alcoholics at the Harbor Light told me they had been reduced to drinking anything that would give them a "kick"—rubbing alcohol, hair tonics, canned heat, lemon and vanilla extract.

From them Major Wright has built up a "museum" of bottles which he displays in his office as a warning to persons in the earlier stages of alcoholism.

"It is only when a man runs out of money to buy even cheap wine that he turns to these ghastly drinks—and the effects are far worse."

They can cause blindness and upset the stomach so much that a man is incapable of eating. At that stage he is in grave need of help.

How does the Harbor Light handle violent drunks?

Anger Spurious

It's largely a matter of approach, the major says. Sometimes he "kicks" them out of their anger. Occasionally he threatens to call the police—but never does.

"A drunken man's anger is usually spurious. He's really angry with himself but picks on something else to get mad about."

Sergeant Joe Matteson, who is Major Wright's chief assistant, said he was addicted to hay rum (at 37 cents a bottle) and vanilla extract, until 22 months ago.

Major Wright's chief assistant, Sergeant Joe Matteson, said he was picking up cigarette butts only 22 months ago.

Socred Balloon Primary Target

By FRANK RUTTER
Times' Legislative Reporter

The occupant of the 52nd seat in the provincial legislature will be chosen Monday by the people of Vancouver Point Grey.

The by-election there has been inflated beyond its significance in affecting the representation inside the House into a sort of meteorological test balloon for the next general election.

The opposition parties, of which there are now three, emphatically chorus that Point Grey will forecast which way the political winds are blowing—any way as long as it is away from Social Credit.

The social credit government, although it shows some signs of fear and trembling, is looking for a victory to hold the seat and prick the opposition balloon.

There are 35,682 eligible voters in Point Grey, and those who go to the polls will elect one of these four candidates:

Social Credit's Mrs. Eva Burns-Miller, 62, recent widow, called by her opponents "The Invisible Candidate" because she hasn't shown up to some of the all-party public meetings.

The Conservatives' Reg Atherton, former alderman, campaigning as "the First of Fulton's Men," and cashing in heavily, his colleagues claim, on the return of Works Minister David Fulton as B.C. party leader.

Liberal Dr. Pat McGeer, nephew of the famous Gerry, a neurologist at the University of B.C., a real "personality" boy and initial favorite to win.

The New Democratic Party's Antony Holland, 42, social worker, star of amateur drama, running an intense campaign on a low budget.

The Liberals and Tories regard each other as the only possible winners. First public opinion polls showed them one-two in that order.

The Liberals, according to Mr. McGeer, aren't spending much money in the campaign; the NDP is spending between $1,500 and $2,000. Social Credit is reported spending $60,000, though party officials won't say. Nobody's estimated what the Tories are paying for their bid, but Mr. Fulton is their chief weapon.

Point Grey in the last election went heavily Social Credit, giving all three of its seats to that party. In recent years the only non-Social Credit winner has been Liberal Arthur Laing. Before Social Credit, it was a Coalitionist riding election Tories. One of its most famous members was R. L. Maitland, attorney-general in the Coalition government. An earlier member was Liberal Dr. George Weir, education minister in the 1930s.

But never before, in the eyes of today's politicians, has a member for Point Grey been so important—as an indicator of future elections.

Odds and Ends: Premier Bennett pored over civil service pay rates for a week before announcing a raise this week; he has several "combinations" to choose from and hasn't yet decided which it will be. One of the executives of Merrill Lynch, one of the "syndicate" appointed to finance the Peace, is a backroom boy in the campaign of far-right U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater for president.

The student vote in Point Grey may not be as big a factor as expected—only 1,800 registered where 4,000 were predicted. Agriculture Minister Frank Richter is one man shying away from the Island milk price row; he says the new Milk Board ruling has nothing to do with him.

ARTHUR MAYSE

One doesn't associate romance with wood trucks, but next time one of Ideal Fuel Company's big diesels rumbles past, cast a glance at the hood.

There, neatly lettered on either side, you'll see "E. Lovely Baby", or "E. Stubbard Baby", or any of 24 variations on the theme.

The names differ, but it's always baby, and each name is preceded by Mohan Singh's lucky "E".

Mohan Singh Johal came from India to Victoria with his parents as a seven-year-old. He started his fuel company in 1933—not the best year to launch a business—and lugged along without too much success until 1942.

Then one day at Jordan River camp of Western Forest Products near Cowichan Lake, he took a girl called Ethel for a truck ride.

A logger happened along at lunchtime. He gave Ethel the eye, then asked Mohan Singh, "What's her name?" Informed, he scrawled in the dust on the truck hood, "E. Lovely Baby."

"And that did it," says Mohan Singh, middle-aged now, with curly shoulders and a crisp grey hair. "The same night, I painted the name on my truck to stay. From then on, my luck improved."

When a truck is traded in, the old name is transferred to the new rig. In 20 years, the fleet has never been without its "E. Lovely Baby".

From Cecil Ridout, a list of rules for a ship chandler's clerical staff in Sydney, Australia, 110 years ago. I offer it as an antidote to anyone fed up with the complexities of modern life and yearning for the good old days:

1. Godliness, Cleanliness and Punctuality are the necessities of a good business.

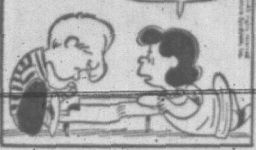

2. On the recommendation of the Governor of this Colony, this firm has reduced the hours of work, and the clerical staff will now only have to be present between the hours of 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. on weekdays. The Sabbath is for worship, but should any man-of-war or other vessel require victualing, the clerical staff will work on the Sabbath.

3. Daily prayer will be held each morning in the main office. The clerical staff will be present.

4. Clothing must be of a sober nature. The clerical staff will not disport themselves in raiment of bright colors, nor will they wear hose unless in good repair.

POLICE 'DEATH' ON TIPPLERS

Police in Greater Victoria have begun an intensive search for persons who are over-enthusiastic in their celebration of the coming festive season.

They stopped 350 cars at a roadblock Friday night, looking for impaired drivers but did not find any. While they were at it they checked the roadworthiness of the cars.

Numerous warning tickets for faulty headlights, horns, licence plate lights, brakes, windshield wipers and brake lights were issued.

The search for drinking drivers will continue through the holiday season, Chief John Blackstock said today.

And he warned the police will be on the lookout for pedestrians who have been drinking. Checkpoints are being set up to catch impaired drivers.

Saanich and Oak Bay police are also taking part in the crackdown. Drivers who violate speed regulations and ignore traffic signals are also going to come in for special attention by police.

"We don't want them, but if we catch drivers who have been drinking, we will pull them in," Chief Bert Pearson of Saanich said.

"And that goes for pedestrians found wandering on the streets inebriated, too," he warned.

RIDICULOUS

Oak Bay Chief Robert Smith said it seemed ridiculous to have to warn people not to do what they know is dangerous.

"But we are asking the public to co-operate with the law enforcement agencies over the holiday period," he said.

Driving at night during wet weather at this time of year is dangerous enough, without adding to the risk by drinking, he said.

He said pedestrians who ventured forth inebriated on nights like these were risking death.

Chief John Smart of Esquimalt said his force operated a year-long crackdown on drinking drivers. But he did offer a word of advice for Xmas drivers:

"Try coffee."

BALMY RECORD SET TODAY

Today was the warmest December 15 on record, giving promise of a showery but warm weekend, the weather office said today.

By noon the thermometer edged slightly over 53.2 degrees, which was the previous high temperature for Dec. 13, recorded in 1958.

Tonight will be warm, too, with minimum temperature forecast at 45 degrees, rising to about 50 during daylight Sunday.

There will be cloudy periods and a few showers, spaced by clearing and sunshine and light winds, possibly rising to 25 in exposed areas.

Cruise Ships Stops Certain

Stops at Victoria for northbound ships of Alaska Cruise Lines Ltd. are definitely scheduled for next April, C. B. West, president of the line, said in Vancouver Friday.

It will be the first time the company has included Victoria on its cruise itinerary.

The one-week cruises will originate at Vancouver, April 6, 13, 20 and 27, with stops to pick up passengers at Seattle and Victoria on the same day.

Ship assigned to the early season cruises is the 120-passenger Yukon Star. She will use the CPR's Belleville Street wharf.

ELECTED vice-president of the Western Forestry Conference at its annual meeting in Seattle Friday was B.C. deputy forests minister R. G. McKee, 61, succeeded Dr. C. D. Orchard as deputy minister in 1958. He joined the B.C. forest service in 1926 and in 1954 was appointed assistant chief forester.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Christmas party for children of members of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will be held at the Work Point gymnasium on Thursday afternoon starting at 3.

Santa Claus—after being welcomed by Lt.-Col. G. G. Brown, commanding officer, of the garrison—will hand out gifts to about 500 children between the ages of two and ten.

The Cymrodorion (Welsh) Society will hold its monthly meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at Norway House, 1110 Hillside. Entertainment and refreshments will be provided.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. How long has the Citizenship Act been in force? A.B.

A. The Citizenship Act was put into effect in January of 1947.

Q. When was the traffic circle known as the roundabout (the concrete curbing) opened? D.S.

A. It was opened in March of 1960.

Commissioned and senior non-commissioned officers of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will take orders from junior NCOs and privates at the annual all-ranks Christmas dinner next Friday noon.

Majors, captains, lieutenants, warrant officers and sergeants will act as waiters for the 500 junior ranks.

The provincial government has no plans for a special building to house the B.C. Maritime Museum, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said Friday.

He said the museum was one of several organizations being considered as possible occupants of the old courthouse in Bastion Square.

The three Optimist clubs in the Greater Victoria area have again opened Christmas tree lots this year to raise funds for their youth activities.

Their Christmas tree lots are at A's Esso Service, Shellbourne at Hillside; Shop-Easy store, Oak Bay Avenue at Hampshire; Cambridge Market, Estevan at A. Musgrave; Saunders and Hiteham, Cadboro Bay Road; Jimmy Little's, 2017 Quadra, and Foodland Market, 312 Cook.

Warm Reaction To Merger Bid

Action Expected Early Next Year

Suggestions that sections of Saanich should unite with Oak Bay municipality have created a "terrific reaction," the president of Cadboro Bay ratepayers' Association said today.

Interest is expected to grow and reach a climax by the annual meeting of the organization, which will be called early in the new year.

"There seems to be a terrific reaction to the idea of this part of the municipality breaking away from Saanich," said association president Mrs. Margot Bowden.

"They realize that if we're not paying all the taxes in Saanich, we're paying most of them," she remarked.

UP TO RATEPAYERS

But just what steps might be taken in connection with joining Oak Bay, Mrs. Bowden was not prepared to say.

"It's up to the ratepayers. I'm only the president," she said.

She pointed out that discussion between interested ratepayers could stimulate action.

"You've got to give Victorians a little time to simmer a thing up. They take a lot of moving," she joked.

The area suggested for secession covers about 1,000 acres immediately north of the Oak Bay boundary, and would be enclosed by a line drawn roughly north from the existing northwesterly corner of Oak Bay on Gordon Head Road near Ruby Road.

FOUR DISTRICTS

The districts of Cadboro Bay, Ten Mile Point, Queenswood and part of Gordon Head would be included.

Although these citizens seem favorable to the idea, having voted pro-amalgamation with Victoria in last week's defeated plebiscite, the rest of Saanich may not be.

As pointed out by Mrs. Bowden, the Cadboro Bay district is a high-revenue area in terms of property taxes, and the municipality may be reluctant to let it go.

ACTION NEEDED NOW

B.C. Totem Land 'In Name Only'

Unless something is done quickly, B.C. will become the "land of the totems" in name only.

This is the opinion of three experts on native culture who today agreed with Vancouver architect William Henry Birmingham, that the last remaining large collection of totem poles is in danger of disappearing within the next two or three years.

Mr. Birmingham, on a visit to the city Friday, called for immediate government action to restore about 70 totem poles still standing in five native villages along the scenic Skeena River, situated about 550 miles northwest of Victoria.

B.C. anthropologist Wilson Duff said he visited the Skeena valley two years ago and returned there again this summer to take out two totem poles which are to be copied in Victoria.

"I was shocked by the change that had taken place," he said. "Some of the totems I had seen two years ago were smashed to bits."

Dr. A. N. Beattie, president of the Indian Arts and Welfare Society, stressed the need for "public action" to restore the totems.

He said they are worth preserving as a tourist attraction, noting they were all situated within easy reach from the Skeena highway.

Dr. Douglas Leechman, former anthropologist for the National Museum in Ottawa, suggested the government experiment in casting the totems in concrete.

He said the totems could be taken down and plastic casts made for them. Cement would then be poured into the casts to make exact replicas of the totems. These would then be erected and painted like the originals.

Troops Find Katanga Town Looted

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—An advance party of United Nations troops which marched into the North Katanga town of Kongolo found it "quite empty," United Nations headquarters here said today.

Kongolo, scene of two months of fighting between 1,500 Katanga gendarmes and Congo central government troops, is without water and electricity, a UN spokesman said.

"The town appears to have been looted and nothing is left," he added.

Suspended Flyers Agree to Trade

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton Flyers announced today that suspended forwards Chuck Holmes and Warren Hynes have agreed to report to Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League to complete a four-for-four player swap and their suspensions have been lifted.

'Save Mounties' Petition Lacks Names

VANCOUVER (CP)—A protest telegram signed by 1,507 Vancouver Mounties' fans was sent Friday night to Pacific Coast Baseball League directors meeting in Salt Lake City.

Ken Howarth, spokesman for the save our Mounties committee, said he is "very disappointed" more fans did not sign the telegram.

UBC Eights Win in New Zealand

WELLINGTON (Reuters)—Canada's British Empire Games eight-oar rowing crew today completed an unbeaten tour of New Zealand when they outclassed four New Zealand club crews in a 2,000-metre race on the Wanganui River.

The Canadian team was second in the four-man race. The Canadians are from the University of British Columbia.

HOCKEY LEAD SHARED

Detroit Upsets Black Hawks 3-1

DETROIT (UPI)—Parker Macdonald broke a 1-1 tie with a power-play goal at 15:16 of the third period and Norm Ullman added an open net tally to shoot the Detroit Red Wings into a share of the National Hockey League lead with a 3-1 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks today.

Macdonald, who has come into his own this season playing on the Gordie Howe line, deflected Powe's shot, the puck scooting past Chicago's goalie Glenn Hall.

The goal was Macdonald's 14th of the campaign, and seven of them have come on power plays.

Howe set up Ullman with the clincher at 18:58 with Hall pulled from the net. Ullman fired in his eighth goal amidst thunderous cheering. From the season's first matinee crowd of 10,000.

The triumph, which closed Chicago's two-point lead over the Wings, was Detroit's fourth over the Hawks at Olympia, three coming on identical 3-1 scores.

Referee Eddie Powers called 14 penalties in the fierce-checking contest. Detroit's bad man Howie Young drawing two of them. Oddly enough it was Young who was responsible for the third period power play opportunity.

Young goaded Chicago's centre, Stan Mikita, the NHL's leading scorer, into a high-sticking penalty at 13:56. Eighty seconds later, Macdonald bagged the winning goal.

Rookie centre Alex Faulkner opened the scoring for the Wings with only 30 seconds gone in the game converting defenceman's Doug Barkley's goal-mouth pass. But Hawk left-wing Ron Murphy scored the equalizer on an unassisted play 11 minutes later and the teams went into the third period with the 1-1 deadlock.

SUMMARY

FIRST PERIOD
1. Detroit, Faulkner (Barkley, Jelenc) 6:30.
2. Chicago, Murphy 11:12.
Penalties—Powers 6:28, Fleming 6:31, Howe and Powe 8:32.

SECOND PERIOD
No scoring.

THIRD PERIOD
3. Detroit, Macdonald (Howe, Delves) 15:16.
4. Detroit, Ullman (Howe) 18:58.
Penalties: Mikita (12:56).

Racists Score Upset In Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters)—The white, supremacist Rhodesian Front today was reported to have won a sweeping victory in Friday's general election in Southern Rhodesia.

Final official results were not yet known, but observers here said the Rhodesian Front had won a clear majority over Premier Sir Edgar Whitehead's United Federal Party which campaigned on promises of a "non-racial" society and preservation of the federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

The federation, made up of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, appears to be doomed.

The two major Negro nationalist parties in Northern Rhodesia announced Friday they had agreed to form a coalition and give the self-governing colony its first Negro government. Nyasaland's Negro leader, Dr. Hastings Banda, has vowed to take his country out of the white-dominated federation.

CITY FLIER KILLED IN THREE-CAR CRASH

Death Ends Reunion of School Friends

This rain and blood-soaked intersection at Quadra and North Park St. was where Flying Officer Leonard Mihloff met his death in grinding three-car collision at 1:30 this morning. The 21-year-old officer and three former school friends from Mount View High School had a reunion Friday night. They were on their way home in small car at right when the crash occurred.

Five Injured In Accident

By DESMOND BILL

A city RCAF officer, who had just won his pilot's wings and was engaged to a Winnipeg girl one month ago, was killed in a three car crash in Victoria early this morning.

Flying Officer Leonard Mihloff, 21, of 122 Lowlands met his death at the rain-swept intersection of Quadra and North Park St. about 1:30 a.m.

Five other persons involved in the smash were in such a state of shock that, hours after the accident, police had not been able to find out how it happened.

F/O Mihloff was engaged to Enna Petrovski of Winnipeg. They were to be married next June and she had planned to come to Victoria and spend Christmas with his family.

ON TO OTTAWA?

What Next For Roblin?

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Election results in Manitoba, the fourth province to hold a provincial contest in five weeks, will be the subject of close scrutiny by all federal parties for weeks to come.

Features of the voting Friday which attracted Ottawa interest are:

1. The personal future of Premier Roblin. He has been mentioned in some quarters as a possible successor to Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the federal leadership of the Conservative party, if it falls open.
2. The future of the Liberal party in Western Canada. It gained strength in the Manitoba legislature mainly at the expense of the New Democratic Party.
3. The future of the NDP itself. It lost strength in one of the provinces it regards along with Saskatchewan as its birthplace.

Federal party leaders and strategists are examining riding-by-riding results as well as the over-all position of the parties in the Manitoba house.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker makes a practice of not commenting publicly on provincial election results, as did his predecessors in office. However, it is expected that he will send a personal message of congratulation to Mr. Roblin, one of his close friends and leadership supporters.

The 45-year-old premier has said he has no intention of making the jump from provincial to federal politics and that continued leadership of the Con-

Beerless Christmas Threatens

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters)—Gloomy Melbourne citizens, sweating in the usual seasonal heat wave, today faced the grim possibility of a beer-less Christmas.

A labor dispute at the huge Carlton and United breweries, which supply a large part of the city's beer, already has resulted in empty shelves in most canned and bottled beer departments. Now drought beer in pubs is threatened too.

The beer crisis has crowned world developments on newspaper front pages in this thirsty city where few Christmas parties are regarded as complete without a refrigerator full of quart bottles or a few nine-gallon kegs.

New Mayor Puts Bennett On the Spot

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier W. A. C. Bennett Friday night said he would call a provincial election if mayor-elect William Rathie of Vancouver would run against him in his South Okanagan constituency.

Mr. Rathie, who listened to the premier's challenge on radio, immediately replied by telegram accepting the invitation.

The premier was speaking at a Vancouver Point Grey by-election meeting, winding up the campaign of Social Credit candidate Mrs. Eve Burns-Miller. The election is Monday.

Asked later about his challenge and Mr. Rathie's reply, the premier said:

DUE COURSE
"The election will come in due course. He (Rathie) is only playing politics."

FRIENDSHIP DOLLARS FUND

B.C. Indian Carving Aids Asian Indians

Cadets at the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, have responded to The Times' "Friendship Dollars for India" appeal by collecting some $42 between them.

The money was raised by raffling a lotem pole specially carved for the fund by Red Loveys, a security guard at the college and a former merchant seaman.

The pole was won by Dr. Alan Bricknell, a lecturer in chemistry at Royal Roads.

An expert carver, Mr. Loveys wanted to help The Times appeal because he has visited India and seen the appalling conditions under which many of her people live.

More than 168 cadets and staff bought tickets in the raffle, which took place at their annual Christmas dinner Friday night.

This morning a $5 bill was delivered at The Times office by a Victoria lady signing herself "Waggy." Other donations, large and small, arrived by mail.

All are welcome, for they are urgently needed to assist the life-giving work of the Unitarian Service Committee in India.

The USC carries out relief work among the most destitute Indians, providing milk and food for "starving children and medical care for the sick and aged.

Donations should be sent to "Friendship Dollars for India" c/o The Times, 2631 Douglas, or delivered at the Bank of Montreal, Douglas and Yates.

An acknowledgement will be made in The Times and official receipts for income tax purposes will be sent later by USC.

On Friday the total stood at $5,244. A new total will be published in Monday's Times.

Towboat Missing In River Flood

A 30-foot tug is missing from its moorings and more than 20 homes flooded by the waters of the Courtenay River which spilled its banks early this morning.

RCMP fear the River Chief which was tied to a wharf, on the river may have sunk during the night. There was no one aboard.

A fishing vessel also broke from its moorings and floated out into the strait when flooding was at its highest during high tide.

An RCAF rescue boat found her north of Royston and towed her to Comox. Numerous homes and some businesses along the river, which skirts Courtenay reported flooded basements and back yards, while Lewis Park, training site of the British Columbia Lions Football Club, was inundated.

The Island Highway, between 7 and 9:30 a.m., was closed when water as deep as two feet covered more than a half-mile portion of the road.

'Share Arms Research'

Harkness told a press conference after the windup of the three-day NATO meeting this afternoon that Canada wants to see definite requirements established for some types of military hardware and production reorganized with all NATO countries co-operating.

"Until now, each country has been unwilling to give up its own research," Harkness said. "Small countries' produce unrealistic products at unreasonable cost," Harkness added. A communiqué issued at the end of the session today called for an increase in the "effectiveness of conventional forces" in the 15-nation alliance.

The ministers said they found

Big Babies More Prone To Disease

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mothers who want big bouncing babies could be wrong, says a Halifax pediatrician.

Bigger children may age faster and be more prone to degenerative diseases than the smaller children of past generations, Dr. William A. Cochrane said in an interview here.

"If we're going to prevent heart disease and obesity we should start with our children, not wait until they're 40 or 50 and their eating patterns are set," he said.

Studies show that children from the ages of nine to 15 are 15 per cent heavier than children of the same age were 50 years ago. And of all children today, 10 to 12 per cent are overweight.

"I recommend for children skin milk in preference to ordinary milk, less eggs and butter and animal fats," Dr. Cochrane, associate professor of pediatrics at Dalhousie University, said he gives his own children skimmed milk—and very little ice cream.

Widow's Sentiment Too Much for Church

LONDON (AP)—A 75-year-old widow was ordered by a Church of England court today to remove the words "Forever in My Thoughts" from her husband's tombstone.

Crying, Mrs. Dorothy Maule Wilkinsons said: "I thought the inscription suitable. My husband meant everything to me. The words 'Forever in My Thoughts' are quite true. I can't afford to remove it. As I have only got a pension coming in."

The vicar of St. Mary's Church in suburban Ealing, Rev. D. S. Richardson, told the court:

"In these days of paganism of burial, it is necessary for the church to take a strong Christian line. We believe that strong expressions of affection or grief are inappropriate."

The church court ordered the words removed from the stone in the churchyard within three months or else the church would remove them and bill Mrs. Wilkinsons.

CASH DOWN THE DRAIN HALTED HIS SMOKING

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP)—Every time Terry Mellor lit a cigarette, wife Josephine tossed a 2s 6d coin—worth 35 cents—down the nearest sewer or storm drain.

If he took out a cigar, she tossed away double the amount.

Friday after six months of financial warfare, 27-year-old Terry said he was quitting smoking.

Josephine, 21, had plopped a total of £17 17s 6d down the drains.

"It was worth every penny," she said. "Smoking is unhealthy and a waste of money. The money we'll save now will go into buying furniture for our new home."

'No Special RCMP Probes Of Student Activities'

By DON HANFORTH

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Fleming said in the Commons Friday the RCMP is "not interested in political activity" among university students and faculty members.

He said he has given no instructions for the RCMP to investigate either students or teachers and added that he has been told that the Mounties have not been approaching people or campuses in an effort to develop sources of information.

Mr. Fleming was replying to New Democratic Party members who said they have information from "a number of sources" that the federal police force has been interviewing people at universities on the political activities of themselves and their colleagues.

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) said a halt should be called to this sort of thing. It could only breed suspicion and fear. The RCMP should be concerned only with evidence of overt breaches of the law "and not the kind of little-tattle-and-gossip that we have found has in so many cases prompted these interrogations."

Mr. Fleming suggested that Mr. Berger's assertions are based on "quite unwarranted" assumptions.

QUESTIONS FLEMING

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas asked whether Mr. Fleming's statement meant there have been no investigations of students and faculty members "taking part in meetings to state their opposition, for instance, to the acquisition of nuclear weapons."

The last Soviet test, 32nd in the series, took place Nov. 17 in the Semipalatinsk region of Central Asia.

the alliance "sound and vigorous" but agreed adequate and balanced forces, both nuclear and conventional, were necessary to provide the alliance with the widest possible range of response to whatever threats it might face.

The "aim of the Atlantic alliance remains what it has always been—peace, freedom, and security based on the rule of law," the communiqué said.

"However, the alliance is determined to respond appropriately to any hostile action affecting the security and freedom of countries of the alliance subjected to threats and pressure."

The ministers reaffirmed their determination to "defend and maintain the freedom of West Berlin and its people."

The communiqué, released after it was approved as a formal statement on the three-day closed-door review of East-West affairs and the state of NATO, said "the recent attempt by the Soviet Union to tilt the balance of force against the West by secretly stationing nuclear missiles in Cuba brought the world to the verge of war."

FOUR-WEEK TRIAL

Lawyer Not Guilty Of Fraud Charges

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lawyer John Percy Mackrow was freed Friday on all counts in the Hycrest real estate fraud trial.

Mr. Justice David R. Verchere ruled there was no evidence linking the 39-year-old barrister with the alleged property frauds.

He directed the jury of 11 men and a woman to return a not guilty verdict on each of the eight charges against Mackrow.

At the same time, the assize court panel followed the judge's direction and brought in not guilty verdicts against three other accused on two charges in the 10-count indictment.

They are Arthur Bennett, 33; Robert Steele, 47, of Victoria, and a corporate accused, Hycrest Investments Ltd.

The acquittals came Friday afternoon when Mr. Justice Verchere gave his decision on motions that took 2½ days to argue.

TRIAL RESUMED

Then the trial resumed on the remaining charges against Bennett, Steele and the company.

The hearing, originally scheduled to last a week, completed its fourth week Friday. Nicholas Mussallem, Mackrow's counsel, contended during argument that the crown's evidence against Mackrow was entirely circumstantial.

Bennett, Steele and Hycrest were acquitted on charges involving the alleged fraud of a city fisherman and his wife.

Alf and Katherine Jakobsen of 7755 Cambie, had claimed they were defrauded of $9,000 in a transaction involving the sale of a west end apartment block.

But the judge said evidence presented on those allegations was not sufficient to prove guilt.

Lost Plane Located

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A Brazilian air line announced today its four-engine Constellation missing since early Friday with 50 persons aboard was located today, 30 miles from its destination at the Amazon River port of Manaus. No other details were announced.

There were all kinds of conflicting reports Friday ranging from all were dead to all were safe. The reports all were erroneous.

Bomb Threat To TV Tower

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—The Trail Times says the cross-Canada television microwave system narrowly escaped disruption last spring when two bombs failed to explode at the base of one of its relay towers.

The newspaper says a tower inspector found two 45-stick dynamite bombs at the base of a tower, one of the links for relay of television, telephone, teletype, radio and radar signals.

RCMP investigators said the bombs were set to go off March 6, the same day a giant power pylon was felled by bombs on Kootenay Lake.

6 Lost In Greenland

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—A U.S. Air Force jet interceptor crashed in Greenland 700 miles north of the Arctic Circle Friday, and a rescue helicopter disappeared an hour later on a mercy mission. In all, six men were missing in a bleak, darkened area of ice and snow.

OUR OWN GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY!

That's how Ian and I like to think of it—as our good neighbor policy. It's an interesting and valuable extra that Wawanesa has included in their Comprehensive Personal Liability policy without charge. Say your son knocks a home run through your neighbor's window. Legally, you're not obligated to pay the repairs, but of course you'd like to. The Voluntary Property Damage clause in the policy covers you... pays for damage up to $250. And this extra coverage doesn't cost you a thing. It's just one of the many nice extra benefits you enjoy with Wawanesa. If you'd like to talk to us about any of them, call us or drop in next time you're by.

QUOTE: "Newspapers are the best medium for food advertising and for marketing information on food. The printed word can be read, reread, clipped, and filed. And for some reason or other it commands more authority than casual statements on radio and television." Unquote.

So says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.* And this authoritative medium is so flexible that it allows you to get your message across in the most powerful, most effective way YOU can devise. The only limits are the bounds of the advertiser's creative imagination....

What's YOUR sales story? You sell it best when you tell it in the pages of the daily newspaper.
